THURSDAY TOPICS.

The regular meeting of the city council will be held this evening.

The 9-year-old son of Rev. Triebler of Fremont had an eye blown out by the explosion of a toy cannon at Arlington on the Fourth.

The lightning which accompanied last night's storm was very intense, but as yet no local reports of destruction have been received. The rainfall was nearly a half inch as measured by the government instruments.

The Fremont Herald thinks that by another year the dear children will require "breach loading, magazine repeating shot guns and rifles with genuine cartridges or gaiting guns on wheels" in order to appropriately celebrate.

The business at the telephone central office has become so great that an assistant operator is much needed. Manager Sprecher will go to Omaha soon to ascertain at headquarters what can be done toward securing the needed increase of help.

Pasewalk park will be open Saturday evening and the lessee, Esther Barnett, has arranged for a balloon ascension as one of the attractions. It is a pleasant place to while away a few hours and all citizens are given a cordial invitation to enjoy its pleasures.

The people of the city are quite generally complying with the edict of the city council concerning the trimming of trees and cutting of weeds. Where the order has been carried out the streets and yards are much improved in appearance and convenience.

Perry Black, an 18-year-old boy who lived about eight miles north of North Bend, was killed last Friday. He was riding a bicycle down a steep hill when it struck an obstruction and the boy was thrown off. A blood vessel was ruptured and death ensued in a few hours.

A number of people are objecting to having the Fourth extended a week or two, especially when its observance necessitates the firing of guns or cannon cracker at all hours of the night, when tired mortals are supposed to be enfolded in the embrace of Morpheus and enjoying a needed rest after a proper observance of the Natal day.

Rev. L. B. Carpenter, pastor of the M. E. church at Essex, Iowa, is in the city today. He came to take Burt Nicholls, an inmate of the hospital for insane, to his home in Shenandoah, Iowa. The officials have permitted the young man's removal although he is not yet recovered and it is feared he never will. The expectation is that he will be returned to the institution after visiting a while with his parents.

The story of the boy who can, while in a hypnotic state, see through people, examine their bones and locate diseases has about capped the climax and all the anxious public now has to wait for is the person who can see the conscience of an ice man, the heart of the average mule driver or the soul of a flirt, and while he is in search of the invisible he might be able to detect cash in the printer's pocket. When this can be done there is no need to try further.

The gasoline stove at the home of W.
G. Baker was the cause of some excitement yesterday afternoon. While Mrs.
Baker was filling it, the gasoline took fire and for a short time it looked dangerous for the house. This was saved by the quick work of Carroll Powers, who saw the trouble when passing, and running in, carried the stove with the blazing oil out of doors. Mrs. Baker's hands were quite severely burned by the flames, but otherwise no great damage resulted.

Norfolk will not be able to get the G. A. R. district reunion next year without making a bid for it and the meeting at G. A. R. hall tonight will perhaps definitely answer the question as to its location so far as Norfolk is concerned. Other towns realize its importance to business interests and will not leave the old soldiers go begging for a place to meet. To secure the reunion will cost the outlay of some time and money, but the benefits arising therefrom are worth many times the cost.

Reports recently issued by the war department show that the "Fighting First" Nebraska is deserving of the name, its record leading that of all other regiments that have taken part in the war of the Philippines. It has participated in 29 pitched battles, and lost 29 men killed and 160 wounded. Of 1,200 men who went to Manila upwards of a year ago, the number departing on the steamer Hancock, on Saturday, was 42 officers and 812 enlisted men. One deserter and 30 discharged were left behind.

An exchange is urging women who go to church to adopt the commendable action of removing their hats as they would at a theater or other entertainment. The suggestion is a sensible one, as people in the church are often as interested in seeing what is going on in front as though they are at an entertainment. It seems odd, anyway that a woman who will run all around the neighborhood bareheaded, should want to wear a hat in a public hall, church or other edifice where there is a public gathering.

The erection of the new sugar factory and raising of beets at Ames are making things lively in that portion of Dodge county. The steel frame work of the factory is up and the other work is being pushed by as large a force of men as can conveniently be worked. The building will be 100 feet high and 200 feet long when completed. In the beet fields a force of about 900 men and children are at work, some of the rows being two miles long. The beets are worked in gangs and each person has to do the same amount of work, as the workers must maintain a straight row with no lagging behind allowed, nor is it healthy to try and work ahead of the row, as the one who is ambitious is liable to be settled with after working hours by his co-laborers.

The Festival of Flowers will be repeated at Marquardt's opera house this evening and a good crowd will undoubtedly attend. Mrs. Day has been drilling those who take part, both in old and new features and with the experience of previous entertainments, it is safe to say that they are now pretty nearly perfect. The appearance of Miss Nellie Gercke, who filled a prominent place in Chicago musical circles during her stay in that city, and who will render some of her choice vocal selections tonight, will no doubt serve to augment the attendance considerably. Norfolk people entertain a lively recollection of her ability to please the musical ear and will scarcely miss the opportunity of giving her a royal reception home, nor fail to improve the chance of hearing her voice after receiving a season of critical training.

Street fairs are becoming very popular in many portions of the United States and it is something which almost any town or city can have at its command.
The Kansas City Journal says of the idea: "Street fairs have been very popular in many European cities and they have been greatly enjoyed by the inhabitants and visitors. The construction and decorations of booths are capable of very picturesque elaboration, and there is scarcely a limit to the variety of interesting displays and pleasant entertainment that can be offered the public by this means. At first glance, the street fair seems to be about the best idea that has yet been offered by the inventive geniuses who make Kansas City attractive to tens of thousands of visitors every October. The scheme is one that is bound to grow from the suggestions of the people, for everybody will be interested in it."
