Will we beat Oregon?

When the University dairy judging team won first place from seventeen other representatives, at Springfield, Massachusetts, last week, another worth-while honor was added to Nebraska's list. From fifty-four entrants, a Nebraska man won first place and another won fourth place. It is a proof of the excellent quality of instruction which the University offers, not only in the school of agriculture, but in every department of the institution.

The Oregon agricultural college daily has not been coming to the office, with the rest of the exchanges, lately. Are they printing dope they don't want us to know about, or are they afraid of us?

The rally last night was the best football "pep meeting" ever held at the University. Nebraska spirit swept the crowd in waves and the enthusiasm of everyone present was as contagious as a bargain hunt on Monday.

We are determined to beat Oregon. Much depends on it. It is not a blinding, brilliant display that we want from the team, it's real playing, and we have to have it. This is Nebraska's chance to win or lose in more than football. It is a crucial moment, and all of this week we must be with the team in spirit. This was realized last evening, and when the team pledged "For Nebraska, we will," everyone present felt that it was a true prophecy.

Nebraska students have "pep." Nebraska students have the right kind of enthusiasm. Nebraska students "will."

The girls' convocation for medical supervision at the University yesterday morning was the largest convocation of women ever held here. The numbers indicated an interest and desire for the medical aid which was astonishing.

Medical aid at Nebraska is needed, and needed badly, and the women are willing to do everything they can to promote the plan. An infirmary with the best of medical aid is one of the greatest needs of a school as large as Nebraska. The success of such a plan is evident—and the students are anxious that it be adopted with the greatest expedience.

FORUM

Oct. 17, 1916.

To the Editor of The Nebraskan:

I understand that one of the speakers at the girls' mass meeting at convocation today, made the statement that sex hygiene was not taught at all in the University, except perhaps to a slight extent in the work of the department of sociology.

For three years, a two hour lecture and two hours laboratory course for one semester in sex hygiene has been offered by the department of physiology. Separate sections are carried for men and women. It is repeated each semester and has been given for three summer sessions. During this time the course has been taken by 400 women and half as many men. Furthermore, three years ago, when Dr. Knight came to Lincoln as medical inspector in the city schools, he was employed by the University to give a series of lectures on sex hygiene to all of the University cadets. When he went away this work was turned over to the department of physiology and is now given by that department and is required of all cadets by the military departments.

I hope I may be pardoned for calling attention to these facts. Such a statement is only fair to the University as this institution is one of the first and one of the few to give instruction to its students along these important lines.

RUFUS A. LYMAN, Head of Department of Physiology.

To the Editor of The Daily Nebraskan: Since there are about 1,000 students in the University who are eligible to vote at the coming election it may be timely to call attention to the registration law that is in existence in Lincoln. Before anyone will be permitted to vote, his name must appear on the registration book at the polling place on election day in the district in which he lives. The voter can register any time, at the city hall, during the year except ten days before election day. This year the poll books will close on October 28, after which it will be impossible to register and consequently one cannot vote on election day.

Those who have not already registered, or those who have moved into another precinct since they have registered must register again. All students can register provided they are 21 years old or over, American citizens and have lived six months in the state. It is very urgent that every student who is eligible to vote attend to this matter before it is too late and be prepared to exercise his American privilege on election day. W. F. U.

An automobile ride at 2:15 o'clock Saturday afternoon has been planned by the Y. W. C. A. for all freshman girls. Those who expect to go are requested to call at the Y. W. C. A. rooms this week and obtain tickets for the ride.

The girls are to meet at the Y. W. C. A. rooms. After the ride they will be taken to a Lincoln home, which has not yet been decided upon, for refreshments.

he was paying for what he got, and would be more likely to take advantage of the opportunity afforded. It would do away with the idea of charity and bring the idea of independence," he pointed out.

Prof. Grumann Spoke

Professor Grumann supplemented the two speeches by some observations he has made in his own classes. "It is true," he said, "that slight defects which may and do lead to big results are so numerous that we do not notice them—the obvious is so evident that we do not see it. I can say conservatively that 50 per cent of the students who have failed in my classes have had throat trouble. They were not physically able to do the mental work required."

The sore throat was the subject of a good deal of condemnation by Dr. Stevens and Professor Barbour as well as Professor Grumann. Dr. Stevens declared that fully one-sixth of all the girls taking gymnastic work in the Lincoln high school and public schools have had valvular trouble of the heart, of which the principle cause was consular trouble. Because they neglected to have the matter remedied when it seemed but a trifle.

Nip Beginning of Trouble

Although the free medical attention would cover every ailment a student might contract, the big purpose of the bureau and dispensary would be to nip the beginnings of fatal or serious trouble in the beginning. Both speakers pointed out that once contracted, valvular disease of the heart could never be remedied and might be the cause of death at any time, while a brief conference with a medical inspector would have resulted in the remedy of the sore throat which caused it.

In commenting upon the speeches of Dr. Stevens and Professor Barbour, Professor Grumann said that he hoped the ball had been started rolling and that student sentiment would start after something tangible in the direction of free medical attention in the University.

UNIVERSITY WEEK BOARD PLANS SEVEN TOWN CIRCUIT

The directors of the University Week association met yesterday morning in the student activities office to authorize the prospectus of the Week to be sent out to commercial clubs and accredited high schools before the association meets to map out the schedule. Other details were attended to by the directors, including the purchase of a badly needed desk.

The shows will go to six or seven towns instead of four, this year. The board has deferred action on the requests from western Nebraska towns for a circuit in that region until answers from the prospectus have given all the towns an opportunity to put in their bid.
