It is really too bad that some of the recent high school graduates can spend but half a semester with us. It is said, and no doubt truthfully, that they alone are responsible for their short University career.

Now that we know the mixers to be an assured success would it not be well to "get busy" on the proposition of providing more spacious quarters? Let that be a part of the University extension plan.

Now for the basket ball season. Who will make the team? Again we turn our eyes to the "Monarch."

The Cornhusker staff will spend the Thanksgiving vacation at work on YOUR book. What will you do? Let us suggest that you arrange to have your picture taken or that you take some snapshots so that the staff will not be obliged to run some "better than nothing" material at the last minute. YOUR book depends very much upon what YOU do for it.

The Texas Magazine refers to the "Human Fly" as "a person possessing the quintessence of 'botheraciousness.' He who is so annoying that when he is around, you long with all the ardor of your soul for a human fly swatter. He is the man who, when you are straining every nerve to grasp the point of a lecture, interrupts by leaning confidentially in your direction and remarking on the status of the weather, the series, the girls, or anything that may be uppermost in his mind." Quite right.

and smoothly down through the line, sidestepping here, dodging there, pulling his foot out of this trap and knocking that man over until with a clear field before him, he runs smoothly down the field and sinks down between the goal posts. It looks easy, because it is done with ease. He can send a forward pass with perfect accuracy, as far out as the fastest end can travel for it, and he can pick one of the air as easily.

His defensive work is marvelous, and more than once he has pulled down a runner from behind when he had eluded the Husker backfield. The sensation in western football, and there are few, if any, wing players in America who can claim superiority over him.

He has another term next year. He will have to play without Dick Rutherford, the man who is largely responsible for making way for his long runs, but he will have big "Tim" Corey, and Shaw, and Otoupalk and Riddell over on the other end to balance things up, and he will make the same old gains—perhaps bigger ones.
