AYLSWORTH SAYS NEW LAWS NEEDED

PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION METHODS NEED CHANGING

Students Like Course in American Government—Subdivision of Sections Is Made

Enrollment in classes in American government in the department of political science at the University was so large at the opening of this semester that it has been necessary to subdivide the sections at least once each week in order to carry on more intensive quiz work.

Prof. Leon E. Aylsworth conducts these classes at 8 a. m. and 2 p. m. on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. He divided the Friday morning class into three subdivisions for quiz work on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday and believes that much more effective teaching is possible under this system. Of course students attending one quiz division are not required to attend the others, the course calling for only three hours class-work each week. The first two hours are occupied mainly by lecture work. Professor Aylsworth has declared that the general election of November 7 and other recent developments in the governmental field in this country have proven the need of the following measures:

What Is Needed

Choice of presidential electors in proportion to the number of popular votes received in the state, or by district, as either plan would tend to cut down the possibility of a bare majority representing the entire state in the electoral college. Theoretically, Nebraska would cast three votes for Hughes and five for Wilson, in case Hughes received 150,000 popular votes in the state and Wilson 250,000.

Raising of campaign funds by taxation of voters instead of by solicitation of wealthy corporations or persons who thus acquire a strangle hold on the party in office.

Other measures to prevent a repetition of the Tilden-Hayes mixup in case of a closely contested election, definitely providing for more possible emergencies.

Professor Aylsworth believes that the new system for naming electors would tend to distribute the campaign activities over all the states of the union instead of a few pivotal states. He pointed out that republicans would be able to gain a few electoral votes in the southern states, in proportion to their vote, whereas now the popular vote of a state decides all the electors one way or the other.

W. B. RYONS TALKS TO COMMERCIAL CLUB

Inefficiency Cause of Heavy Percentage of Business Failures, He Says

W. B. Ryons, assistant cashier of the First National bank, talked to the members of the University Commercial club yesterday on the subject of "Credit."

"Ninety-one per cent of all business men in the United States eventually fail according to Dun and Bradstreet," stated Mr. Ryons in the address. "This is due to inefficiency, lack of capital, or inattention to business." The national banking system installed during the Civil war proved adequate for the time only. Its great defect was its lack of elasticity. In 1907 the United States commission, appointed to investigate the monetary systems of all the old countries, reported that over 95 per cent of the business transacted in the United States was done on "credit."

Federal Reserve System
Under our new federal reserve system, however, emergency currency may be issued on 120 days high grade commercial paper. In the fall the west has always felt the strain due to the lack of sufficient currency. Moreover, the flood of gold from Europe must eventually cease, the tide turn, and a crisis ensue.

"We hope that our new system will fulfill a long felt need, but the federal reserve bank has not yet had a real test. But we do know that in a short time the test will come and we must be prepared until we know that our present monetary system will stand that test," concludes Mr. Ryons.

JOURNALISM MUST APPEAL TO MILLIONS

the bottom of things, get back to the basic condition that preceded the evil effect.

Must Know the Present

"The journalist who is to render service must understand the causes of our present day social conditions and present them in their true significance. He must not condemn, but rather sympathize with the perpetrator of a social or moral wrong and look for, and throw light on the evil which brought such pressure on him as to bring him to commit such an act. He must have a true understanding of human life, as it is today, an understanding of what the causes of the present conditions are.

"A realization of what the conditions ought to be and the courage to take a definite step in improving the conditions of human life. What we want and need are men and women who secretly render service."

To render this service the prospective journalist should adequately prepare himself. "He should saturate himself with good literature." His study should be broad. It should include all the sciences and philosophy. A study of human interests and understanding as influenced by fundamental economic principles is a prerequisite to really successful journalism.

THIRTEEN STUDENTS TO BE SENT TO IOWA

FOURNER ART EXHIBIT PLACED

Agricultural college, where it was a great success. The art department here has received some very enthusiastic reports from Miss Rindlaub, who is head of the art department there. From there the exhibit will go on to other institutions. The art department is rather proud that Nebraska is getting the reputation as a center from which exhibitions may be sent out to other places.
