CAUSE OF THE WAR

PSYCHOLOGICAL REASON POINT-
ED OUT BY DR. WARREN MEZ

IS MAN'S FIGHTING INSTINCT

Intensely Interesting Address Given at Convocation—Question Is Viewed From New Angle

Man's fighting instinct is the underlying psychological cause of war was the gist of an address delivered by Dr. Warren Mez, Ph.D., of Munich, Germany, on the "Psychology of War and Peace" yesterday at Convocation. Doctor Mez said that each one of us has a natural desire to do things, to have a place in the world, to have a hand in running things. This desire is shown now by our economic struggles and our attempts to attain ease, riches, and culture. This is the outgrowth of the civilization which forbade individual combat. Because of this our fighting energy as individuals has been diverted into the struggles for the economic advantages of modern life.

This same natural desire is shown in the nation by that nation always working for a larger share of the commerce of the world, a new colony, or some commercial advantage. Doctor Mez went on to say that this was the way in which the fighting instinct of the nation should be exhibited and the method which modern civilization endorsed. "Of course," said the speaker, "just as we have cases where men resort to combat to settle personal strife so do we still have cases where nations have been unable to settle their differences by peaceable means."

The reason for this is that we have not gone far enough along the road which leads to the elimination of personal combat. "The world has progressed greatly in this, however," said the lecturer. "Today we have practically no fighting between individuals in civilized countries and comparatively few wars between nations. The present struggle in Europe is simply proof of the fact that men and nations forget their training at

Final Notice to Delinquents

Tomorrow is the last day that subscriptions to the Nebraskan will be credited on the new policy allowing a semester (or year) of the Nebraskan free of charge.

This will close the subscription campaign for this semester and opportunity is here taken to express the appreciation of the business management for the very able assistance of the following: Marie Cusack, Myrtle Beeler, Vivian Holland, Fannie Lane, Louise Coe, Lucille Leyda, Ella Williams, Camille Leyda, Doris Slater, Nellie Nissen, Bernice Thomas, De Witt Foster, Harold Neff, E. B. Scott, W. H. Anderson, Ed Bauman, Henry Pascale, Glen Stewart, Orville Buerstetta, Harold Holtz, and Will Locke. The help of these people had much to do with the success of the campaign. Loyalty to the Nebraskan may be shown in various ways, but no way more appreciated than this, and it is rumored that a Nebraskan dance may be staged in the near future at which these will be the guests of honor.

Lieut. R. C. L. Greer of Company G made a final grade of 90 in the examination for the cadet officers last Thursday. This is the highest grade in the regiment.

CAR SERVICE BADLY CRIPPLED BY STORM

Students Have Trouble Reaching City
From State Farm—Laws Engage In Friendly Snow Battle

On account of the snow storm the car service to the State Farm was sadly demoralized yesterday afternoon. Many of the students were forced to walk to town. One battalion was so fortunate as to catch an empty auto truck and so rode to their respective homes in style befitting an Ag student.

Class attendance has also been considerably lower than usual owing to the heavy snow. The law students have seized their opportunity and take hourly exercise in the manly art of snow-balling. At present the Freshman class seem to have the advantage in number of "hits" scored as well as battles won. The juniors are practicing in class, however, and claim that in a few days they will be sufficiently prepared to meet the underclassmen.

'PROM' TO BE SOCIAL FEATURE OF WEEK

Five-Course Dinner and Fine Music at Junior "Prom" Saturday Night—
Eight Tickets Yet on Sale

Arrangements for the Junior "Prom" Saturday, March 6th, to be held at the Rosewilde party house are now completed. The feature of the dance is to be the five-course dinner served before the dancing starts. The guests will be seated around tables decorated with lighted candles and shades and dozens of the prettiest flowers to be found, and with the light from the candles casting dreamy shadows the dinner will be served while the best quartette in the state sings enchanting music.

Another feature of the "Prom" will be the music, of both the orchestra and the quartette. While you eat and between dances the quartette will sing and give several original specialties, and during the rest of the time C. B. Scott's nine-piece orchestra will play the prettiest music ever heard at a University function.

The committee reports that only eight more tickets are to be sold, so if you intend to go you must get busy and buy your ticket today, as they will all be gone by tonight.

Remember, the time is Saturday night at seven o'clock sharp, the place is the Rosewilde Party House, the price is three dollars, and it is up to you to get the girl.

Senior Party Tomorrow Afternoon

Tomorrow afternoon in the Armory the Senior Class is going to pull off the first of a series of mixers in the shape of a Senior Party. This is going to be a regular old-time party in every sense of the word if the Black Masques are able to make it that. A number of novel stunts have been arranged for, a lots of "eats" are being prepared, and a large orchestra is going to be on hand to play the music for those who want to indulge in a few dances.

The whole affair is going to be as informal as it is possible to make it, the object being to see that everyone gets acquainted with the other members of the class. One of the reasons why the party is being held in the afternoon is to make it possible for everybody to come. Girls will not have to wait for dates. Just bring a quarter and a determination to have a good time and let nature take care of the rest, is what the committee says.

The small admission of twenty-five cents will be charged in order to defray expenses, and preparations are being made for at least two hundred. It looks as though the Seniors were determined to start early on the get-acquainted stuff in order to make future functions a success.

CLASS TEAMS PREPARE FOR FINAL CONTEST

Juniors and Sophomores Will Clash for Class Championship on Phi
Beta Kappa Day

The preliminary debates in the interclass series are now over and the two successful teams have settled down to the monotony of preparation for the final contest.

The Junior team, while composed of older men, are opposed by last year's victorious Freshman team, and a closely contested battle may be expected. The final debate has been scheduled for Phi Beta Kappa Day.

Phi Delta Phi

The legal fraternity of Phi Delta Phi met at the Phi Kappa Psi house last evening. In spite of the snow storm, a large number of the members answered to the roll call.

The regular business meeting was followed by an enjoyable social hour.

SENIOR OFFICERS

HONORS EQUALLY DIVIDED BE-TWEEN MEN AND WOMEN

THIRTY-ONE ARE APPOINTED

Spirited Contest Between Two Girls
for Position of Vice President—
Thirty Seniors Attended Meeting—List of Appointments

The Senior class officers were elected at the regular class meeting yesterday morning. President O. W. Sjogren gave out the list of appointments.

Thirty Seniors gathered at the call of their president for the first class meeting of the semester yesterday morning in the Mechanical Engineering building. After a short talk by President Sjogren, in which he thanked the Senior class for the office conferred upon him, the class settled down to business and ballots were taken for the minor offices.

A spirited contest between Misses Norma Kidd and Mildred Cuba resulted in the victory of Miss Kidd for the office of vice-president. The closest race, however, was between Misses Ella Williams and Zoe Hayes for the office of secretary. Miss Hayes won by one vote. Mr. R. O. Canady was nominated for class treasurer and was unanimously elected.

After the business of electing the minor officers was concluded, President Sjogren read a list of his appointments as follows:

Business Manager of Senior Play
Frank Perkins.

Ivy Day

Bob Simmons, chairman
J. A. Fillipi
Edythe Robbins
Alice Miller
Frances Tuthill
