FOREIGN FRUITS TO BE TESTED HERE

Native Plants of Different Countries Tried Out on American Soil by Department of Horticulture

Native fruits of various kinds from China, Australia and India will be sent to the department of horticulture by the United States department of agriculture in the early spring to be tested here. There will also be included many ornamental shrubs and trees and sub-tropical plants that can be grown in the greenhouse.

Through the United States department of agriculture explorers are constantly searching in all parts of the world for native material that may possess value if grown in the United States. The plants which can be made adaptable to conditions in the United States are termed, "Plant Immigrants."

Many new and interesting plants have been recently introduced into the United States from various parts of the world. Through the United States department of agriculture these new plants are distributed to various experiment stations of the country and the Nebraska station will do some of this work for the government.

NUBBINS

Prof. L. W. Chase of the Agricultural engineering department is attending the convention of the American Sons of the Revolution in Omaha today.

I. D. Wood of the Agricultural engineering department who has been conducting a three weeks' short course in motors, automobiles and ropework at Loomis, Neb., is expected back today.

C. W. Jones, '19, has been out of school with la grippe for the past two days.

The University of Nebraska will entertain the Legislative ladies at the Farm campus on one of the early Fridays in March. The exact date is not yet set. The home economics department will be in charge of this program.

Mrs. J. D. Hoffman is conducting a course in applied arts in house furnishing for the home economics department. Mrs. Hoffman formerly taught the same subject in Lafayette, Ind.

PROF. W. W. BURR TALKS ON DRY LAND CROPS TO ALPHA ZETA

Alpha Zeta, honorary agricultural fraternity, met last evening in Music hall, with thirty-five members present.

Prof. W. W. Burr of the agronomy department talked on the development and cultivation of dry land crops.

CORN PROBLEMS SOLVED BY BOYS

Extension Department is Conducting Corn Growing Project Among Boys Club Members

The Extension department is interesting the boys on Nebraska farms in a corn growing project which consists of a definite problem to be worked out in actual practice by the boys on the farm. Membership is open to those between the age of 10 and 18 on January 1 of this year.

Each member of the corn growing project will be a member of the Nebraska Boys and Girls club in the county in which he lives or attends school. In each of the fifty counties having the largest membership in the corn growing project the one earning the county championship will be given a tree trip to the nearest State club congress, including board and lodging while attending the same, by the Union Stock Yards company of Omaha.

Nebraska is one of the foremost corn growing states in the country.
Some corn is grown on every farm in the state and in many counties is the chief money crop and every farmer in the state, whether he be a grain farmer or a stock man, is interested in the corn crop, making the project an important one.

The February number of Agriculture, monthly publication of the agricultural club, was issued last Friday.

"A Glimpse of the United States Forest Service," by E. W. Nelson, '13 in which the writer brings out the administration of forest land and the practice of scientific forestry, is one of the many interesting articles.

"A Modern Basement," by Lucy M.
Jeffords, '17, and "Eugenics," by Warren Eller, '18, are also articles of especial interest.

The magazine has started a column for the school of agriculture alumni, devoting it entirely to their activities.

for Washington, D. C., where he will take entrance examinations for the United States military academy at West Point.

Dr. Fred M. Fling, of the department of European history, has been sick at his home, 1526 South Twenty-second street, this week.

George Irwin, '17, who graduated from the law school at mid-winter commencement, has gone to his home in Bridgeport.

TENTH IN STUDENTS OF JOURNALISM (Continued from Page 1)

ers of journalism which will show you the number of institutions which have separate schools of journalism and also what colleges and universities have separate departments of journalism.

Nebraska Tenth

"The University of Nebraska with 120 students in journalism is the tenth largest with reference to number of students enrolled in journalism, in the country. The University of Missouri with 236 students is the largest. Missouri has a separate school of journalism. The University of Washington with 226 is second. Washington has a separate department of journalism. Of the ten largest colleges and universities—that is, having the largest enrollment in journalism—the University of Nebraska and the University of Michigan are the only institutions which have no separate departments or schools of journalism.

"Every teacher of journalism knows that the only way to develop instruction in journalism is to have a separate department or school of journalism. The institutions which are doing the best work, who are giving the most practical instruction, have separate departments.

"If I personally or my office can be of service to you, call upon me.

Sincerely,
"CARL H. GETZ."

LETTER REQUIREMENTS RAISED

The requirements for winning a "C" in football have been raised at the University of Colorado. The player must start three conference games or must play the equivalent of half the games in quarters if he is to get a letter. Formerly one conference game was all that was required to win that honor.
