MANY HEAR SWEZEY AT OBSERVATORY

Lectures on "The Greatest Telescope in the World"—Observatory Open Two Mondays Each Month.

The Observatory was crowded last night by a large number of people for Professor Swezey's lecture on "The Greatest Telescope in the World." On the second and fourth Mondays in each month the Observatory has been opened to the public and views shown of different constellations and single bodies important enough to merit attention. The greatest telescope in the world is the one in the observatory on Mt. Wilson, but a new one is now building and when completed will far surpass the world's present greatest. The telescope on Mt. Wilson has a 60-inch lens and is of the reflecting type, but the new one which will be installed in the same locality will have a lens 100 inches in diameter. The new instrument is made possible by reason of the fact it is also of the reflecting type.

The astronomy department has for a long time been hampered by the crowded quarters and inefficient instruments, and for several years there has been an agitation to secure a new building and better equipment. Nearly five years ago plans were drawn up under the direction of Prof. Swezey and blue prints made by George Hedges, a student in the Engineering department, for a new telescope, and engineering students have completed the instrument as designed. With the exception of one casting, the whole instrument is the product of the College of Engineering.

A few years later a special tax began swelling a fund for University improvements and the hope was thus given that a new building would be built for the large telescope. Professor Swezey says that the new building is now assured and that its location will be on the farm campus where it will be placed some distance to the northwest of the Home Economics building. The proposed building is two stories in height and will furnish the much-needed room. In all probability the building will be in use by this time next year, and it is Prof. Swezey's hope that there will be the additional much-needed equipment to begin the year with.

The new building will be of light-colored brick and will cost $28,000.

CORNHUSKER BANQUET DECEMBER FOURTH

Proper Closing of Wonderful Season—Banquet Will be Staged at the Lindell This Year.

The plans for the Cornhusker Banquet are now being completed. It will be held at the Lindell Hotel December 4. Every Cornhusker looks forward to the Banquet as an evening of real enjoyment where the cares of college life are forgotten. Here the games of the season are fought over again and each man experiences a thrill as all the plays flash through their minds. Even after a fair season the Banquet is a great affair and after a successful season like the 1913, and especially the 1914 record, it is one of the biggest affairs of the year.

Last year the affair was held at the Lincoln and the Banquet room was crowded. Undoubtedly many ardent football enthusiasts will be turned away from the Lindell this year.

YOUNG FRESHMAN HAS BAD DREAM

Dreams That His Alarm Went Off and Hurries to Furnace—Fraternities Watch All Freshmen.

Never in the history of the school have the freshman contingent been so thoroughly subjugated in the fraternities as this year. Not only are their scholastic achievements watched with a jealous eye, but they are being taught their duty to society—said society being composed mainly of upper-classmen. The latest story illustrating this subjugation emanates from the A. T. O. house. It seems that the poor freshmen have been assigned the exalted position of firing the furnace. Not only that, but they have been thoroughly imbued with the necessity of efficient service, on pain of immediate extinction. The effect of this training culminated when a poor freshman dreamed that his alarm went and went down to fix the furnace, only to find that it was not yet 4 a. m.
