Entered at the postoffice at Lincoln, Nebraska, as second class mail matter under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

It is a psychological victory when Kansas beat Nebraska for the first time in seven years, Saturday, with a score of 7 to 3.

It was one of the most bewildering games ever witnessed on the field. Nebraska outplayed Kansas from the beginning. The game was won only because of the superior strategy of the Kansas team; Nebraska's team is beyond doubt, the better team of the two.

The spectators were tense with excitement and both Kansas and Nebraska showed the right kind of spirit all four quarters. It was a clean game. Nebraska played it well. Kansas earned all she made.

Kansas came up here, three hundred strong, to beat us, and they surely did. For some time those who knew have predicted that the time would come when Nebraska's luck would change. They said that luck goes in cycles, and our cycle would be changed. Nebraska couldn't win forever. They said that it depended on spirit.

The spirit this time was fine. The one big blunder was the position of the Kansas rooting section. Of all the mistakes on earth, the worst of all was placing Kansas in the middle of the Nebraska rooting sections and splitting the vitally necessary concentrated rooting. No results can be had from rooters scattered all over the bleachers. We did the best we have done for a long time. The cheer leaders were off duty part of the time, but of course that was because of their intense interest in the game.

It was a good game, and Nebraskans are good losers. They are going to pull together stronger than ever, and we are going to beat Iowa and Notre Dame.

The Nebraska State Press association passed a resolution Saturday, recommending to the board of regents the establishing of a College of Journalism at Nebraska.

Seventy-five Nebraska editors passed the resolution unanimously. They realize the need of the theoretical and practical work that would be had in the courses. The day is coming when the big newspaper man will be the graduate of a school of journalism. Journalism is becoming a broader and better field for men and women every day. The power of the press is mighty.

If a school of journalism is established at Nebraska, this University will be very fortunate and greatly benefited.

THE DAYS GONE BY

Seven Years Ago Today
 Nebraska played Denver at Denver, winning by a score of 6 to 5.

The result of a Y. M. C. A. campaign was the enrollment of 157 men for the missionary offered by that organization.

A Daily Nebraskan editorial ran thus: "And still those professors continue to hold classes after the hour when they are supposed to desist."

Five Years Ago Today
 The Cornhusker banquet held at the Auditorium was attended by six hundred students, alumni and faculty.

Nebraska beat Kansas by a score of 29 to 0. Owen Frank made the first touchdown.

Two Years Ago Today
 Edna Froyd, 15, and Geneva Seegar, 16, left as delegates to the annual conference of the Woman's Self-Government association at Evanston, Ill.

The football team left for Iowa. Nebraska won by a score of 16 to 7.

One Year Ago Today
 The football edition of the Daily Nebraskan came out with twenty pages of "dope."

BRIEF BITS OF NEWS

The lighting in M. E. 206 has been greatly improved by a system of indirect lights. This room is used a good deal for extra lectures and evening work and the lights were found to be too poor to conduct the work properly.

Mrs. T. F. A. Williams of the political science department gave two short talks at Hayward school Thursday afternoon. Her subjects were "Suggestions for Girls in Industry," and for the boys "Civic Duty."

Dean Charles Fordyce of the University college of education gave two addresses Saturday at Osceola before the Polk County Teachers' association.

ALPHA ZETA HELD ANNUAL OPEN HOUSE FOR STUDENTS OF AG.

Alpha Zeta, the honorary agricultural fraternity, held its annual open house for the students of the Ag college last Friday in the Plant Industry Building. Professor Burr, head of the agronomy department, was the speaker of the evening. He spoke in a very interesting way of the future in scientific agriculture, congratulating the students on their choice of profession. He also spoke of the fraternity of Alpha Zeta, explaining its purpose, ideals, and some of the requirements for election to membership.

After the program the crowd adjourned to Home Economics hall where all were served with refreshments, after which there was a program of after dinner talks and impromptu stunts, which were heartily enjoyed.

CAPT. SHALLENBERGER MILITARY PRESS CENSOR VISITS IN LINCOLN

Captain Martin C. Shallenberger, who acted as press censor on dispatches concerning the Mexican border situation, at army headquarters at El Paso, Tex., during the spring and summer, was in Lincoln Saturday as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard E. Hertz.

Captain Shallenberger attended the University of Nebraska prior to beginning studies at the Fort Crook Officers' school, which enabled him to pass special examinations for the army at Washington, D. C. He was made a lieutenant by the new army bill which greatly increased the strength of the army and brought many promotions to commissioned officers.

While in Lincoln, Captain Shallenberger was accompanied by his wife, who prior to her marriage was Miss Ina Dowdy of Las Animas, Colo. The captain is a son of Congressman Ashton C. Shallenberger of the Fifth Nebraska district, who resides at Alma.

of how happy Kansas must be. The attitude of the old grads who came back to see Nebraska clinch her seventh consecutive valley championship was a source of much encouragement to the undergraduates present. Defeat must come some day, they declared, and there was a marked opinion that the upset would be "all for the best." Refreshments of ice cream and waters were served during the evening. A good number of faculty men were in attendance, standing in the receiving line and renewing their acquaintance with old students.

SEVEN SENIOR LAW FIRMS HELPING CITY LEGAL AID BUREAU

Not only are University senior law students greatly increasing the efficiency of the city legal aid department by handling applications to the department, but they are obtaining much useful training, in the opinion of Sterling F. Mutz, director of the department. Fourteen students take part in the work, credit being given for the time spent on the job. Seven "firms" turns at conducting the office at the city hall during afternoons.

Most of the cases handled involve disputes over wages due or unpaid rents, but frequently deep legal questions are involved. In some instances the department is asked to settle neighborhood quarrels.

Night classes in short-story writing, economics, and methods of teaching have been commenced by Kansas university.—Ex.
