is Great Stock Producing State.

Notwithstanding the fact that Nebraska is one of the greatest stock producing states in the union, it is not a great shipper of "live ones," as shown by a report of the state live stock commission, which has just been made public. Nebraska produces scores of thousands of cattle, hogs and sheep every year, but they are shipped to South Omaha and when they leave there they go as dressed meat products. The report mentioned shows that aside from dairy and breeding stock, this state shipped only 7,338 cattle from April 1 to November 1 of this year. The number of head of swine shipped was only 790 and of sheep only 317.
