"BRIGHTEN THE CORNER," IS SPIRIT AT FIRST RED-HAIRED LUNCHEON

from Carrie Chapman Catt, head of the National Women's Suffrage association and Alice Paul, head of the Congressional Union, expressing their joint hope that these "lights of their sex" would give their most illuminating efforts to the cause of the advancement of the female sex. As a result of this letter the Order of the Golden Fleece enthusiastically and unanimously endorsed the movement for "votes for women."

A handsome corsage bouquet of silk nasturtiums was sent by Madam Sarah Bernhardt to be awarded as a prize to the young lady having the most ravishing tresses. After much serious debating on the part of the judges, the bouquet was awarded to Florence Williams.

The Daily Nebraskan sent red roses to the Golden Fleece, and the flowers were accompanied by a poem in free verse, typewritten in red.

Sarah Margaret Heiter told of a recent visit to the penitentiary and her discovery of the astonishing dearth of red-haired at that institution.

An eastern newspaper syndicate requested permission to send Laura Jean Libby and Irvin Cobb to "cover" the luncheon in adequate manner and send out telegraphic reports. The letter announced that this party had inspired Ella Wheeler Wilcox to another heart-throb and that George Barr McCutcheon would use this idea for another one of his famous novels.

There was a discussion by Elizabeth Brown of a certain future step to be taken by the order.

Half-a-dozen poetic tributes to the occasion by the well-known poetess, Miss Carpathia Punk, were read. The shortest of these was the above poem "Sing a Song of Fleeces." Another was a "Maiden's Prayer."

"I want to be a Golden Fleece And with the Fleeces lunch. I want to have bright auburn hair, And join the Brick-Top bunch.

"Ah now I have a little scheme, And to this plan I'm wedded;— Let some one rouse my awful wrath; Then I shall be red-headed."

Another of the pieces had as its refrain, "But the chemicals could not come."

The program was concluded by these three songs by Natalie Spencer: "My Love is Like a Red, Red Rose," "Sorrow Threads Among the Gold," "Brighten the Corner Where You Are."

Bradley KNIT WEAR
"Cum Laude" Sweaters
Funny how ubiquitous a sweater is. From matriculation to graduation its uses are multitudinous, its paths devious. And how nomadic, too. The athlete's luxurious shaker, proudly alphabetted, migrates from "stude" to co-ed, from frat house to girl's dorm. If it's a Bradley, it abides there.
