CORNHUSKERS TO GET IN TRIM THIS WEEK FOR IOWA BATTLE

Thirty Varsity Candidates Out for Practice—Eighty-five Suits Issued.

"Bill" Day, Hubka, Lyman and Kellog Expected to Don the Moleskins.

With less than two weeks to prepare for the Iowa scrimmage, the Husker squad, under the guidance of coaches Schulte, Schjessler, Riudel, and Cameron, will fight with a vengeance to get into condition for the battle. Thirty varsity candidates have reported for practice. Eighty-five suits have been issued and that many struggling gridsters are expected to hit the turf Monday afternoon.

"Bill" Day, Hubka, Lyman, and Sam Kellog will probably all be in the lineup this week. Fasnigh Day was released from the navy just in time to get back to school. He was out on the athletic field Saturday but left early to board Sunday at his home in Beatrice.

Hubka has been working all summer on the farm in Gage county and is in perfect condition. "Hub" has no excess flesh to get rid of.

The varsity men were divided into two teams during the Saturday practice, with Newhan and McGlasson at quarterback. The Newman eleven included Swanson and Lamphere at ends, Wilder and Hubka at tackle, Wade Munn and Young at guards, Monte Munn at center, Schellenberg and Henry at the halfback stations and Captain Paul Dobson at fullback.

Freshmen numbering twenty have been working out Friday and Saturday. Twelve were lined up as line-men. This number is expected to increase greatly. So far there has been no scrimmage but the varsity and yearlings will be given a chance to take a crack at each other this week.

Coach Schulte Talks.

The Nebraska head coach was quoted by the Kansas City Star thru a local correspondent as saying: "When I was coaching at Missouri it rather puzzled me to see Cornhuskers win the valley conference championship practically every year. Occasionally another team might yank them off their perch, but generally Nebraska would finish at the top of the heap. Now I understand the situation.

"The answer is that Nebraska teams have a superiority in beef and muscle. They grow them big and husky up here in Nebraska and that's the reason—at least a prime factor—for Nebraska's persistent football successes."

"Speed and brains, mixed with the football instinct are worth a lot in football, and a little team sometimes can trim a big one, but the good big team nine times in ten, can whip the little one."

"Down in Missouri, where I coached several seasons, my normal team averaged 160 to 170 pounds. Just take a look at that layout of varsity candidates," continued Schulte, as he pointed to the Huskers who will fight for positions on this year's Nebraska eleven. "I can see, right now, where I ought to be able to pick a first team of fine quality and caliber that will average not less than 185 pounds. I shall not predict how many games we ought to win, but I will confess that we ought to develop a real drive and scoring punch with that beef, and gratify the expectation of Cornhusker followers by turning out an eleven that should win a good share of its games."

Will Have Heavy Team.

Nebraska will have a heavy team. No one doubts that it will have a team of better calibre than usual under the tutoring of its new coach and his staff of able assistants. But, to prick the beautiful bubble of some hilarious Cornhusker's flamboyant prophecies, let it be remembered—that every team on the Scarlet and Cream schedule also has a gridiron of more than average strength this season. The Tiger squad which Coach Schulte said in the above quotation had always been light, is ten or fifteen pounds per man heavier than usual.

Yea, bo, this is going to be an interesting season to follow.

MEN MAY CHOOSE HOUR FOR DRILL

Military Department Allows Students Choice of Two Periods a Week

Colonel Morrison Reports Large Registration—Service Men Get Credit

One of the largest registrations in the history of the University of Nebraska is reported by the military department. It is estimated that up to Friday evening as many as 750 men had enrolled for military work and over fifty additional names were added to the list Saturday.

The work in military science and tactics will be marked by a slight change of program. Students in the R. O. T. C. will be able to choose two of their weekly drill periods this year. Formerly students were required to drill three days a week at five o'clock. This semester the corps is divided into seven sections, six of which will be composed of men taking work on the city campus, and one which will contain those enrolled in the college of agriculture at the State Farm. All students will be required to drill Tuesday evening of each week at five o'clock, but may select two other periods during the week in which they could drill. Sections open for the students' choice are Section 1, 8 a. m., Monday and Wednesdays; Section 2, 9 a. m., Wednesdays and Fridays; Section 3, 11 a. m., Mondays and Wednesdays; Section 4, 1 p. m., Mondays and Wednesdays;

CHANCELLOR WILL GIVE ANNUAL CONVOCATION ADDRESS TUESDAY

University Head Will Open Series of Programs for the Present Year.

Other Attractive Talks and Musical Numbers Planned by Professor Grumann.

"The Progress of the University during the last Decade," is the subject of Chancellor Avery's address at convocation Tuesday. It will be the first convocation of the year and will be held at 11 o'clock in Memorial Hall. The opening of the present year marks the tenth anniversary of Chancellor Avery as head of the university. The Daily Nebraskan will contain a full account of the speech and will be distributed immediately after convocation is over.

Professor P. H. Grumann is planning convocation programs for the fall with special care. The first will be held September 23rd when Chancellor S. Avery will deliver the annual address on the subject "Progress of the University during the Last Decade." This occasion will be of particular interest for the chan-

Faculty Greatly Increased--Many New Professors-- Several Return Who Have Been in War Service

The University of Nebraska will open its regular class work this week with a considerable increase in the faculty. Many of the additions are new people who have never been in the institution before. Quite a number are men who have been connected with the university in several capacities but of late have been away in war service. Their return, therefore, is worthy of special mention. An attempt was made Tuesday before registration was begun to line up the new people for a photograph. This was not very successful for less than half could be assembled. Since then some of the newest additions to the faculty have appeared.

The following list comprises the fifty-one members who may be classified as new:

Subscribe for the "Rag" Today

Subscribe for the Daily Nebraskan today! Don't put it off until tomorrow, for there is no time any better than the present. Tuesday and Wednesday will be Tag Days and every good cornhusker who subscribes for the "Rag" will be wearing a tag before he leaves the campus.

Everybody on the campus will get the Daily free until the Thursday issue. Beginning Friday morning, absolutely no one who is unable to show a receipt will receive the paper. Those who have subscribed may get their copies at Station A in U. Hall.

The subscription price per semester is $1.25. For that amount the student receives all the news of the campus when it is news, all official announcements and notes of interest.

Give your order now at the Student Activities Office or to one of the solicitors on the campus. Don't miss a copy! Get out that $1.25, and put on the sign of a "Rag" subscriber!

Professor Charles W. Wallace, University of Nebraska Man, Makes Million Dollars in Oil

Eminent Authority on Shakespeare Wins Riches in Texas

Oil Fields. Taught Here a Year After Seven Years' Leave of Absence in Research.

Prof. Charles William Wallace, of the English department of the University of Nebraska, who has been absent from his work here for a year, returns a millionaire. Professor Wallace is one of the best known authorities on Shakespeare and perhaps the greatest in the world for many years. For seven years, 1909 to 1916, he was in Europe on an extended leave of absence for research work on Shakespeare, examining some 5,000,000 historical documents and bits of interesting information about the great playwright. When his allotted leave had expired, he expressed the desire that he be granted a special leave to make money for continuation of his work. An extra year was given him and he proved that the time was well spent, by bringing back a cold million made in the Burburnett oil field at Wichita Falls, Texas.

"If I fail, he is quoted as saying, 'I'll return to the university. If I succeed I'll return to Europe at my own expense, and give 20 per cent of the money I make to maintain my successor.' The professor went at his venture with a will and won.

How He Did It. Williams Slavens McNutt in his article in Collier's on "The New Oil Millionaires," writes as follows about a famous professor whom friends of his declare is Prof. Wallace: "A man whose name I do not feel at liberty to mention sent word that he wanted to see me. I knew him by reputation and wondered what such a man could be doing in the oil fields. He is a professor of an American university and recognized as the world's greatest authority on his particular specialty in English literature. He has spent most of his life in research work abroad. I found him at a desk in a crowded oil office in Wichita Falls. He was as strange in that place and atmosphere as a submarine in Denver. For an hour he talked of museums and the people who make and maintain them; of rare editions and of age-withered documents bearing upon his specialty, many thousands of which by the way, he has examined during the course of his labor abroad. During the years of his research work in Europe he had spent not only what the university paid him, but his entire small personal fortune as well. About a year ago he came home. The time allotted him by his university had expired. His work was not completed. There was no money available with which he might return to Europe and carry it to completion.

"Give me a year's leave of absence," said the man of rare editions and dusty documents, "and I'll make the money. If I fail I will return and take up my duties at the university, and if I succeed I'll not only return to Europe at my own expense and complete my work, but I will give 20 per cent of the money I make as a fund for the maintenance of my successor."

FRATERNITIES PLEDGE LARGEST NUMBER OF STUDENTS IN HISTORY

Greeks End Spirited Rushing Season With More Than 300 New Members Pledged

Fantasia of Parties Ends in Burst of Pledge Buttons and Ribbons.

One hundred and sixty-four pledges were announced Saturday evening by the women's fraternities and as many by the men's fraternities. This unusually large number is attributed chiefly to increased registration in the university this fall and the renewed strength of many of the men's chapters since the end of the war.

The men's fraternity rushing started Monday, and continued thru-out the week. The women's fraternity rushing did not start until Wednesday, and altho restricted by the many and rigid rules of the Pan-Hellenic association, it was no less strenuous than that of the men.

The week was a fantasia of gate books, telephone calls, automobiles, and company manners, which ended in a burst of pledge buttons and ribbons.

The invitations to membership in university sororities were delivered Saturday afternoon by a motor corps organized for the purpose by Miss Marguerite McPhee, chairman of Pan-hellenic council. There were four cars in the service.

Miss Helen Curtice took with her in her car Miss McPhee and Miss Rachael Trester. Miss Gladys Wilkinson was accompanied by Mrs. D. F. Easterday and Miss Lorene Hendricks and Miss Genevieve Loeb. Miss Katherine Howey had with her Miss Alice Sedgwick and Miss Louise Pound. Miss Eve Gibbens was accompanied by Miss Mabel McAdam and Miss Winifred Hyde. All invitations were delivered without accident and it is the opinion of the Pan-hellenic association that the motor corps system of delivery worked to perfection.

A member of the council commented on the number of attractive girls in school and regretted that the limited rushing period made it impossible for them to meet all that they might have liked to invite to membership.
