

CHANCELLOR URGES GIRLS' ATHLETICS

ADDRESSES RALLY AT ARMORY YESTERDAY FOR TOURNAMENT

Several Girl Leaders Speak of Coming Meet on Saturday Night for Class Championship

A girls' basketball rally was held in the Armory at convocation Thursday. After a few announcements by Professor Grummann, Louise Brownell, president of the Black Masques, took the chair.

Chancellor Avery, who was the first speaker, said: "It is time women should give particular attention to the particular place physical education should take. If women want other things, they must express themselves in a frank dignified way." The four things women need most in the university are a social center, dormitories, closer connection with the girls at the Farm in the Home Economics department, and most of all, better athletic facilities. The American woman surpasses that of all other countries in poise and equilibrium, but she is inferior in health. Chancellor Avery said that he would like to see the sentiment for more athletics develop, and he brought before everyone to help the future generations, if it cannot be accomplished for the present.

Edna Froyd, president of the Girls' club, told of the necessity of cheering and the dependence of the girl players upon this form of support as much as the men. She urged each girl to help make her team confident. Dorothy Ellsworth sang two songs, and Miss Ina Gittings, head of the Physical Education department, told the girls of the record of the varsity team, since the organization of girls' basketball twelve years ago. She said that the life of any sport is in the competition. The competition of the class teams has been keen. Basketball is not free but organized play with competition. Miss Gittings urged the audience to support the team and the university Saturday night, and said that through the co-operation and interest of the girls, the possibility of varsity athletics might be renewed.

Dorothy English gave a whistling solo, and the captains of the different teams each expressed their confidence in the victory of their team.

First Robin Visits Campus

Caroling forth the tidings of spring and the mating season, the first robin of the year visited the university campus yesterday. Miss Frances Pierce espied the red-breasted warbler in a tree just south of the main entrance to University hall.

The robin chirruped around the university awhile, and then flew off toward the farm campus. He may have been a bit premature, and may have difficulty finding the more deadly fe-

UNI. NIGHT STUNTS ARE SELECTED

Committee Headed by Chittick Approves Ten Sketches

The University Night committee, headed by Martin Chittick, has accepted ten "stunts" for the program to be given at the Oliver theatre March 4. In selecting the "stunts" the committee considered the number of people taking part, the time of the sketch, its originality, and whether or not it required a stage setting.

These organizations will be represented: Agriculture club, Sigma Delta Chi, Glee club, Physical Education girls, Palladian and Union societies, Cadet band, Phi Delta Phi, Wrestling team, Pre-medics and Engineers.

While the committee is still open to conviction, it has practically decided that no attempt will be made to give a matinee performance, but that all energies will be bent toward making the evening performance a success. All suggestiveness will be barred from the program.

WHITTEN TO HELP REDUCE NOISE

COMMERCIAL CLUB SECRETARY DENIES DEAL WITH ENGINE CO.

Thinks Street Car Traffic Can Be Reduced by a Change in Car Schedules

W. S. Whitten, secretary of the Lincoln Commercial club, has denied that the club had ever appointed a committee to negotiate a trade between the city and the Rumeley people, as Mayor Bryan stated when recently interviewed, but said that the engine people had succeeded in getting trackings at Ninth and R streets, in a talk with a Nebraskan reporter yesterday. "I don't know where the mayor got that idea, unless it was because I had personally seen him about the matter," said Mr. Whitten.

The Nebraskan was invited to send a representative to put the proposition up to the club at the board meeting this noon. In regard to the worthiness of The Nebraskan's campaign for less noise, Mr. Whitten gave the assurance that the Commercial club always had been good friends of the university, and stood ready to do what it could do to further Nebraska's interests. He was a little skeptical at first as to the heritage offered the

THE PLAY'S THE THING TONIGHT

KOSMET KLUB PRESENTS ANNUAL PLAY AT OLIVER

Dress Rehearsal Held Last Night—All Ready for Performance— Seats Selling Fast

"The play's the thing" for the university tonight, for the Kosmet Klub play, "The Knight of the Nymphs," is ready to be presented. Weeks of rehearsal, under the enthusiastic coaching of Prof. R. Scott, the shedding of not a few tears by some of the girls connected with the play, the conquering of disappointments and the overcoming of vexations, have resulted in the rounding out of a play that has been declared to be the best in conception and realization ever attempted by the Klub.

From the box office at the Oliver comes the word that the seat sale is brisk. Yesterday the tickets were taken off reservation that had not been paid for, throwing open to the public a number of good places.

Dress rehearsal of the piece was held last night at the Oliver, the first rehearsal of the orchestrated music taking place the night before. A perfect dress rehearsal would mean a poor performance, so stars and composers and players were glad last night that there were still a few rough spots. These were few and far between, however.

C. LeRoy Meisinger, Jean Burroughs, Paul Raver, musical composers, and Maurice Clark, who wrote the book, are non-committal as to the probable success of the piece. Those who have watched the work of Jacl Elliott, Gertrude Munger, Sid A. Hoadley, Robert Reasoner, Ellsworth Moser, Ray Doyle, and who have seen the dancing in the second act, have said that "The Knight of the Nymphs" will more than "get across."

"AWGWAN" BANS SUGGESTIVENESS

Staff Announces that Jokes Will Be Clean Hereafter

The staff of the Awgwan has announced that no more suggestiveness will appear in the columns of the magazine. This determination was reached at a meeting of the staff early this week. Criticisms by a number of the university people that the humor of the Awgwan was at times more slap-stick than keen, resulted in the new ideal being adopted.

The "show number" of the paper has been promised for today. The humor of this issue will be minus the vulgarity that has been approached in some former issues.

WORLD OUTLOOK CLUB WILL DISCUSS KOREA

FIRST MEETING OF THE NEW SEMINAR TUESDAY

Korean Students on Program—To Explain Political and Social Life of Peninsula

A World Outlook Seminar, composed of student and faculty men interested in the present world situation, will meet for the first time Tuesday evening at 7:15 in the Faculty room of the Temple. The first meeting will be devoted to Korea, and the subjects will be presented by Korean students of the university only.

As evidenced in the present world war, space and time are being annihilated. The world is rapidly shrinking under the steel bands of the railroad, the antennae of the wireless and the speed of ocean liners. Important and interesting facts about comparatively unknown countries will be featured. The ordinary farmer in Nebraska does not realize that the corn yield of Brazil, Argentina and Uruguay averages 70 bushels to the acre, that

AG CLUB WANTS HONOR SYSTEM

PROPOSES INSTALLATION FIRST IN AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE

Professor Bengston Discusses Virginia Plan Before Club, Which Met Last Night

A demand for the installation of the "honor system" in the state university was made by the agriculture club which met at the Temple last night. It is proposed by the club that the system be installed first in the Agricultural college, with the ultimate purpose of extending it to all of the colleges.

Prof. N. A. Bengston of the geography department, was the principal speaker of the evening. He spoke for the department that has used the honor system for a number of years past, and he heartily endorsed it, declaring, however, that the movement for it must come from the student body.

Professor Bengston told of the workings of the system at the University of Virginia at Charlottesville. There it has been in operation since 1842, and in all of that time, but twenty students have been found who have betrayed the system.

Oscar Sjogren, who sent out ninety letters of inquiry on behalf of the club, stated that he received answers from 70 schools, twenty-five of whom have the honor system. In all but two of these, the system came as a result of student agitation, and the enforcement is in the hands of the students.

Other business conducted by the club was to fix the date of the annual banquet as March 17; to award a 1916 Cornhusker to the one who originates the best Ag club yell; to hold a dance at Rosewilde March 10, tickets for which can be purchased from Paul Stewart, M. L. Johnson, Robert Ganz, and Arthur Tell; and to plan for a mass meeting February 24, with the Home Economics club girls.

Pre-Medics Rough on Cats

Cats are in great demand just at present. The second year medics are studying comparative anatomy this semester, and each student will be required to dissect one cat before the end of the semester. Just now each of the students is after his cat, and woe to that unfortunate tabby who crosses his path. The territory adjacent to the campus has been thoroughly canvassed, and has yielded a fair number of the feline species, but there are many to be gathered yet, and the search is being extended to more fertile fields.

A party of medics chartered an automobile a few evenings ago and made a trip to the outskirts of the town, returning with several plump mousers. One of them, however, had to be returned; for the fond owner called up one of the marauders and told him that the cat they captured in his back yard had better be returned, or the sheriff would be paying somebody a visit. The cat was returned.

Another adventurous student engaged in a race with a fine tabby, which ended at the Roberts' dairy. This was tabby's home, and the establishment couldn't be persuaded to surrender its cat even in the name of science. Another student was successful in his pursuit of a cat, and put it in an old lime sack he had for the occasion. He had to go through the city to get to his home. As long as he was on the more unfrequented streets, pussy was as still as could be, but when he reached O street, the unfortunate set up a great howling and caterwauling, with the result that the embarrassed medic found the nearest alley and disappeared therein.

Miss Parsons, of the Zoology department, says that several of the unfortunates are now being pickled in the laboratory, preparatory to their being dissected.
