McKelvie For Governor
 He Is a Young Man

"I am for the young man in politics. His future stimulates him to greater activity and enthusiasm in his job. He has most to gain."

So quoth a voter of more than three score years.
 In having provided that, at the age of thirty-five, any free-born male American citizen may become a candidate for president of the United States, the makers of the constitution evidently felt that at that age a man is as mature as he will ever be.
 Then is a man in the prime of his useful life. He is old enough to have proven his ability as a business man. His reputation as a man has been established. Then is he most vigorous in mind and body.
 S. R. McKelvie, candidate for governor, will be thirty-five years old April 15, 1916. He has an unimpeachable record in public life and as a successful business man.
 Thoughtful Republicans look upon McKelvie as possessed of the youth and vigor needed in a candidate to head the ticket this year, and that is why they refer to him as The Favorite Candidate.

slides made largely from photographs taken by Professor Persinger during two trips to South America in 1913 and 1914.

In 1913 Professor Persinger spent a half year's leave of absence from his university work in a visit to the west coast of South America, spending the larger part of his time in Peru. He visited the Indian agricultural table lands between the two ranges of the Andes and made his way on horseback and afoot across the eastern ridge of the Andes about a hundred miles towards the upper tributaries of the Amazon.

In 1914, largely as a result of the visit of 1913, Professor Persinger was chosen as one of the ten North American educators sent on a friendly tour of South America by the Pan-American division of the American Association for International Conciliation, closely related to the Carnegie Peace Foundation. The route was down the east coast of South America, through the Straits of Magellan and up the west coast to Panama.

used with Cuba, of establishing self-government by intervention and tutelage. Every one of these policies has brought only unfriendly feelings in the interested nation, averred Professor Persinger.

Tuxedo
 The Perfect Tobacco for Pipe and Cigarette

The first thing you'll notice about Tuxedo is the rich, mellow-sweet Burley flavor. And the best thing about it is the on-your-toes snap, and brisk, bracing hustle you get out of it.

"Tux" will smoke out that tobacco-hunger as no other tobacco can, and you can smoke pipeful after pipeful with never a fear—the original Tuxedo Process removes every trace of harshness and "bite".

Get a tin of "Tux" and try it for yourself.
