Stand up for your own town. Men that pretend to be citizens that will get up and say that the young men of Preston are not citizens, are uncivilized and are cowards, must be pretty busy attending to business that doesn't interest them in the least. Besides these men are not old enough citizens to know circumstances. Therefore let them inquire and learn a little before they go to shooting off. People that talk that way reminds us of a dough nut stuck on two knitting needles and know just about as much. This trouble has been brewing for about four years and the boys have let them have their own way to see if the so-called citizens and officers would make an effort to stop such disgraceful acts of outsiders. Now as far as the boys not being citizens is concerned, on last Friday night, January 15, they stood up like citizens of these United States and protected their rights against these outlaws. If the citizens cannot protect their quiet little village from street fights (which take place in doors) and making night hideous by their profanity and vile epithets, the boys will proceed to do so if they do have to carry the name of being bullies.

Salem.

From the Salem Index.

Howard Greenlea is laid up with a badly poisoned arm. Mr. Adkins of Pawnee is serving as night operator.

A. S. Dagget, bought the resident property of J. S. Lord on west main street and will occupy the same after March first. Consideration $15,000.

Last Friday evening the Rebekahs installed officers for the coming year making Florence Leslie, noble grand; Mrs. Lee Snyder, vice grand; C. B. Snyder, secretary and D. C. Simmons, treasurer. District deputy Mrs. D. C. Simmons conducted the proceedings. After the new officers were installed an elaborate spread was served and an invitation from the Falls City lodge for next Wednesday night was accepted.

Rulo.

From the Rulo Register.

A furnace was just put in the D. E. Easley house where J. A. Hinkle lives. Mr. Winterbottom of Falls City did the job.

Mrs. Jefferies was called to Sheridan, Wyoming, the latter part of the week by the serious illness of her daughter, Mrs. Ida Brown.

S. Cooney of California and Agnes Winterbottom were married at the Catholic church this morning by Rev. Barnard Sproll. The groom is a comparative stranger here but has the appearance of a young gentleman of worth. The bride is an old resident and is highly respected in this community. We join with their many friends in wishing them a happy and prosperous career.

Last week Mike May disposed of his blacksmith tools machinery etc, to George Peabody. Mr. Peabody is a woodworker but for some time has been living a few miles northwest of town. He will do the wood work and John Holland, the efficient blacksmith, who has been employed for some time by Mr. May will remain at the forge. Mr. May has worked up a splendid business and has many friends who will be sorry to see him leave. He retains the building. We bespeak for Mr. Peabody a continuance of the success which has crowned Mr. Mays efforts.
