TUESDAY, MARCH 9, 1915

There seems to have been nothing done by the committee in charge of University Night regarding a matinee on the afternoon of March 20. There has been only one argument offered against the proposition—that those putting on the stunts would not consent to an afternoon performance. There are at least a dozen organizations that are anxious to participate in this event and there is no reason why the committee cannot make it a requirement before finally passing on the acts that those producing them shall agree to give two performances. This is the only University event that is really representative. The admission is such that every student can afford to go. Why not give all an opportunity of attending? Last year in order to get tickets it was necessary to go through the wearisome process of standing in line an hour or so, and then many were disappointed. This year, if only one performance is given, hundreds of people who really want to attend will be unable to get seats. A University matinee is at least worthy of a trial.

A special number of the Nebraskan will be issued tomorrow dealing particularly with the religious phases of our University life. As a foreword we wish to say that this issue is not to be devoted to any particularly organization, but is designed to reflect the work of all religious groups connected with the University. This issue will also give particular attention to the coming Robins' campaign, which will be similar to campaigns that have been very successful in other schools.

THE FORUM

Hereafter all Forum articles must be signed by the writer. The name will be withheld if requested, but the editors must be informed in order that they may know that the article is written in good faith. The student body is urged to make use of this section and contribute their ideas upon topics of interest to the University public.

First Women's "Mixer" Proves Great Success

The first genuine mixer for the Oberlin women was held Thursday night at 6:30 in the women's gymnasium. The affair was given by the Y. W. C. A. and Anne Ramsey, social chairman of the association, was in charge. There was an unusually large attendance of women, so that the event was highly successful. During the first part of the evening several large circles were formed and various games such as "touch-ball" and "three-deep" were played. The latter part of the evening was spent in dancing. The evening ended in a rousing "Alma Mater."—Oberlin Review.

TRIBUTE TO BENDER

baseball players do in practice before the game is called.

In his senior year he won the last football game of his career almost single-handed. It was against Illinois, and the final count was 16 to 11 in Nebraska's favor, and Bender made two of the touchdowns after runs of 85 yards and 50 yards respectively.

He also won the last baseball game in the spring with a home run in the 13th inning after two men were out. He was captain of both teams.

Speed in Uniform Marvelous.

He took considerable track work, but never scorched the track. He couldn't do the century under 10:4 and was defeated by men that he could run and hide from in a football suit. He was defeated in the hundred by the Minnesota quarterback in the spring, and that fall the quarter picked up a fumble and had 15 yards start and Johnnie caught him before he got 50 yards. Later in the game Bender nabbed a blocked kick and ran away from the quarter, who was almost on top of him at the start.

After graduating he played with Little Rock, in the Southern League, and coached athletics at Spearfish Normal, in South Dakota, after the season closed. The following season he was with Omaha and came out to Washington State in September, where he was successful for two years. His most noted achievement was the defeat of St. Louis University, which had "cleaned up" the Middle West under the leadership of Coach Ed Cochems.

Bender had hopes of becoming coach at Nebraska, but here is where his unknown enemy beat him out of the position by whispering to the member of the board.

Alma Mater Defeated.

But he laughs best who laughs last. Bender found that the Haskell Indians were scheduled to play Nebraska at Lincoln, so he coached Haskell and walloped Nebraska 16 to 5 on their own carpet, which isn't done very often.

He surely had demonstrated his ability. But no! The secret enemy still controlled the board, so he went to St. Louis University, where he produced teams that defeated the Haskell Indians twice, Missouri University twice and held Syracuse to 0 to 6 in 1910 and 6 to 6 in 1911.

By this time he had learned the identity of his secret enemy. He knew he could not hope to become coach at Nebraska so long as his enemy was on guard, so he returned to Washington State.

Two schools in the Missouri Valley conference, of which Nebraska is a member, are seeking coaches. Nebraska defeats them regularly.

Wouldn't J. Rhinold Bender enjoy taking hold of either of them and taking a fall out of alma mater? Here's hoping he has the chance!

"During the courtship, yes," rejoined the bald-headed man with a sigh, "but after marriage she is more likely to grab a handful."—Exchange.

SORORITIES AGAINST MID-WEEK DANCES

At Special Meeting Yesterday Sororities Went on Record as Opposed to Mid-Week Dances

At a called meeting of the sorority girls, Dean Graham discussed the question of mid-week dancing parties. It was unanimously voted that all sororities should make a stand against any mid-week dance.

At frat meeting, Monday night, the various representatives brought before their chapters a motion to the effect that no sorority girl would attend a mid-week dance.

If sorority girls persist in the attendance at week night dances, drastic measures regarding the renting of hall will be adopted. The halls which are used for mid-week dances cannot be used by any University group, if at these dances the University students are conspicuous.

University of Pittsburg.—The University of Pittsburg has mappel out for itself a very busy year in an athletic way. The Pitt boys will play fifteen ball games in the spring, will mix up in six track meets and play eight big football games in the fall, as well as mingling in some tennis, swimming and basketball matches.

Many complaints are being raised because the students are inclined to make "Get Acquainted" parties out of chapel. It is asserted that instead of going immediately to their seats upon entering, as is customary at other religious services, they crane their necks until friends are located. They sit in the back seats and keep up a disturbing chatter during the whole ceremony.
