HUSKERS READY FOR THE HOOSIERS

BIG CROWD EXPECTED TO WITNESS CRUCIAL GAME

PRACTICE SEEN BY AIR SCOUT

More Secret Practice Being Held—Coach Stiehm Polishes Off Squad—Possible Surprise in Store for the Catholics

There is no football story today. Enthusiastic fans who have been following the accounts of practice written up in these columns from day to day are asked to bear with our reporter for failure to procure anything new on this subject.

There is something new to tell, but the reporter was strictly unable to find out what it is. The "Stiehm" pressure brought to bear upon the Cornhusker "Stiehm" engine has now mounted to 175 pounds and something is bound to explode soon.

The reporter hung around the gates of the athletic field all yesterday afternoon in the attempt to pick up something which would surprise the Nebraska public, but the gates were closed and guarded by a stern faced youth and the reporter soon grew tired of watching operations through at knothole in the fence.

Public opinion has it that the wily Jumbo is "learning his pupils a new trick." He is keeping it secret and evidently intends to spring it on the audience Saturday afternoon for the purpose of relieving the tension and gaining ten yards. The coach has taken account of an aeroplane which has been circling overhead this week and which some believe is flying the Notre Dame colors, but although it is undoubtedly a war aeroplane, authorities agree that it is sailing too high to be able to detect the joke that the Huskers are going to pull.

It is evident that Mr. Stiehm wants to show the Hoosiers as good a time as possible when they come so we will not try to find out his secret, but give his warriors a clear field Saturday in which to work it out successfully.

TOOK GEOLOGICAL TRIP

Five Students, Under Prof. Schramm, Experience Valuable Trip—Examine Mineral Products

A party consisting of K. K. Kimball, Alfred Beck, Adrian Scott, S. O. Johnson and Arthur Mickey, under the leadership of Prof. E. F. Schramm, made a six weeks' trip to the Black Hills last summer for the purpose of Geological explorations.

The party left Lincoln on June 15 and their first stop was at Crawford. Here they studied the geological sections in the vicinity of the town. Then they proceeded to Orella, where they spent four days in collecting fossils and measuring sections in the Bad Lands. They collected a large number of excellent fossils there. Crossing the state line, they next stopped at Edgemont, S. D., where they studied cretaceous formations and also artesian water conditions.

From Edgemont the party went to Newcastle, Wyo. Here they were entertained by the Cambria Fuel company. They studied the surface formations in the vicinity of Cambria and measured numerous sections. The boys were taken through the coal mines by I. H. Young, chief engineer of the fuel company. Later they studied the surface workings and these were explained to them by Superintendent C. V. Westover and Mr. W. Schoonemaker, treasurer and secretary of the company. Mr. Schoonemaker has a son in the University of Nebraska.

The next stopping place was Hot Springs, S. D., where they studied the travertine and gypsum deposits and also visited Wind Cave. Topographical and geological maps of the region around Hot Springs were made. The people of the town were very hospitable. Mr. Gillespie, member of the town board and who has a son attending school here, took especial interest in the boys. From here they went to Custer, S. D., and there the United States government officials gave them a forest ranger camp to establish their permanent quarters. Here they studied mica, tourmaline, rose-quartz and the iron mines. They also visited the gold mines at Hill City. There they met Mr. D. A. Shoemaker, who is now a student here but was then a United States Forest Guard, stationed at Hill City. He did all he could to make the stay of the members of the party comfortable while they were in this part of the hills.

Next they visited Deadwood and Lead. At Deadwood they were entertained by the Deadwood Commercial club and by the Homestake mine officials. The rules at the latter mine do not allow visitors to inspect the underground workings, but in the case of the Nebraska boys the officials broke the rule and showed the party through a large portion of the mine. Mr. G. A. Yates, '89, chief engineer of the Homestake mine, personally conducted the party and explained the machinery and methods of mining. He also conducted them through the stamp mills, cyanide plants and entire surface workings. At Deadwood, the party was also entertained by Mr. James Russell, head of the United States assay office there. In this office the boys came in contact with real gold bricks. The estimated value of these was about $20,000. Mr. T. H. Russell has one of the finest and largest collections of gold nuggets in the country and the boys were given an opportunity to examine this collection. The party also paid a visit to the establishment of L. W. Stillwell

LAW COMMITTEES APPOINTED

New Executive of Senior Law Class Makes Announcements—Special Offices Created

Miss Theodosia Trehearne, who was yesterday chosen president of the Senior Law class, was escorted to the platform today, after the 10 o'clock class, amid the universal demand for a speech. She responded nobly and before closing made the following appointments:

Orville Chatt, "keeper of morals" and first assistant absence recorder for Judge Sam J. Tuttle. It will also be his duty to sit with the faculty on the board of censorship to pass on Senior Law songs.

Guy C. Chambers was appointed choirmaster, with Wilson Delzell as his first assistant.

Miss Edie Cover is to be class stenographer, whose duty it will be to supply the class with Corporation Law cases.

and visited the Spearfish Normal school. Later they went to Belle Fourche and from there drove in an automobile to Devil's Tower, which is a large laccolithic mass. There they also studied the structure of the Sundance mountain. The laccoliths of this region are known the world over as type illustrations.

In the trip they measured numerous sections and made a number of maps. They also studied a large variety of minerals and rocks. From the standpoint of variety of minerals the region of the Black Hills is the richest one hundred miles square in the world.

While the party was at Hot Springs, S. D., they took a side trip to Buffalo Gap and studied the Unkpapa sandstone and the petrified forest and collected numerous fossils. The boys made large personal collections of rocks, minerals and fossils.

The entire party returned on August 1. They all consider the trip worth repeating.

OLYMPIC TRY-OUTS HELD LAST NIGHT

OLYMPICS WILL BE A "BATTLE FOR BLOOD"

LOT OF FRESHMEN MATERIAL

Both Classes Extremely Confident—Lightweight Wrestling Matches the Feature—Innocents Had Charge of Affair

A wealth of material for the coming Olympics was in evidence at the Freshman and Sophomore try-outs held last night in the Armory under the auspices of the Innocents. Cider and doughnuts were an appropriate conclusion to the festivities of the evening.

The Freshman class showed an abundance of material. There were contestants for every event. The Sophomore class was not so well represented as many of their best men are playing football, and will not be permitted to impair Cornhusker chances by taking part in the Olympics. There are to be only two classes in wrestling and boxing, the lightweight class of 135 pounds and under, and the heavyweight class of 165 pounds and over. One thing is certain, "the Olympics will be a battle for blood," as one of the Innocents put it.

Sophomore Try-Outs

The big event in the Sophomore try-outs was the lightweight wrestling match between Adrian Brian, of Columbus, and Alfred Scheibel, of Campbell. Brian secured a fall in about three minutes. Joseph F. Creedon, of Omaha, lost the lightweight boxing match to Adrian Brian on points. Mac O. Paul, of Omaha, and Milton J. Keegan, of Alliance, were the only contestants in the heavyweight wrestling and heavyweight boxing events, respectively. Everett Angle, president of the Sophomore class, was very well satisfied with the prospects, declaring "Our chances are more than good. We have all the chance in the world."

Freshman Try-Outs

The lightweight boxing was the first event on the program in the Freshman try-outs. There were four entries. Clason, Welch, Fletcher and Bruce. Fletcher and Clason boxed first in a very uneven contest, Fletcher winning

ARTICLE TO BE TRANSLATED

Permission Asked to Publish Article in a French Magazine—Appeared in Midwest Quarterly

M. Rene Kerallain, a French man of letters, has asked permission from the Mid-West Quarterly to translate the article by Mr. Charles Kuhlman on "Pacifism and the French Revolution" for the Revue Generale du Droit. He writes: "Let me say in passing that your Mid-West Quarterly is very interesting to me. Only I am surprised at the place that France occupies in this number. To say that in the Far West people concern themselves with Theophile Gautier, the Jacobin club, as though they lived at the time of Madame de Stael, when they have to do daily with the Missouri and the Mississippi, this seems to me almost unreal."
