NEBRASKA'S SPLENDID SHOWING

Nebraska's splendid showing in the game with Minnesota last Saturday shows that Coach Schulte has the making of a real team. The victory, for the Huskers count it as such, followed a bitter defeat at Iowa a week before and few believed that the team had the slightest chance of making a creditable showing at Minnesota.

The result which followed was gratifying. It was a dicerent team that trotted out to meet the northern foe on Northrop field. It was a team that had forgotten the sting of one defeat, a team that was fighting, determined to win, while all the country watched, and wondered, as the game went on.

Those who saw both games in which the Cornhuskers figured, marveled at the week's improvement. They said that within those few days Nebraska had transformed a helpless team into a powerful organized eleven. Minnesota was baffled by the Husker showing. It had expected a crushed and broken team; it found eleven men who had learned the lesson of defeat and had profited by it, who were playing together, organized, determined.

Nebraska is now on a par with Minnesota, one of the country's strongest teams. It has achieved a place which has won for it instant recognition. One week has accomplished what was seemingly impossible. Others may bring even greater results.

ATTENDANCE AT CONVOCATION

The remark has often been made that convocations do not receive the student support that they deserve. Convocations were instituted for the sake of the student, to give him the opportunity to hear worthwhile speakers on up to date topics and to hear good music, a pleasant relief from the week's round of classes and study. The attendance at convocation is usually very small. On Thursday mornings at eleven o'clock is given a talk or lecture, sometimes by a member of the faculty, sometimes by an outsider, but always by someone who is thoroughly acquainted with his subject. The subjects discussed are topics which college students, voters and soon-to-be-voters, should be familiar with from all sides, questions before the nation today which should demand the thoughtful consideration of its intelligent citizens. The governor of the state, and the nobility of foreign nations are some of the convocation speakers whom Nebraska students have the privilege of hearing. A musical convocation is given every Tuesday morning. Music from the best masters, rendered by artists, to hear which is a privilege rarely granted to some students from the smaller towns, is offered free of charge. Students should show their appreciation of such opportunities by a more regular attendance at convocation.

WHAT PEP WILL DO

"To say 'I will'—for you know you can—
That's pep!
To loo fork the best in everyman—
That's pep!
To meet each thundering knock-out blow,
And come back with a laugh, because you know
You'll get the best of the whole darned show,
That's pep!

Pep is one key-note to success. In this age of hard knocks, the man who overcomes all obstacles by sheer grit and determination is the man who counts among his fellows and in the eyes of the world. And small things are as the big ones. So we find that in football as well as in other phases of life, it is pep which gains the victory in the long run.

Anyone who knows anything about football is aware of the fact that sand, grit, courage and a spirit that cannot be crushed, are some of the things that give a good team renown. The Husker team is no exception to the ordinary football aggregation, and it is already showing the school that it is blessed with some real pep and fire. After a bitter defeat at Iowa the Huskers set to work with a determination to strengthen the week points in their playing, and at the end of a week of practice the team set out for Minnesota, not over confident, yet determined to give the best that was in them.

We all know the result of that game at Northrop field. To tie Minnesota, in fact to score at all, was a great surprise to football fans everywhere. Nebraska had "Sand and grit in a concrete base"—and with vitality and the Gophers in their own territory most of the time. Even when Minnesota was on the offensive, it was difficult for them to make any headway on Nebraska ground. Every man on the team, and the few Nebraska fans who were able to witness the game, knew that pep would count for a lot towards the success of the game.

Next Saturday, Notre Dame comes to Nebraska for the first home game of the season. It is up to the team to put forth the very best it has, and it will! We can bank on them for that! Now the students will have an opportunity to show how much pep they have. Nebraska has pep, and pep will go a long way toward making the game Saturday a Husker victory long to be remembered. The game will be a hard one, as Notre Dame is bringing one of the best back-fields in the country along with the usual husky line. Nebraska will be up against it, but pep will do wonders! Let every Nebraska be out to back the team with one hundred per cent pep!

The young man, one of the favored few who can still run a car, reached home late for dinner. "I got caught for exceeding the speed limit on the way home," he explained rather sheepishly. Have to appear tomorrow morning and get a fine or fifteen days." The wife clapped two blistered little hands. "What a providence!" she cried joyfully. "Take the fifteen days, Harry. The cook has just left."

STUDENT OPINION

DANCE LIMITATIONS

Because of the alleged misuse of privileges by committees for class hops and college dances, this column will be open for student opinions on this matter.

The charge has been made that too many complimentary tickets have been given to the committees and that proper restrictions have not been laid down for their distribution. It is also thought by some that a maximum price limit should be established to eliminate undue competition between the different classes. What would be a proper price?

This discussion should not include fraternity and sorority dances but only class parties and those given by the different colleges and organizations. Each article must be signed or it will not be printed. Leave contributions at the Daily Nebraskan office.
