Postmortems and Prophecies By H. J. KYLE.

In the East, the football championship for 1914, now lies between (or among) Harvard, Princeton, Penn State and the Army, with odds slightly in favor of Princeton. Harvard took high honors easily, last year, but with Brickley out of the game, her chance to repeat is slender.

In the West, the teams that are still in the race are Wisconsin, Notre Dame, Minnesota, Illinois, Chicago and Nebraska. Should the Cornhuskers complete their schedule, without a defeat, their claim to the title will be as good as that of any other team, and perhaps better.

The victory of the Cornhuskers over the Lansing Farmers has thrown a very real scare into the Hawkeye camp. Coach Hawley isn't saying anything, but he's doing a lot of hustling. Iowa had hoped to wipe out the disgrace of last year's defeat, on November 21st, but she now feels that a job of considerable dimensions is in store for her.

Lincoln is on the football map in bold faced type this fall. The Cornhuskers are not the only dope-spillers in town, Lincoln High having made a clean sweep of her schedule so far. The Red and Black youngsters have met, and defeated, teams representing David City, Omaha and Hastings High Schools, and by decisive scores in every game. Harold Mulligan, a former Nebraska end, is coaching them, this being his second year at the job.

FOOTBALL TALK BY WALTER H. ECKERSALL

The Chicago Tribune Man Gives the Cornhuskers Honorable Mention.

(Chicago Daily Tribune.)
 The defeat of Yale by Washington and Jefferson, the victory of Syracuse over Michigan and the tie game between Harvard and Penn State were the three most important features of Saturday's football games, the result of which changed the championship situation in the east and west.

It was known that Washington and Jefferson would give Yale a hard game but few persons believed the eleven representing this college with an enrollment of about 300 would triumph over the Blue. Because of its victory over Notre Dame, Yale loomed up as a championship contender. Defeat eliminates the chance of any undisputed claim.

Washington and Jefferson is entitled to figure in the eastern race. Beaten by Harvard by only a single point, the team must be given consideration at the close of the season if it does not meet defeat in its remaining contests.

Hard Games Hurt Michigan.
 Michigan's defeat can be attributed in part to its hard schedule. The Wolverines have had to play hard football all season and the strain of constant training and practice has left the men in a demoralized condition. Coming right on top of the defeat by Syracuse is the game with Harvard on Saturday at Cambridge. As the Wolverines have been pointed to this contest since the season opened, they may play better football against the Crimson than they have at any time this season.

The defeat by Syracuse, however, detracts from the interest of the inter-sectional struggle with Harvard. It is to be regretted that the west will meet the best team in the east with an eleven weaker than its average. Indeed, the 1914 Michigan eleven cannot be said to be as strong as other aggregations in this section of the country.

Finds Penn State Tartar.
 Harvard struck a snag in Penn State, which played the Cambridge eleven to a standstill in all departments. Like Washington and Jefferson, the Quaker team is unusually strong this season and must be given consideration at the close of the season when championship laurels are awarded.

Princeton showed decided improvement by beating Dartmouth, 16 to 12. The result shows the Tigers should be a worthy foe for Yale and Harvard. According to reports there is plenty of material at Princeton, and the victory over the Hanover aggregation is just the thing needed to help in its rapid development.

In the west the victory of Nebraska over the Michigan Aggies stamps the Cornhuskers as every bit as strong as last season, when they were one of the claimants of the western championship. Nebraska's 24 to 0 victory was clean cut and decisive. The game was won on its merits and, like eastern teams, Nebraska must be given consideration at the close of the season.

The conference games resulted as predicted, but some of them were harder fought and closer than most persons expected. Chicago and Illinois won their games by one-sided scores, while Minnesota and Wisconsin were given hard games and won by narrow margins.

Badgers Forced to Limit.
 Wisconsin had to play all the football it knew to win from Ohio State.

7 to 6. The Badgers were forced throughout, and they will have to play a better brand of the gridiron game next Saturday to beat Chicago. The Buckeyes are not as strong as usual this season and Wisconsin undoubtedly held them too cheaply. The Badgers are strong this season and should be a different team when Chicago is met.

Iowa lost another close game and the fates seem to be against the Hawkeyes. Minnesota triumphed over Hawley's aggregation, 7 to 0, in a contest which was decided in the first period. Solon, who is one of the best backs in the west, crossed the line for the score which gave his team the victory.

Notre Dame recovered from its Yale defeat by trouncing South Dakota, 33 to 0. The Catholics displayed the right kind of stuff by coming back west for only two days' practice before they boarded the rattler for Sioux Falls, where this game was played.
