DELTA GAMMA BANQUET

The twenty-eighth annual banquet of the Delta Gamma sorority was given in the Garden room of the Lincoln hotel Saturday night, with more than ninety of the active and alumni members present.

The decorations for the banquet room were most elaborate. The table, arranged in the shape of an "E," was lighted by a subdued light coming from shaded candelabra. Candle shades marked with the Greek letters of the sorority, and with Chinese mandarin tassels dropped from the corners, were used. Down the center of each table was a low green fence, on either side of which were bowers of roses. Two tall bronze candelabra stood at the end of the room, bearing three candles each, and the background was formed of bay trees.

Place cards were in the shape of band-boxes, with the toast list concealed in the lid, and above, the figure of a girl. The toastmistress was dressed in the same costume as the girl of the place-cards.

The theme of the toasts was "The Mirror." Before the toasts were given Miss Dorothy Ellsworth sang a Mirror song. This was followed by a freshman song and another song, "The Twenty-eighth Birthday," by Ruth Morgan and Dorothy Davies. Then the toastmistress, Ruth Raymond Gavin, introduced the "reflections of the evening. These were as follows: "When the Lights Are Turned Low. When She Reflects," Ruth Morgan; "When She Dresses. Fashions," Martha Noble; "When She Rouges, if She Does. Frivolity," Augusta Kilpatrick; "When She Passes Hastily, if She Looks In. Impressions," Edith Jackson Hoagland; and "When She Wishes She Hadn't Looked In," Abba Bowen. "L'Envoi" was sung by Gertrude Munger. Miss Ellsworth, Miss Morgan, Miss Davies and Miss Munger sang in costume.

"BACKWARD" THEY GO

In direct opposition to the popular fallacy that men are stronger than women, and more bold, comes the observation of a K. U. professor that the men in his classes are by far the most timid and retiring of the students. He says that the women are bold and fearless in contrast. This timidity on the part of the men is best shown in the class room conduct of the students.

Humility, timidity, and a general backwardness and desire to efface one's self seems to send "masculine K. U." in a mad rush for the back of the room in all the class rooms the Hill over. Any youth caught inadvertently on the front row is so nervous and uncomfortable that the instructor can but pity him. Of course, the ignorant and uninformed may intimate that other feelings aside from timidity prompt this mad rush for the rear on the part of Kansas men. In some small part this may be true, however, the desire to bloom unseen is there, undoubtedly. Fortunate is the man who doesn't develop a habit of "taking a back seat" in everything.—Kansan.
