Foley's Kidney Remedy—An Appreciation.

L. McConnell, Catherine St., Elmira, N. Y., writes: "I wish to express my appreciation of the great good I derived from Foley's Kidney Remedy, which I used for a bad case of kidney trouble. Five bottles did the work most effectively and proved to me beyond doubt it is the most reliable kidney medicine I have ever taken." A. McMillen.

Medicines that aid nature are always most effectual. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy acts on this plan. It allays the cough, relieves the lungs, opens the secretions and aids nature in restoring the system to a healthy condition. Thousands have testified to its superior excellence. Sold by all druggists.

When given as soon as the croupy cough appears Chamberlain's Cough Remedy will ward off an attack of croup and prevent all danger and cause of anxiety. Thousands of mothers use it successfully. Sold by all druggists.

TURKS' YANKEE ADMIRAL HERE

Bucknam Pasha Aga'n Visits Land of His Youth.

FAVORITE OF TWO SULTANS.

Made Hit With Abdul Hamid by Reorganizing Navy and Balking Robbing European Contractors—Nearly Started Mohammedan Revolt by Failing to Salute French Flag at Algiers.

A short, squarely built man was a recent visitor to New York and Washington and registered at hotels as "R. D. Bucknam, Constantinople." That is the way Bucknam Pasha, vice admiral of the Ottoman navy, aid-camp and naval adviser to the sultan, puts himself down when he gets among his old friends. The admiral is, or was, an American. He has had a career of real adventure. Twenty-seven years ago he was a cabin boy on a schooner on the great lakes.

Ransford D. Bucknam was born in Nova Scotia in 1863, but his parents almost immediately moved to Maine. At the age of fourteen he felt the call of the sea and followed it to the great lakes, where he became cabin boy on a schooner whose skipper was his owner. The captain and his wife took a liking to the youngster.

At sixteen Bucknam went from New York as quartermaster of a schooner bound for the Pacific. When the little vessel reached Manila the captain and the mates died of cholera, and as the boy was the only person left on the craft who had studied navigation he went before a special examining board, got a master's certificate, became a captain at seventeen and brought his vessel home.

Captured Sultan's Fancy.

Bucknam had not made many trips across the Pacific before he was asked by the Cramps of Philadelphia to become their nautical expert. When the battleship Maine made her trial runs he was in command of her, and when the Cramps finished the Turkish cruiser Medjidia he was assigned to deliver her and sent to Turkey with a three months' contract to train her crew.

The Turkish navy had been a joke, at least since the battle of Navarino. Somehow Abdul Hamid took a fancy to the American sailor and asked him how he would like a job as naval advisor to himself at a princely salary. Bucknam asked for long enough leave to come home and get married. After a hurried trip to San Francisco he reported to the sultan on April 19, 1904. He started to put things shipshape so far as he could. It was not long before the sultan made him a pasha and admiral and conferred on him the order of Osmanieh and gave him a medal for distinguished service.

Report has it that Bucknam saved the sultan's life when an attempt was made to assassinate Abdul Hamid several years ago. While the sultan was returning to the Yildiz kiosk from the Hamidieh mosque a bomb thrown into the imperial escort killed scores of men and horses, rent the ground thereabouts and shook neighboring buildings. Bucknam Pasha stepped to the side of the sultan's carriage and shouted that he would lop off any hand that dared stretch forth toward the sultan. He walked, sword in hand, beside the carriage all the way to the palace. This act Abdul Hamid never forgot.

Balked Robbing Contractors.

Bucknam Pasha is the first Christian who ever had actual command of the Turkish navy. He won the sultan's favor by his honesty. It used to be the system, it is said, for English shipbuilders to get as much money as possible for ships as nearly worthless as the sultan's officers would accept. The sultan paid in one instance $1,650,000 and got in return an iron tub filled with junk, the whole worth perhaps $300,000. Of the money that went out of the sultan's purse his own officers got $1,200,000 and the contractors pocketed the modest sum of $450,000.

While bringing one of those new vessels around from the Atlantic Bucknam made a big hit with Mohammedans by neglecting to salute the French flag in Algerian waters. The Ottoman government had never recognized the French occupation of Algeria, and no Turkish ship had ever put into Algiers since the occupation.

A breakdown in his machinery late one evening off the Algerian coast obliged Bucknam to take refuge in the port of Algiers, which by careful timing he entered just before daybreak. Three times the French commander sent out word that he was ready to return to the Turkish salute. Bucknam's guns did not boom. The port commander came to the conclusion that the habitual worthlessness of Turkish warships extended to the guns of this vessel.

But the Mohammedans came out in small boats by the thousands to see and touch the ship of the one great free power still ruled by Islam's great caliph. They kissed the ship, they crowded her decks, they filled flasks from the sacred water that washed her sides, and they prayed. From far away in the interior faithful Mussulmans made a three days' pilgrimage by camel back.

ARMOR OF PARIS APACHE

French Bandit Wears Spiked Wristlets and Shoulder Straps to Tear Policemen's Hands.

Paris.—The Apaches of Paris, a band of assassins who know no law, hate the police and fight to the death when an attempt is made to capture them after they have committed a murder or robbery gave the overworked authorities great trouble during the excitement and suffering caused by the flood. One of those recently arrested was found to be protected against capture by the police in a clever but cruel manner. He was taken after a desperate battle and gave his name as Jaques Liabeuf.

It was found that he wore around his wrists bands of leather which were studded with brass spikes sharpened like needles. The same kind of armor was attached to his shoulders. When the policemen attempted to grab him their hands were torn into shreds by the spikes. He was armed with a murderous looking knife and a revolver, and had killed a policeman when arrested.

MEANS BIG LEGAL FIGHT

Arrest of Dr. B. C. Hyde in Swope Case Will Cause Court Battle.

Kansas City, Mo.—Great legal battles, both in the criminal and civil courts, are expected in the Swope case which has attracted wide attention throughout the country because of the prominence and wealth of the persons concerned.

Dr. Bennett Clarke Hyde, whose wife is a niece of Col. Swope, has been arrested on a charge of murdering the millionaire with strychnine. This assures a law battle in the criminal courts.

Then there is a likelihood of a fight among the heirs for the riches of the dead man. A young man has come forward with the claim that he is a son of the millionaire.

Dr. Hyde has filed one libel suit and withdrawn it, but probably will file another against the administrator of the estate.

Good Work Goes On.

William Rendell, for 40 years of the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, says that within his tenure public opinion on the proper care and treatment of animals has so changed that instead of two acts of parliament there are now upward of twenty which deal directly with the cruelty to animals. The branches of the society have increased from 20 to 620. The business of selling old, worn-out horses has been attacked for years by his society single-handed, but he now feels more hopeful. "We want spurious sports to be made illegal, private slaughter houses to be abolished, cruel exhibitions of performing animals to be stopped, with increased supervision to prevent overloading," he says.

Baby Gave Name to Home.

Yaddo, the Saratoga home from which Spencer Trask started on his fatal trip to New York, is one of the show places of the spa town. It derives its name from the utterance of a little daughter of the Trasks. When she crossed for the first time a rustic bridge over the picturesque sheet of water which lies near the home, she pointed and said: "Yaddo," which was as near as her baby tongue could get to the word "shadow," and she did not know that the childish utterance had given a name to the place.

QUEENS BAR CORSET

Three in Crusade Against Compressing Their Bodies.

Helena of Italy, Alexandra of England, and Elizabeth of Roumania Take Action Which May Spread to America.

New York.—A corset strike may engage the attention of the women after they have finished with the meat strike, for it is now considered "queenly" to go without the expensive and uncomfortable adornments, according to information received here.

Besides, stylish corsets are getting so long it is unpleasant to walk in them. Any girl will tell you that. And the longer they make them the more they cost. Any married man can tell you that the high cost of corsets has kept pace with the high cost of living.

But the main thing just now is that Queen Elizabeth of Roumania has concluded a triple alliance against the corsets. Three queens are hard to beat. In addition to Queen Elizabeth, there are Queen Alexandra of England and Queen Helena of Italy. All are bona fide queens who can wear what they please and afford to pay for it and have a vast burden of court etiquette to manage.

Queen Elizabeth told her court all about it a day or two ago. She received a letter from Queen Alexandra saying the latter had decided that a woman's dress should follow her natural lines. Even if these lines are inartistic that is no reason why a woman should endanger her health and posterity, says the queen.

The corset, opines Queen Alexandra, does not carry out the idea of natural lines in dress. On the other hand, it thwarts such an idea and gives the body a sort of a non de plume. It is a fraud, often a snare and delusion, and Queen Alexandra was anxious that her disapproval be published to the world.

It was this attitude of Queen Alexandra, according to Queen Elizabeth, that caused the former to invent the princess idea of dress, for which many shapely women are so thankful.

"Her majesty of England," went on Queen Elizabeth to her courtiers, "despises blouses, maintaining that the subdivision of the female body by the blouse and skirt is unbecomingly if not a downright sacrilege."

So Queen Elizabeth indorsed Queen Alexandra and then proclaimed some views of her own.

"The corset," she declared, "is an invention of man, not of woman. Most men judge a woman's beauty according to the standard of an expensive corsetmaker."

Queen Elizabeth forthwith wrote a pamphlet setting down her reflections on the subject and is having it circulated all over Roumania.

It was then that the queen of Italy became a part of the triple alliance. She gave away all her corsets—one for every gown—and wrote to Queen Elizabeth as follows:

"I am opposed to the corset on principle, because I think it unhygienic and directly injurious to women, particularly to mothers. Women who have studied the functions of the body will refuse to wear corsets. Only thoughtless mothers will imitate the habits of women still more giddy and allow their bodies to be squeezed tightly and their organs to be distorted."

Soul of British Empire.

The city of London proper, which lies in the heart of Greater London, has a living population of but 35,000 by night, although 300,000 people do business there by day, while all of the currents of British life pass through its portals. Here is the soul of the empire, with its population of 400,000,000, and of its area of 11,400,000 square miles, or more than one-fifth of the population and area of the globe.—Scribner's.

Well for Tourists to Remember. Cuba is vigorously enforcing collection of duties on the personal effects of passengers landing at any port of the island. This is a pointer for tourists to Cuba.
