MISS GRAHAM WANTS THE GIRLS TO GO

Believes the Omaha Trip Offers Exceptional Opportunity for a Good Time and More

Dean Mary Graham is very anxious that university women take advantage of the Omaha trip in that it offers many worth-while opportunities. The fact that Omaha is the biggest city in the state and that it will throw open for inspection rare art galleries, industries and institutions, tours through which will be conducted by expert guides, is an educational opportunity. Opportunities for seeing industrial plants are not usually so easy for women as men and at Omaha university women will be given particular attention. The Omaha Commercial club has extended this invitation to the university students to acquaint them with Omaha and to acquaint Omaha with the students. The students can meet a certain obligation toward the university by accepting this invitation, because they will be able to show Omaha citizens what they are and what they are doing by revealing intelligent interest in that city and its institutions, Miss Graham believes.

CONVOCAION

THE UNIVERSITY QUINTET

Tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock, the university quintet will play at convocation in Memorial hall. The quintet consists of E. J. Walt, first violin; Ernest Harrison, second violin; W. T. Quick, viola; Miss Lillian Eiche, 'cello, with Mrs. Raymond at the organ. On this occasion, Miss Louise Zumwinkle will reinforce the parts by the piano score. This will probably be the last for this year of the delightful musical recitals that have been so attractive both to the university students and to music lovers generally in this city.

Two compositions of Franz Liszt will be rendered, Les Preludes and Orpheus. Of these symphonic poems Les Preludes comes obviously in the category of program music. The piece depicts the successive states of mind of a passionate soul—its tender, yearning love, the brutal shattering of hope by some relentless adverse power, and the wild tempest within the breast of the disappointed lover. The storm-tossed soul seeks solace and rest in the serenity and healing balm of rural nature, at which point we hear some charming rustic music. But as the wounded spirit of the hero revives he cannot remain inactive and supine, and he sallies forth to the battle of life, determined to find in life's conflicts his higher and truer self. These various states of feeling are legitimate subjects for music to deal with, and Liszt has so handled his theme that his meaning is clear and at the same time he has not exceeded the natural and proper limits of the tonal art.

Orpheus, according to the legend, subdued the terrors of Hades by his music and had almost brought back to the upper air his dear Eurydice, when the premature fatal glance at his beloved broke the spell and he lost her a second time, this time irrevocably. Liszt has made an elegy for the pathetic tale, a dirge like lament for the joy that once was, but which alas, shall be no more. The music is sweetly sad.
