NO CANDIDATE FOR FRESHMAN PRESIDENT HAS YET BEEN DRAFTED

No candidate for freshman president has appeared in the first year class, although the first semester has but three more weeks to run, and politicians in other classes are already busy.

A small boom started yesterday among the friends of Russell Best of Omaha. Best has been interested in the activities in his class, and has made many friends. It cannot be stated that he will make the race.

The scarcity of real plums to distribute the second semester has been assigned in some quarters as accounting for the reluctance of available candidates to try for the class head. Several strong men are said to be biding their time, until a more profitable season arrives.

Iowa—The Daily Iowan opened the first issue of the new year with the headline "Saddest words of tongue or pen—'We're back again.'" (With apologies to Burns or someone else).—Ex.

GREEKS WILL JOIN IN PAN-HELLENIC PARTY NEXT MONTH

A Pan-Hellenic party, in which all the fraternities and sororities will be asked to participate, will be held at the Alpha Sigma Phi house February 23.

This will be the second annual all-Greek stunt. The first one, last year, was enjoyed by more than 200 of the members of the Greek letter organizations.

Each of the Greek societies will prepare some stunt to give. The whole will have the effect of a great vaudeville show. Refreshments will be served.

A New Work for the College Boy

Some weeks ago the papers were full of items from the Pacific coast to the effect that the girls of the Leland Stanford, Jr., university were to be given lessons in housekeeping, home-making, buying and all phases of housewifery. The comic papers, that take up everything in such an unsympathetic way, found it an opportunity to inquire whether the girls had husbands and the management of them thrown in with the course. And others wish to know if any particular means had been devised whereby each girl might have a certificate of proficiency at saving money to show her suitors for the purpose of facilitating proposals. For surely such a document would command respect.

Now, according to the Brooklyn Citizen, the Far West has come out again with a new activity, this time for the men in the college. They are already learning what it means to bring up children, we are assured, and it was started voluntarily by one of the Greek letter societies at the University of Washington. The account tells us:

"Playing daddy to homeless waifs is the newest stunt of the University of Washington fraternities.

"It started with Clarence Eckberg, 5 years old, adopted by the Sigma Nu fraternity in a burst of big brotherly sentiment.

"They found Clarence in a children's home, took him to the Sigma Nu chapter house, washed him, fitted him up with new clothes, gave him the squarrest meal on record, and made him about the happiest kid alive.

"At dusk the sleepy, contented youngster smiled at his twenty-five fathers and brothers in one and informed them that he was used to going to bed at 8.

"About fourteen helped him into his nightgown and tucked him into his own bed in a corner of the large airroom.

"As the lights were turned out, a plaintive, boyish treble began to recite, 'Now I lay me down to sleep.'

"And big 'Cy' Noble, four years a football roughneck and the noisiest in the fraternity, looked thoughtful for the first time in his life.

"Pledges were made that 'son' would be given a proper bringing up. And the spirit of these pledges, carried out rigidly and tenderly, has wrought a revolution in the fraternity chapter house life.

"Professor Edmond S. Meany, Washington's venerable historian, said of the adoption, 'It is one of the finest things I ever heard of. I believe this act really means a big step toward a new and vital service in the lives of collegians.

"When 'son' sings 'Bow Down to Washington,' the University of Washington campus song, the smoke in their pipes is very apt to get in the eyes of his twenty-five 'daddies.'—Literary Digest, December, 1916.
