

The W. O. W. Unveil Three Monuments

On last Sunday afternoon the Woodmen of the World, with solemn ceremony, unveiled the monuments that mark the graves of Henry Beachel, F. A. Wylie and Albert Vavra. Woodmen from many of the surrounding towns were present to take part in the exercises and it is likely that many more would have been present had not the high water prevented.

At eleven o'clock in the morning a memorial sermon was preached at the Methodist church by Rev. Elmer Ward Cole, the congregations at the other churches having been dismissed in order that all might join in this service. Rev. Cole preached an able and scholarly sermon which was listened to with the greatest of interest by the many friends which he had made during his recent pastorate in this city.

In the afternoon the members of the Woodmen of the World and the Woodman Circle met at the hall and preceded by Harnacks Military band marched to Steele cemetery where the unveiling took place. The exercises were witnessed by a great throng of people who were greatly impressed by the solemnity of the occasion. At each of the three graves the form of exercises were carried out as prescribed by the ritual of the order and in each instance there was music by the band and selections from a quartet composed of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Mauger, Anna Dorrington and D. D. Reavis. When the monuments had been unveiled further exercises were held at a stand erected in the cemetery park. After music by the band Pearl Beatty recited, "Oh, Why Should the Spirit of Mortal be Proud?" Rev. Clark of Omaha then delivered an address in keeping with the nature of the occasion.

Current Press Comments.

It is Cracked.

The liberty bell is like Judge Parker in one respect—it is silent. There may be other points of resemblance, if we could only think of them.—Kansas City Journal.

Can't Say, Exactly.

Colonel Bryan's platform tells what democracy "would" do. It gives no assurance, however, what democracy "will" do.—Omaha Bee.

Roast Them Both.

The St. Joe News has discovered a new remedy for keeping your neighbor's chickens out of the garden—fry them. Whether this appetizing dish refers to the neighbors or the chickens is not stated.—Nebraska City Tribune.

Became Hilarious.

It is rumored that when Judge Parker read Mr. Cleveland's indorsement of him he locked himself up in his room and whispered three cheers up his sleeve.—Washington Post.

Work and Play.

If the energy of this county that is spent annually in trying to put a base ball over home plate were attached to the working end of a pitchfork during July, the haying season would amount to a little better than strenuous ennui.—Verdon Vedette.

Unphilosophical.

Philosophers who preach the doctrine of success to the American youth have a hard job cut out for them when they come to consider the case of a great politician whose success was conspicuously identified with unscrupulousness.

The Democratic Plan.

Grover Cleveland has no reason to be ashamed of having issued bonds to defray the current expenses of the government. It was the fool theories of his party that compelled him to do it. He could not run the government on the democratic plan without doing it.—York Times.

The Dark Horse.

It is problematical whether Bryan will control enough delegates to prevent the nomination of a reorganizer by a two-thirds vote of the St. Louis convention. It is certain, however, that the reorganizers will have strength to prevent the nomination of a Kansas City platformer. It may, therefore, be regarded as a sane pastime to figure on the identity of the dark horse that will be led out of the St. Louis stable.—Fremont Tribune.

Thrown from a Wagon.

Dr. George K. Babcock was thrown from his wagon and seriously bruised. He applied Chamberlains Pain Balm freely and says it is the best liniment he ever used. Mr. Babcock is a well known citizen of North Plain, Conn. There is nothing equal to Pain Balm for sprains and bruises. It will effect a cure in one-third the time required by any other treatment. We are still making special low prices on cured meats and lard.—Coupe & Thornton.
