New Spring Suits are Here

FOR THE YOUNG MEN we are showing all the smart, nifty models made and worn on Broadway, in Plain Blue, Green, Brown and Gray Flannels and the new Homespun materials in Pinch Backs and Belters.

FOR THE OLDER MEN we are showing the more conservative models in Blue Serge, Plain Gray and Fancy Worsted materials. We carry all sizes and models in Stouts, Slims, Regulars and Extra Sizes.

Come up and see these beautiful values and save a $10.00 bill on your new Spring Suit or Light Weight Overcoat.

The question asked by everyone that visits The Monroe Clothes Shop: "How can you sell such beautiful clothes for $15.00?"

The answer is easy!
Because I cut out:

First Floor Rent—Credit Accounts—Bad Debts—Office Force—Window Trimmers—Floor Walkers—High Price Salespeople and give my customers the benefit of this big saving by giving them Guaranteed $25 Clothes every day of the year for $15.00.

PERSONALS

Jane Kingery, '20, spent the day in Omaha Tuesday.
Pearl Klingbiel, of Omaha, was the guest of Helen Howe, '20, over Sunday.
Robert Reasoner, ex-'18, of Hastings, was a guest Monday at the Phi Gamma Delta house.
Miss Mary Dumphy, chaperone at the Delta Gamma house, is spending a few days in Utica.
Edness Kimball, '19, is going to Ames, Ia., this week-end to attend the Pi Kappa Alpha formal.
Mrs. W. H. Hedrick of Tecumseh is visiting her daughter, Mary Redrick, at the Delta Gamma house.
Russell Clark, '15, of Omaha, who is in Lincoln on business for the Omaha World Herald, is visiting at the Silver Lynx house.
Selmer Nore, '20, of Albion, who recently underwent an operation for appendicitis, is much better and expects to be in school again soon.
John R. Rippey, B. Sc. '12, of the Trust Concrete company of Detroit, with headquarters at Kansas City, visited the University last week. Rippey was formerly in the office of the superintendent of grounds and buildings.
N. H. Debel, '13, who accepted a position last spring as instructor of history at the university of Illinois, writes the alumni secretary that there are at least a dozen Nebraskans at Illinois university. Mr. Debel took his M. A. degree here in the department of political science in 1914. The next two years he worked at Illinois on a scholarship, and received his doctor's degree there last spring.

THE COLLEGE WORLD

The final registration figures show 673 students enrolled in the State University of Montana. This is the largest number ever enrolled in the history of the institution.
Since the war platinum has increased in price more than 300 per cent. A piece of platinum gauze in possession of the department of chemistry of the University of Washington is at the present value, worth $150. Before the war this piece of gauze, which is no larger than a dollar bill, was only worth $43. The price of other materials in the chemistry world has taken flight on account of the war. Two hundred tiny pieces of metal, which before the conflict shut off their manufacture, sold for 56 cents each, would now bring $400.

Added interest is being shown in the rowing crew at the University of Washington. There are about sixty men out every night. About thirty of these are trying to make the varsity crew, while the others are working for seats in the freshman varsity shell.

Two more men have ventured to enroll in the department of home economics at the University of Washington, to study the structure of textiles. The students are both registered in the commercial division of the college of liberal arts, and both taking courses in advertising. The young men are studying textiles from a scientific standpoint in order to improve their salesmanship. Young men from three of Seattle's big department stores come to Wednesday evening classes at the university for instruction in textiles.

The freshmen at Minnesota are clamoring to be allowed representation in the honor system. Under present system only the upperclassmen are allowed in the council. The freshmen regard this a taxation without representation and wish to have a say also.

That H. C. of L. Again
A class in textiles at Drake university has found that the average of the clothes for each co-ed for year at that school is $137. The girls calculated their expenses for three years in order to make the average as accurate as possible. Dresses for school, church and parties make up the biggest items of expense; stockings rank next, and shoes come third.—Ex.
