The girl sat down with calm dignity, while Lord Donal dropped into his chair, an expression of complete mystification on his clear cut, honest face. Jennie slowly fanned herself, for the heat made itself felt at that elevated situation, and for a few moments nothing was said by either. The young man was the first to break silence.

"Should I be so fortunate as to get an invitation to the Schloss Steinheimer. may I hope that a red rocking chair will be allotted to me? I have not sat in one since I was in the States."

"Yes, one for you, two for the embassador," said Jennie, with a laugh. "I should like further to flatter myself that your double generosity to the embassador arises solely from the dignity of his office and is not in any way personal."

"I am very fond of embassadors. They are courteous gentlemen, who seem to have less distrust than is exhibited by some not so exalted."

"Distrust! You surely cannot mean that I have distrusted you, princess?" "Oh, I was speaking generally," replied Jennie airily. "You seem to seek a personal application.'

"I admit, princess, that several times this evening I have been completely at "And, what is worse, Lord Donal, you have shown it, which is the one unforgivable fault in diplomacy." "You are quite right. If I had you to teach me, I would be an embassador within the next five years, or at least a minister.

The girl looked at him over the top of her fan, covert merriment lurking in her eves.

"When you visit Schloss Steinheimer, you might ask the prince if he objects to my giving you lessons."

Here there was another interruption, and the appouncement was made that the United States embassador desired to renew his acquaintance with the Princess von Steinheimer. Lord Donal made use of an impatient exclamation more emphatic than he intended to give and general bad feelings from irregular utterance to, but on looking at his comhabits exist, that Green's August panion in alarm he saw in her glance Flower is a grand remedy. "Thank you so much. You have now used the best Java and Mocha in our an opportunity of retrieving your diplomatic reputation if you can postpone the interview without offending him.'

Lord Donal departed with alacrity, and the moment he was gone all appearance of languor vanished from Miss Jennie Baxter.

"Now is my chance," she whispered to herself. "I must be in my carriage before he returns."

Eager as she was to be gone, she knew that she should display no haste. Expecting to find a stair at the other end of the gallery, she sought for it, but found none. Filled with apprehension that she would meet Lord Donal coming up, she had difficulty in timing her footsteps to the slow measure that was necessary. She reached the bottom of the stair in safety and unimpeded. but once on the main floor a new problem presented itself. Nothing would attract more attention than a young and beautiful lady walking the long distance between the gallery end of the room and the entrance stairway entirely alone and unattended. She stood there hesitating, wondering whether she could venture on finding a quiet side exit. which she was sure must exist in this large house, when, to her dismay, she found Lord Donal again at her side, rather breathless, as if he had been hurrying in search of her. His brows were knit, and there was an anx-

"No; I am tired. I am going home. "I quite understand that, but you must come with me for a moment."

"Must!" she said, with a suggestion of defiance in her tone. "Yes," he answered gravely. "I wish

Then I will see you to your carriage, and when I return I shall endeavor to get that unlucky telegram from the duke by telling him I should like to find out whether it is a hoax or not. "My lord, excuse me." Lord Donal turned with an ill concealed expression of impatience, but he was helpless, for he feared his host might not have the good sense to avoid a scene even in his own hall. Had it been the duchess all would have been well, for she was a lady of infinite tact, but the duke, as he had said, was a stupid man, who needed the constant eye of his wife upon him to keep him from blundering. The young man whispered: "Keep right on until you are in your carriage. I shall ask my man here to call it for you; but please don't drive

"Call the carriage of the Princess von Steinheimer," said his master. Then, as the lady descended the stair, Lord Donal turned, with no very thankful feeling in his heart, to hear what his host had to say.

"Lord Donal, the American embassador says that woman is not the Princess von Steinheimer, whom he has met several times in London. He cannot remember her name. Now, who is she, and how did you come to meet her?"

"My lord duke, it never occurred to me to question the identity of guests I met under your hospitable roof. I knew the princess five years ago in Washington, before she was married. I have not seen her in the interval, but until you showed me the telegraphic message there was no question in my mind regarding her.

"But the American embassador is positive.

"Then he has more confidence in his eyesight than I have. If such a question, like international difficulties, is to be settled by the embassies, let us refer it to Austria, who held a long conversation with the lady in my presence. Your excellency," he continued to the Austrian embassador, who was bovering near, waiting to speak to his host, "my lord duke has some doubt that the lady who has just departed is the Princess von Steinheimer. You spoke with her and can therefore decide with authority, for his lordship seems disinclined to accept my testimony. "Not the princess? Nonsense! I know her very well indeed, and a most charming lady she is. I hope to be her guest again before many months are past."

"There, my lord duke, you see every thing is as it should be. If you will give me that stupid telegram, I will make some quiet inquiries about it. Meanwhile the less said the better. I will see the American embassador and

DON'T FORGET IT!

The surest way to keep the womanly health is to use Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription at the first symptom of local disorder. There is no other preparation, for the peculiar diseases of women, which has so great a hold on woman's esteem. "Favorite Prescription" differs from almost all other medicines offered for woman's ills, in that it contains no alcohol, and is absolutely free from opium, cocaine and all other narcotics. It promotes perfect regularity. It dries the drains which weaken women. It cures inflammation, ulceration, and female weakness. It soothes and strengthens the nerves, drives away despondency, and gives a healthy appetite and refreshing sleep. It makes childbirth easy, and nursing mothers will find in it a strength giving tonic. There is no substitute for "Favorite Prescription," because there is no other non-alcoholic and non-narcotic medicine for women which always helps and almost always cures. Don't let the dealer turn you aside from "Favorite Prescription" to any so-called "just as good" medicine. Women suffering from disease in chronic form are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter, free. All correspondence is held as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Replies to letters are sent in plain envelopes. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y. "I never courted newspaper notority," writes Mrs E. A. Bender, of Keene, Coshocton Co., Ohio, "yet I am not afraid to speak a good word for your 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Pleasant Pellets.' Over a year ago I suffered terribly for nearly four weeks with prolapsus and weakness. After using one bottle of 'Favorite Prescription' and one of 'Pellets' I was a well woman. I have taken no medicine since and have had no symptoms of my former trouble. Have used the 'Favorite Prescription' at different times for more than four years and find it has no equal."

Billousness and sick-headache are cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, the simplest and safest laxative for women.
