

New Men Wanted for Chorus

Men wanted That is the greatest need of the University Chorus at the present time. Co-eds have turned out at every meeting in flocks and droves,—but the men!—where are the men? Occasionally one can be seen to slip in, as the crowd of femininity gathers around the entrance to the Art Hall at five o'clock. But what chance have fifteen or twenty men to make themselves heard when all those girls get started! Contrary to the general opinion, it is not yet too late to enter the chorus, and in addition to the enjoyment to be had in the singing and the social gatherings that come occasionally, an hour's credit is given if attendance is regular. Mrs. Raymond declared Wednesday after the chorus hour was over that it wouldn't hurt her feelings in the least to see about two hundred men come flocking in at the next meeting Monday evening at five o'clock.

LYMAN ADDRESSES UNIVERSITY STUDENTS

SAYS RELIGION AND EDUCATION NECESSARY TO SOLVE WORLD PROBLEMS

"The idea that education will solve all the problems in the world is wrong," declared Dr. Lyman, speaking at the mid-week meeting of the University Y. M. C. A. at the Temple, Wednesday night. "It won't do it alone, but only when combined with religion." This, he asserted, was shown when Germany, the most highly educated country in the world, committed atrocities in war that would put an Indian to shame.

"Leaders of men are those who are deeply religious, strong morally, and have their spiritual welfare at heart, such as Roosevelt and W. J. Bryan," he said. He cautioned freshmen not to overdue science. "A great scientist has said that scientists are the most narrow of men. They believe only that which they can see, hear or touch," he stated. "If, when you are a senior, you want advice and sympathy you won't go to the highly trained men of the university," he said. "You will go to a man, who although he may not hold such a high position, will be one from whom you may expect sympathy. An educated man is a good man only when he combines religion with his education."

Prof. A. A. Reed and Charles Fordyce attended the Saunders county institute for teachers last Saturday. The former talked on the high school curriculum and the latter on educational measurements.

Society Brand Satisfaction

FOR MEN EIGHTEEN TO TWENTY

Elbert Hubbard one advised: "Cultivate only those habits that you are willing should master you." Also it has been said "The habit of dressing well is a magnet that draws to itself so many other good habits that they lift a man into the high places of success despite himself." That's indisputable logic. Habits are the rails on which a man runs to heaven or somewhere else.

This store is prepared to plant the good clothes habit in the mind of youth, and to supply the quality of clothes to perpetuate that habit in men who have already formed it. We're just tingling all over to have you good-dressers, and want-to-be-good-dressers come in and admire these Society Brand Clothes which, in every fiber of materials and every stitch of making, are the best that brains can produce.
