Entered at the postoffice at Lincoln, Nebraska, as second class mail matter under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

They are still talking about the benefit Nebraska will reap from the trip that the team and the band made to Oregon. Now comes a letter from an alumnus in Walla Walla, Washington, who says that the whole west is "marveling," and that it was a big boost upward.

Every student, at some time or other during his University career decides whether he will enter into any campus activity or whether he will devote all of his time to study. If the man decides in favor of all of his time to study he is making a grave mistake. There is nothing more admirable than a well-trained student, and a scholar. There are not enough of them. But if, to gain this scholarly rank, a person must neglect the other side of school life—the campus activity part—he loses more than he gains.

To mingle with people, to learn to know them and the best way to deal with each individual, is the greatest education on earth, and it can only be gained through mental alertness and concentration. No mental sluggard will ever learn to know people.

A knowledge of books will add in a knowledge of people, but the ability to make friends will not get a history lesson, or a German translation.

The most valuable possession on earth is a friend, and the experience that one gets in campus activities, in making friends, helping others and boosting worth-while things will be an unending source of help and benefit all of his days.

The time to begin is in the freshman year, and when a good start has been made in the studies, every new man and woman should enter some outside field and work in it with all his or her might.

The ability to combine scholarship and social activity, which does not mean lighter society in all of its frivolity,—their ability, and the application of it, is that which makes the ideal man or woman,—the real University graduate.

And now comes a letter with the conclusion, "yours in a bond of sympathy"! Yea, verily.

Wesleyan wanted to win, and the support that the students gave the team was enviable, but not very profitable.

It has been rumored that a student union soon will spring into existence. It will be the birth of a much needed institution, here, and when people begin to enjoy its benefits there will be no end to claimants for the honor of the responsibility and cause of the plan. In fact one application for the honor appeared last week.

FORUM

To the Editor of the "Daily Nebraskan":

Every loyal Nebraskan who helped send the band to Portland, will be gratified to hear of their success in making the famous Oregon aggregation sound like a small imitation of the real thing. On all sides were heard praises of "that peppy Nebraska band that plays like victory was already theirs."

The band and of course the team, have given Nebraska and the U. of N. an advertising that has set the west marveling. So pat yourselves on the back for assisting in giving Nebraska this big boost upward.

AN APPRECIATIVE ALUMNUS.

democratic candidate for election again, will speak at convocation Tuesday. On Thursday the third Beethoven symphony will be played. Dr. Dann will interpret it Tuesday morning in Art hall.

The Y. W. C. A. Vespers will be held as usual Tuesday evening, and the devotional services of the Y. M. C. A. the evening following.

One of the big co-ed events of the year will be the football luncheon Saturday noon, preceding the Ames game. It is believed that this will be the most largely attended luncheon of the year.

CENTRAL HIGH OF OMAHA CROWDED BY TOO MANY STUDENTS

The Central high school of Omaha, which was enlarged several years ago, is now so crowded that many periods of the day, all the available rooms are in use, according to State High School Inspector Reed. The classes are unusually large this year, since many have been put together to make extra room. This building was originally the first wing of the prospective quadrangle and this quadrangle was completed two years ago. Plans are being made for a new Commercial high school to be built several blocks from the Central high school. It is hoped that this new
