WORKING FOR EFFECTIVE ROOTING

No one fails to appreciate the bigness of the task that confronts the Cornhusker football team when it tackles the stiffest schedule of all times. But little has been said about the way Nebraska students will share in bringing the success that the team hopes to win. What are our prospects in rooting? Are we to watch the Huskers compete on the gridiron with such teams as Minnesota, Notre Dame and Syracuse with the unorganized rooting, which has been such a deplorable feature of student spirit in other years? Or are we to marshal from thousands of student throats the good old Cornhusker yells and send them across Nebraska field until the stands reverberate and the battling gridsters catch the significance that legions of loyal supporters on the sidelines are fighting with the men on the field?

No one who was in the stands when Kansas played Nebraska in 1916 can forget how the famous "rock—chalk" yell of K. U. swept across Nebraska field, how it drowned and hushed the opposition, how it fired the Jayhawk players to plant the winning touchdown behind the goal posts. It was a glorious achievement that those who witnessed will not soon forget. A wonderful yell, it is true, but how useless it would have been had not every man and woman who yelled it, put the spirit of fight and determination into its ejaculation.

Soemhow Nebraska's rooting has never been successful. Followers of the school realize and admit it, eagerly hoping that the situation may some time be remedied. It is not the fault of the cheer leaders. They might yell and persuade until their voices were hoarse, they might shake their arms, and toss their megaphones and perform gymnastic antics, but all to no avail unless students could realize that all this was to draw from them the vocal expression of their spirit which could show the football men that they, too, were in the fight. The team must have something like this to stimulate it to a big achievement.

We are promised this year an organized system among cheerleaders who will try to get some organized rooting from students to replace the hit and miss piping of a few hundred throats. These cheerleaders will attempt to direct the yelling from the student sections into a mighty, concordant volume of cheering which will swell across Nebraska field with a magnitude unknown before. There will be a center of command and when "Altogether, now!" is given, it will be altogether, and not a misdirected play of enthusiasm.

Every student in the university may know these yells, by heart. Every cheerleader may be in perfect trim. But wouldn't it be ever so much more effective, wouldn't we get ever so much more unison if we could all get together and try them out. A little practice to strengthen our lungs and to overcome the timidity of yelling at the top of our voices might work wonders. We might at least try it. So why not all get together some day, go out to the field, learn how to work with the cheerleaders and get our voices in trim?

BUY A STUDENT TICKET

When the student football tickets go on sale this week, it should require no urging for every student to buy one. The four dollars which is spent for one will be more than repaid by actual enjoyment of the games and by the satisfaction which will come from helping to put over a successful athletic season. An attractive home schedule is offered. Every game is a big one and every game will require the strongest backing of Cornhusker adherents if Nebraska is to win. Purchasers of student tickets will have the privilege of sitting in the student sections where college spirit will run rampant and add spice to the battle. Failure to buy a student ticket is, in a sense, failure to support the largest school activity.

WHY FLUNK AGAIN?

At the end of every semester you have been at the University you have sworn solemnly that never again would you let work pile up on you until it was necessary to work night and day for a week before finals to keep from flunking the course. You meant all right each time you made such resolutions, but at the beginning of the next semester—oh, well, you just let things drift along, and the first you knew you were so far behind you never could catch up, and the same old thing happened again.

You are smart, and learn things easily, but it is just natural for you to put off studying while you take a nap, or go down town for a coke, or attend the dance, and that has been the reason you have drawn poor grades in the past.

You are starting a new semester now. This is the first week you have had assignments, and the same question is up for decision again. You hadn't given it very much thought until you read in the Kansas the other day that ninety hours of A's, B's and C's were required for graduation. It dawned upon you then that it might be well to look up your grades and find how you stand. You hope you haven't your full quota of D's yet, but if you have—well, it will help you to start that program you've always intended to start of getting each day's lessons the day for which they are assigned.—The Daily Kansan.

More than three hundred people attended the all university party given by the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. in the Armory, Saturday evening. By means of a clever registration scheme, the guests were divided into groups. Each group was required to present a stunt, after which the time was spent in relay races and games.

A marriage of great interest in university circles was that of Jean Burroughs and Lieut. Merrill Reed, which took place very quietly Sunday, September 21, in New York city in the church of the Transfiguration, commonly known as the Little Church Around the Corner. Mrs. Reed was graduated from the University of Nebraska in 1918 with Phi Beta Kappa honors. Other honors which came to her during her university career were election to Theta Sigma Phi, Silver Serpent and Black Masque. She is also a member of Delta Gamma. For two years she was on the staff of the Lincoln Daily Star and just before her marriage was with the publicity department of the Red Cross. Lieut. Reed also received his degree from the University of Nebraska. He is a member of Phi Kappa Psi and of the Innocents, and was at one time editor of the Daily Nebraskan. Lieut. and Mrs. Reed will make their home for the present in Chicago, as Lieut. Reed is assistant commandant of Northwestern university.

The alumni of Nebraska chapter of Aeoacia entertained the active chapter at a dance Friday evening at the Lincoln hotel. The ballroom was decorated in the fraternity colors, gold and black.
