Kansas Aggies' Defeat of Missouri Puts Latter Out of the Race

Nebraska's victory over the Ames Aggies Saturday night gives the Cornhuskers full claim to the Missouri Valley basketball championship. The Kansas Aggies broke the winning streak of the Missouri Tigers Friday night by a score of 27 to 19, thereby giving Nebraska the title.

The Cornhusker quintet won the last four games of the schedule from Drake and the Ames Aggies by safe margins. This makes a record of eleven wins and no defeats in the valley conference. Missouri takes second place with eight games won and one lost. The Nebraska quintet forced the Kansas Aggies into third place by taking a two-game series from them on the Nebraska floor.

MUSKRAT INVADES ALUMNI OFFICE

Frightens Miss Chaikin; Captured by Harper, Babson and Reed

Screams by Miss Annis Chaikin, alumni association secretary, redoubled by Miss Pennington, notified the force in the Administration building Saturday afternoon that a huge muskrat was loose. The animal had wandered into the Alumni office from a drain pipe in the neighborhood. Guy Reed responded heroically, but was unable to capture the rodent. The added din attracted Paul Babson, who forgot his Cornhusker worries long enough to join in the chase. The muskrat, however, was so nimble and adverse to being petted that the allies made much noise and no progress. About this time Henry Harper upstairs became alarmed and came down to investigate. Seeing the situation, he promptly declared war and took his place with Reed and Babson. The muskrat finally succumbed to a determined attack. It was forced into a corner and bagged with a waste basket.

The unfortunate quadruped was hauled off to the Geology department. Here he was caged in an empty waste basket and exposed to the gaze of the curious. Sunday he was "shot" by a camera, and the chances are very good that the pictures will find their way into the coming Cornhusker.
