And now they are going to try to make University Hall look young by giving it a coat of green paint.

CAPS FOR ALL

Someone has suggested that probably the Freshmen would wear their green caps if the other classmen also wore class caps. Such a suggestion is in keeping with the situation and we feel confident that if it would help to better establish the green cap tradition many of the upper classmen would not hesitate to join the throng.

Why not then, have the Seniors wear a white felt crusher, the Juniors a scarlet headgear and the Sophomores, whatever was appropriate.

If those in authority had ever thought that the library would be so crowded they would no doubt have built a larger one. The "full house" is an indication of prosperity anyway.

AND AS YET

"And as yet we have no suitable room where male students may congregate," says the editor of "Student Life," the official organ of Washington University of St. Louis. It is in order to add that the male Cornhuskers have been thinking the same thing for a long time.

Yes, a school in the south has a "Yi-Ki-Ki" club. But how long will they have the most novel name?

One great desire of many students will now be fulfilled—they will be able to hear and see "Billy" Sunday.

THAT LUNCHEON

In order to have everything in ship shape for the "Football Luncheon" a week from tomorrow noon, the girls are allowing no delay. Nothing like an early start.

HOUSEKEEPING COURSE

University of Washington Gives Practical Study—Five-Room Cottage Located on Campus

University of Washington, Oct. 15.—Theoretical and semi-practical study of housekeeping at the University of Washington is to be supplemented shortly by actual practice in home management in a five-room cottage on the campus. Girls studying home economics will become residents in the cottage for periods of two months or so, and will be instructed in the arts of the housekeeper.

Not more than four or five girls will be able to reside in the house at one time, but by careful rotation, all of those registering for the course in home making will be given an opportunity for experimentation in the management of the cottage, and their achievements will be studied by the class as a whole.

Home decoration will occupy that attention of the students during their early residence in the cottage, and from that they will go to the planning of meals and supervision of general housework, under the constant direction of a member of the home economics faculty, Miss Francis Haverlo.

Observatory Open

The observatory and the telescope will be available to the public on Friday evening, October 15, for a view of the moon. There will also be a short talk with lantern slides at 9 o'clock, and this custom will be followed throughout the winter. The first lecture will be on "The Starry Heavens," before and after which the telescope will be in use. But if the evening is cloudy, the date will be postponed and announced at the proper time.

Raising the Dairy Calf

The best practices in the care and management of the young dairy stock are discussed in Bulletin 149, just issued by the Nebraska Agricultural Experiment Station. "Raising the Dairy Calf" is the title of this bulletin. The author has endeavored to give explicit directions for the successful feeding of the skim milk calf in the hope that more dairy calves will be raised in Nebraska.

The author discusses the need of more dairy calves and the kind of calves it pays to raise, the feed required to raise a calf, the best methods of feeding skim milk, grain, hay, and silage, and the prevention or treatment of calf scours. Practical rations are given for calves of different ages.

This bulletin may be obtained free by any resident of Nebraska upon application to the Agricultural Experiment Station, Lincoln, E. A. Burnett, Director.

Sixty-seven girls have signed for the swimming class. The class will meet at the city Y. M. C. A. pool on Tuesdays from 10 until 1 o'clock, and will be supervised by Miss Ina Gittings, Miss Dorothy Baldwin and Miss Marie Clark.
