VOTER, BEWARE!

Beware, because at the coming election you have before you a task of great importance, the result of which concerns not only your class, but the whole school as well. You must select two future editors of the Cornhusker.

The Cornhusker is primarily a university publication. By it, more than by any other publication, the school will be judged. It must compare favorably with the annuals of the best schools east and west.

It must be unique and artistic. It must be complete and representative of all interests. It must be distinctive, and a masterpiece of rhetorical finish.

Is the man for whom you are about to vote the best qualified to secure these results? Has he sufficient originality to turn out a book different from any we have ever had? Has he artistic taste that will make the work in every detail pleasing to the eye? Has his activity in the university been such as to make him acquainted with its every interest? Is he impartial and just to all with whom he may be forced to deal?

If he does not come up to these requirements, do not vote for him, even though you have promised him that you would. A vote for a poor man for these offices is a knock on the school.

THE CAMPAIGN AGAINST NOISE

Our campaign against Lincoln's noise is not abandoned merely because we give front page space to what we believe is of more immediate moment to the students. We intend to continue; we hope to determine whether there is good reason why Lincoln should not grant these requests, and if there is not, to humbly tell the people of the state how things stand.

Will the trade with the engine yard be consummated? If not, why not? Why are those who should take the initiative in the matter of paving not doing so? Why can't the Tenth street cars run on Ninth street?

In connection with these inquiries there are other matters which show a still more glaring neglect on the part of the city. These, too, will be the subject of inquiry.

No, we have not given up the cause.

CO-OPERATION CARRIED TO AN EXTREME

The present subscription campaign is a general one; it is not confined to the organizations you see listed on the front page. It is true that one of the two prizes offered is to the house having the largest per cent of its members subscribers; but this is not because we wish to play to those organizations, but for the reason that they are the poorest supporters of the Nebraska. We are concentrating the attack where the opposition is strongest.

Co-operation and mutual aid—the purposes for which the fraternities are organized—are commendable ideals. But when co-operation is carried to the place where the whole fraternity reads one copy of the paper, it seems to us to be painfully extreme. We trust that our point of view is made clear, and that the organizations will give us due consideration.

The debating societies of the university have petitioned the regents for a debating coach. The societies are unanimous in the opinion that a coach would better debating at the university, but a lack of funds forced them to call upon the regents to pay the salary of a coach.

Edwin J. Robinson Dies

Edwin J. Robinson, C. E. '84, one of the earliest engineering graduates in active practice, died yesterday morning in Chicago following an operation for acute appendicitis.

Mr. Robinson has been Engineer of Valuation for the C. B. & Q. R. R. for the last three years, and spent most of his time in the employ of the Burlington. He was, however, interested in mining work in Missouri for some time. Before becoming Engineer of Valuation, he made his home in Lincoln.

Engineering students will remember him as one of the principal speakers at the banquet of the university engineering society in 1914.

Fine Freshman Bust

While it is highly probable that many people do not have a proper appreciation for things artistic, yet it would be well to see the fine work of art recently mounted upon a pedestal between the Administration building, and the Library. This pedestal, which ordinarily serves as a sun dial, has quit telling inquisitive people the time of day in order that it might assist in holding up to view a superb bust of "The Freshman" executed in a quaint fashion.

The sculptors have done quite a nice piece of work in this bust. The eyes are a deep purple, the nose aquiline, and the hair, which is the crowning feature, a fine shade of green. This hair is believed to have been gathered from a near-by pine tree, as it closely resembles pine needles. Though the sculptors did not sign their name to the work, yet suspicion points strongly toward Vivienne Holland and Ted Metcalf, who were observed in the vicinity shortly before the bust came into existence.

Kitty Gives Milk Freely

During her first lactation period, which recently closed, Kittle Gerben Lincoln, the seventh calf of Katy Gerben, the noted Holtsein cow of the College of Agriculture, produced 4,114 pounds more milk (containing 246 pounds of butter fat) than her mother during her first milking period. In 365 days, Kittle gave 14,878 pounds of milk containing 585 pounds of butter fat. The average test of the milk was 3.91 per cent butter fat. In addition, she gave birth to a bull calf which weighed 1,065 pounds at the age of one year and was estimated to be worth $500.
