expressions are superior to ours up here.

"When, however, I say that I do not object to slang, I do not mean the street gamin variety. Such expressions as 'peevd' and 'sore' for cross and angry have no place in the college-bred girl's vocabulary."

The greatest danger Miss Coldwell sees in the use of slang is its tendency so to weaken the vocabulary that good English cannot be substituted when occasion demands.

SMOKING A PIPE

Is a real benefit to be derived from smoking a pipe? Many prominent men contend that there is. The following is quoted from the great cavalry leader, General de Brack's, instructions to his officers:

"The Pipe—Every trooper should be encouraged to smoke a pipe. Why? Because it will keep him awake. The pipe is a means of diversion which, far from interfering with the trooper's performing his duty, attaches him to it and renders it less burdensome. It soothes him, kills time, banishes unpleasant thoughts, and keeps the trooper in bivouac and near his horse. While the trooper, seated upon a pile of hay or grass, smokes his pipe, no one will venture to steal the forage from his horse to give it to another; he is certain that his horse is eating his food, and that he is not getting kicked; the provisions are not stolen from his wallet; he has time to discover the repairs which should be made to his saddlery, clothing, etc.

"On outpost, all sleep is forbidden. What a comfort you will then find the pipe, which drives away drowsiness, speeds the weary hours, renders the rain less chilly, and makes hunger and thirst more easy to endure. If you have to make long night marches after the fatigues of the day, when sleep overpowering you is a veritable torture, and cause of numerous injuries to the horse, nothing will keep you awake like smoking your pipe.

"In a campaign, where men's resources are so limited, there is nothing so trifling as to be devoid of value. The pipe is a medium of exchange, of pleasure, and of duty in the fraternal associations of our military life; in certain cases, when loaned, it becomes a veritable means of relieving distress.

"Therefore, whatever Aristotle and his learned cabal may say, smoke, and make your troopers smoke."

CALIFORNIA COLLEGE GIRLS
SURPASS IN USE OF SLANG

University of Washington.—Not alone in the possession of a few extra cubits in stature may the girls of Stanford university and the University of California claim an advantage over their sister collegians of the north and east. They triumph in yet another line and that in the realm of the intellect; for, according to Dean Ethel Hunley Coldwell, they can use better slang down there than the Washington co-eds, at least, know how to use.

"I am not so much of a purist in this matter of the use of slang as some people are," Miss Coldwell said in an expression on this distinguishing characteristic of the English language as it is spoken by Americans, including American college girls.

"I consider," she further explained, "that a certain amount of slang lends picturesqueness and charm to the college girl's speech, or anyone's in fact. But it must have freshness and originality, and it is in these qualities that the southern college girls'
