stretching up and over the mountain-sides.

"There are times, especially now that Washington is closed up, that find me downright homesick for Nebraska. Everyone says this will pass and I will become a true westerner. It seems that we live life too easily out here. People don't seem to care much what they do so long as money comes from it and time doesn't hang heavily."

It is a mystery why some men want to make themselves so conspicuous.

ALUMNI

T. Beatrice Johnson, '16, is teaching English in the Leavenworth high school, Leavenworth, Washington. Miss Johnson received her master's degree in 1918. The following is an extract from a letter received at the alumni office:

"The west is such an interesting place and it gives a newcomer such a variety of experiences that he feels the vanity of any attempt to express half that he wants to say. The strangeness of it all makes one feel like a stranger in a strange land, and yet it is fascinating. It is quite a change for a Nebraskan who has never seen anything but prairies, to be transplanted suddenly to a land where there are, in place of fields of corn, miles and miles of orchards, bearing those 'delicious' apples for which the Wenatchee river valley is famous, or miles and miles of pine and fir forests
