GERMAN DRAMATIC CLUB GIVES PLAY

Will Present "Das Verlorene Paradies" January 15—Proceeds Will Be Turned Over to Red Cross

On Friday night, January 15, the German Dramatic Club will present "Das Verlorene Paradies," a three-act comedy by Ludwig Fulda. This is an annual event and one eagerly looked forward to by all lovers of German literature. No pains are being spared to make this production even more successful than those of previous years. An excellent cast has been chosen and altogether prospects are exceedingly bright for a brilliant event.

The plays given by the German Dramatic Club are of such a character as to excite the interest of not only those who are directly interested in German, but also all lovers of dramatic art. This was evidenced by the large attendance of non-German speaking people at the plays given in former years.

The proceeds of the play this year are to be turned over to the American Red Cross, which fact, coupled with the high class of the production, makes this an opportunity not to be passed by.

Bishop McConnell of the Methodist church has this to say for the University of Illinois: "More interest has been evinced in religious matters at the University of Illinois than at any other similar institution in which I have ever been privileged to speak."

KOSMET CHORUS MEET FIRST TIME TONIGHT

Temple Will Be in Charge of Songsters Until February 19—Acting Parts Are Now Well in Hand

From now on until February 19 the Temple building is to be the home of those unearthly yells and groans which rival even the chaotic conglomeration of sounds emanating from the School of Music. The Kosmet Klub chorus is going to begin rehearsals. At 7:30 tonight Professor Scott peels off his coat, grasps a baton firmly in one hand and the fun begins.

All the acting parts in the Kosmet show are well in hand, and tonight for the first time the world at large will have the opportunity of hearing those fascinating and tuneful melodies which Clifford Scott has prepared for this year's show. In a few days announcement will be made of the time for the tryouts for the Kosmet orchestra.

TEAM OFF TO IOWA

PLAYED THE SOLDIER TEAM LAST NIGHT

RESULT OF GAME UNKNOWN

The Editor of This Department Offers, in Lieu of the Story of the Real Game, a Story of What It May Have Been

By H. I. Kyle.

Manager Guy Reed and the Cornhusker squad of basket-shooters left yesterday for Fort Dodge, Iowa, where they are being entertained by the Fort Dodge Soldiers while I am writing this story. The men who made the trip are Captain Hawkins, Rutherford, Hugg, Meyer, Shields, Keifer, R. Theison, Millikin, and Nelson.

This paper will go to press before the game is over so that a discussion of the game is out of the question. However, that is a small, insignificant handicap to me, realizing as I do that my first duty is to amuse, and that plain facts, however commendable their use in everyday life, are seldom amusing. I shall now proceed to write the story of the game as it may have been played.

Cornhuskers Swamp Soldiers

Before a crowd of three hundred spectators, the Nebraska University basketball team humbled the local warrior quintet last night at the Armory. (I assume that a fort has an armory.) The playing of both teams was fast and spectacular throughout the game, neither side having much advantage until near the close of the struggle, when the Collegians, with a furious burst of speed, forged ahead to victory. Although plainly handicapped at first by their strange surroundings, the visitors, as the contest grew hotter, displayed flashes of team-work that dazzled their opponents and left the spectators breathless. The soldiers fought a hard, consistent battle, as becomes the upholders of the honor of Uncle Sam, but the odds were too great against them, and they went down to honorable defeat. They were allowed by their magnanimous conquerors to keep their weapons.

The final score was: Nebraska 31, Soldiers 20.

Tomorrow the story of the game as it WAS played will appear in this column.
