PROFESSOR GRUMMANN AT CONVOCATION

Illustrated Lecture Concerning Artistic Plans, Passed and Rejected by Art Censorship Board

The convocation was made especially attractive yesterday morning by the illustrated lecture of Prof. Grummann. He presented many artistic plans that had passed the censorship of the Philadelphia art commission, and also some models that they had condemned. The designs with which we are chiefly concerned were parks, building, and railroad yards.

Prof. Grummann emphasized the value of real art to any city, and pointed out that expense was not always necessary for the best art. He said "that a thing can be cheap and still be beautiful."

But he made another criticism that is of more importance to us. He said that people could travel through Lincoln for years and miss all real beauty of the city on account of crude railroad yards.

In spite of the excellence of this lecture there were but few to hear it. Students, who fail to hear such things as this really miss the "bigness" of college life.

SPOKE AT PRISON

PROFESSORS CALDWELL AND PERSINGER LECTURES WEEKLY

INTEREST AND APPRECIATION

Professor Caldwell States That Interest of Audience Fully Repays For Extra Energy Expended by Him

Professors Caldwell and Persinger of the History Department have lately opened another phase of University extension work by giving weekly lectures at the State Penitentiary. These lectures are attended by the inmates of the institution who are taking some of the educational courses offered by Professor O'Connell.

Professor O'Connell was lately appointed head of the educational instruction department of the penitentiary and is making great progress in the work. This work includes courses in the common branches and it has lately been thought advisable to add a course in American History. For this reason the University professors were called in and they have made the course so interesting, by the use of stereopticon views, that over a hundred and twenty-five are now listening to the lectures. Because of the interest in this course it is hoped that others will take instruction in the common branches, as this is one of the requirements for admittance to the history lectures.

These lectures are given Wednesday evening each week. This schedule was varied somewhat last Wednesday because of the poor car service, on account of the severe storm. Professor Caldwell started in plenty time to reach the penitentiary if the cars had been running regularly but the car took him but a short distance toward his destination. The remaining mile and a half the professor walked. This made him a little late in meeting his class but he expressed himself as fully repaid for the exertion by the great interest manifested by his new pupils.

The students of Syracuse University must pay a three dollar class assessment at registration. No student is allowed to register until his class dues are paid.

FOURTH SYMPHONY GIVEN TUESDAY

Date Has Been Changed From Thursday to Tuesday—Large Audience Expected

An convocation Tuesday the Fourth Beethoven Symphony will be given. After the long pause we have had this exceedingly bright and happy music will be gladly welcomed. Beethoven composed this particular symphony during the happiest period of his life, when he was engaged to be married and the future seemed bright and full of promise. It was not long that this joyful period lasted, but in this music we find no anticipation of the deep sorrow that was soon to cloud over his whole life.

GIRLS CLUB BOARD ENJOY LUNCHEON

Series of Saturday Afternoon Parties to Be Given—Semester's Work Planned Ahead

Yesterday noon luncheon was enjoyed by the members of the Girls' Club Board in the gymnasium class room, after which several important matters were discussed. A large number of plans were laid for the work and enjoyment of the Girls' Club during the ensuing semester.

The girls who were in school last year will be glad to know that at this time it was decided to begin a series of Saturday afternoon parties in about two weeks. All last winter these parties were conducted for the entertainment of all University girls who wished to come. There was usually a short program, after which the girls danced, played cards or games. These were continued until spring, the numbers attending being so large that it is not surprising that the custom is to be brought forth again.

Further announcements concerning them will be made later.

FRESHMAN MIXER SATURDAY NIGHT

Girls Will Meet in the Y. W. C. A. Rooms Before Mixer—Special Feature on Entertainment

Should Freshman girls have the retiring disposition that is such a virtue in the men of the class, they will be saved the embarrassment of entering the mixer Saturday night alone. All the girls that wish may meet in the Y. W. C. A. rooms in the Temple from twenty minutes before the hour to 8:00 o'clock. At the exact time of the opening of the mixer they will enter the Armory in a body, and from then on they will proceed to have a good time. The entertainment committee have given Miss Parks charge of the games.

"Special surprises await all those attending," is the dark hint of the refreshment committee.

Ohio Wants Dormitories

Recognizing the need for men's dormitories in the modern state university, a resolution was adopted by the members of one of the county clubs at the University of Ohio favoring the movement and pledging the support of the club's members and alumni.

THE LAST SEMINAR

HUSKERS HOLD LAST PRACTICE BEFORE WESLEYAN GAME

HYLAND CANNOT BE PRESENT

Was to Officiate Tonight—Negotiations in Progress With Lowman of Kansas Aggies as Paper Goes to Press—Odds on Wesleyan

Coach Stiehm received a wire from Mark Hyland, ex-Iowa, who was to have officiated at the Coyote-Cornhusker contest in University Place tonight, stating that it would be impossible for him to be present. Coaches Stiehm and Kline got together last night, with the result that negotiations were under way with Coach Lowman of the Kansas Aggies as the paper went to press. It was not known at that time whether he could come or not, making it impossible to state definitely who will preside at tonight's entertainment.

Yesterday afternoon the Cornhusker quintet went through the last practice prior to tonight's game. The re-arranged and rejuvenated team handled the inflated sphere with becoming dexterity and played the floor in whirlwind fashion. Team work was sure and consistent. There has been considerable shifting of the lineup during the last week, and the team which will meet the village pastors tonight will be made up quite differently from that which was defeated by the stalking Jayhawks two weeks ago. The lineup even presents a different appearance than it did earlier in the week. Gardner and Milliken will start at forwards, Shields at center, and Hugg and Sheldon at guards. As for the Wesleyan cast, it is composed of practically the same personnel as that which enacted the sensational third night appearance a year ago. Hughes is at center, with Hussey and Kline at forwards, and Johnson and Vifquain at guards. All are old men. Hussey did not occupy a regular berth last winter, although he participated in several of the important games, notably those with our own Huskers. He has developed into quite some basketball shooter, and is one of the men upon whom Coach Kline is placing especial dependence to ruffle the feathers of our heretics.

There is a certain stealthy rumor to the effect that in certain places out at the Peaceful Spot one can leave a certain amount under certain conditions, unbeknownst to a certainly large majority of the inhabitants of that puritan place, and that these certain supporters of Coach Kline's team will cover this certain amount with another certain amount twice as large as the one which you deposited. From which it may be inferred that Wesleyan is offering two to one money on "our team." Viewing the situation in the cold, merciless glare from the lantern of Madame Dope, two to one money is a fair bet, and denotes the relative chances of the two teams.

Coach Stiehm is reticent, saying little as to Nebraska's chances. He hopes that the changes in the lineup
