INTERESTING ART WORKS AT UNIVERSITY GALLERY

Wood Block Prints Made by Intricate and Detailed Process

A collection of fifty-nine wood block prints by Helen Hyde, famous wood block worker of Cincinnati, and fifty etchings, lent by Keppel and Co., of New York was hung in the art gallery last week. This collection is pronounced the best small collection which the department has been able to secure for years.

Helen Hyde is the foremost American artist in the wood block prints work. She studied for a number of years in Japan, where this type of work originated, under the best artists there. Although Miss Hyde learned the secrets of the process of wood block work in Japan, her prints while showing a strong Japanese influence are distinctively individualistic.

The wood block print process is a very interesting one. The design is first carved out of very hard wood. As many wood blocks must be made as there are colors in the picture. When the design has been worked out and the carving has been done the artist gets a particular fine grade rice paper which must be slightly moistened. The colors which are to be used are mixed with a small amount of rice paste and are brushed on the wooden block. The moistened paper is over the back with a padded pattern over the back with a padded pattern.

As many impressions must be made as copies are desired. This process must be repeated for each separate color. There are little grooves in the wood so that the paper may be easily placed in exactly the right position each time.

UNIVERSITY CLUB HOLDS BANQUET AT HONOLULU

Fifteen Nebraska Students Present—Roy Bedford Is President

Fifteen members of the Nebraska University club in Honolulu, Hawaii, who left school last May to enter the service, attended an "N" banquet in Honolulu last month at the Pleasanton hotel. All except two of the Nebraska men are in some branch of service and are stationed in or about Honolulu.

The members of this University of Nebraska club are Roy Bedford, president; Edward Albrecht, vice-president; Anson Booth, secretary-treasurer; Roy J. Bayless, Phil Campbell, Oliver Frick, Ralph Merrick, Leslie Johnson, Harold Kohler, Fred Nesbit, John H. Ray, George Shafer, Anton Strandberg of the army, and Mr. Lindon Lynch, and Mr. E. B. Loomis of Honolulu.

The placards at the banquet were in the form of a large red "N," and the menus bore the coat of arms of Hawaii in gold. All the decorations were in scarlet and cream. Between the courses the men sang University songs and gave the college yells.

First Red Cross Course in Home Nursing Tonight

All women of the faculty or of the administrative force who are interested in the Red Cross course in home nursing, are asked to meet with Mrs. Max Westerman tonight, at 8 o'clock, in Faculty hall, of the Temple. Mrs. Westerman, who is a Red Cross nurse, will conduct the course, which will be very instructive and valuable to those who are desirous of knowing anything about this phase of Red Cross work. Taking the course offered does not involve the obligation of engaging in active Red Cross nursing. The purpose is merely to disseminate knowledge of practical value for nursing in the home.

It is important that all who are interested attend the meeting tonight, as the committee is anxious to get the work started and in order to do this they must know how many want the course. Plans for future meetings and definite arrangements will also be made tonight.
