TWO PROBLEMS AT ONCE

Perhaps an apology is due at this time for forcing upon the public the discussion of two somewhat similar, yet clearly different, propositions. While the matter of the Single Tax will be somewhat abated for the time being, it will not be entirely dropped, but will give way to the Student Union as the principal topic for discussion. Consequently, a clear differentiation is in order.

The Single Tax is a fee levied on all registering for the purpose of supporting certain student activities. The Student Union is harder to define. It is an organization having as its ultimate goal the establishment of a building devoted entirely to student social life. The Single Tax will support certain established institutions. The Student Union will found a new and invaluable tradition.

In order to illustrate our explanation of the Student Union, we have arranged for the publication of a series of articles on the Unions of other schools. These will occur twice a week in The Nebraskan and will be written by men around school who have studied the question. We feel that if these are closely followed they will be of great assistance in the discussion of the important problem.

PROPER PUBLICITY

On a recent occasion the Purdue Exponent refused to publish a certain news story that would have created a sensation among the students. The staff knew that the article was to come out in the other dailies of the state, but allowed themselves to be "scooped" because the alleged source of information refused to confirm the rumor, and because the news was derogatory to Purdue athletics.

This shows the right spirit, and the staff of the Exponent is to be congratulated. There seems to be too much of a desire for scandal for scandal's sake in the newspaper world today. Many reporters are glad to hand in mere rumors because of the sensation they will create. To see a college paper taking the initiative in the reform of the disgusting habit is indeed encouraging.

The Exponent staff could have published this story with glaring headlines and received the commendation of students for their news-gathering ability. They could have gracefully apologized when the report proved false, without losing the respect of these same readers. But Purdue would have been injured in the meantime, and the only benefit gained would have been the stimulation of the nerve centers of a few students who crave the sensational.

The sooner the newspaper profession and the public realize that a newspaper is a constructive aid to civilization, and not a scandal monger, the better off we will be.

GIRLS NOT DISMISSED, MAY BE EXCUSED

ference meetings will be considered a sufficient excuse for missing classes.

This is the dean's statement: "My attention has just been called to the statement made yesterday in The Daily Nebraskan that all university girls will be dismissed from their classes Tuesday and Wednesday of next week. I wonder who is responsible for that statement, as I have issued no such order, and I wish that you would correct the impression made by this erroneous statement.

"It is true, however, that attendance at the meetings of the vocational conference will be considered valid excuse for missing classes, and any girls who show that they were actually in such attendance will be granted excuses. All other girls must attend their usual classes."

NON COMPOSITUS MENTIS

GREETINGS!

This column is going to be funny, but we have always been serious-minded and our habits aren't formed that way. Anyhow, don't mind us please, yet.

We might have called this column: HANDS UP! MASCULINE MUSING THE PIPING OF PAN CAMPUS CONFESSIONS

The one chosen, "Non Compos Mentis," is bound, however, to describe either the writer or the reader, so it was taken for the time being, at least.

SPRING AGAIN

Such a funny thing to do, To put the Spring in verse; Perhaps it will be awful— More likely 'twill be worse.

Now, Spring has been remarked upon By poets far and near; So there isn't much that's left to say, Excepting that it's here.

Jeanette Adams, according to rumor, is wearing Clifford Scott's Sigma Delta Chi pin, and neither of them knows how she got it. Peculiar—hmm!

FIE, FIE, FIE GAMS!

It's not every day that a sorority finds a Christmas stocking hanging on its doorknob. The "bids" to the Alpha Phi formal came out Monday afternoon, and strange but true, all but two of the thirty or more Phi Gams were invited. The slighted ones, Orville Chatt and Leland Champe, spitefully stole a perfectly good sock belonging to Goodwin Anderson, filled the dainty thing with the "sented" missives after labeling them with such epitaphs as, "Feet sore, can't lead the march;" "Followed a wagon off last week;" "Not here; see city jail;" "No such name, see Old Ladies' home." In the morning, when the "early birds" started for their 8 o'clocks, they found the premature May basket artistically draped on the door.

THE WANDERER

I am a wandering son-of-a-gun, And my arms am pinkly stretching, I'm sitting now on a green toad-stool, And a poem of merit am sketching.

I've walked awhile with a sad-jag on, And I've often strolled drunk and happy; And the yellow-topped trees on the ground-hog hills, Revolving, have made me daffy.

And when the night her night-robe flings, And the stars come out to riot, I don my orange harkening suit, And listen to the quiet.

I've seen the world go 'round and round, Since I have been a boy; And when I was a giggling girl, Go-rounding was my joy. —Remonstrance Cummin.
