TUESDAY, DECEMBER 8, 1914

For it stirs the blood in an old man's heart;
And makes his pulses fly,
To catch the thrill of a happy voice,
And the light of a pleasant eye.
—Willis.

"Do your Christmas studying now," says the editor of the Minnesota Daily.

Would that all people had a sense of humor! Contrary to the beliefs of some, we do not lie awake at nights planning ways and means of molesting a certain worthy religious organization.

TRIVIAL LAWS

In the Lawrence strike of 1912 mobs paraded flags bearing the inscription, "No God, No Master." So the next winter the Massachusetts legislature, as legislatures will, passed a law that red flags be kept out of all parades. This they hoped would end one form of disrespect to God and the capitalists.

As sometimes happens, the wrong animal got in the trap. Says a recent decision of the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court: "The words of the statute are sweeping and make no exceptions in favor of political parties, social organizations, society, beneficiary or other associations." In fact, the words were so sweeping that they caught the Harvard crimson. The students now carry a white flag with a little red "H" in the center.

Presumably Massachusetts has satisfactorily disposed of all its important social problems and ambitious legislators are trying hard to find something new to regulate. We suggest that they decide whether tan shoes should be permitted at evening parties, whether it is permissible for women to accept presents from their men friends, and whether a man should wear a belt or suspenders.

Of course, if a legislature has a few unsolved problems on hand and realizes that adverse social conditions can be made less hard by earnest thought and action, we do not think they should take time to pass freak laws in an attempt to regulate trivial matters of conduct.
