ON TO OTHER FOES!

On with the play! With even breaks in the luck, the score should have been nine to seven. But it takes more than a defeat at the hands of Notre Dame to dishearten the Husker hosts. Nebraska acknowledged her defeat with becoming grace. She fell before a team, superior in a way, because it used better strategy. The first touchdown, which came so suddenly that it appeared to be a fluke, was the result of a cleverly conceived and operated play, and Notre Dame must be given the credit for it.

The rally which followed that first heart-breaking score shows the mettle of the Cornhusker team. The sting of Notre Dame's first touchdown had its effect and with a terrific onslaught of straight football, the men pounded their way across the goal line. They fought like true Cornhuskers to overcome the inevitable odds against them.

But the Notre Dame game is over now and Nebraska looks ahead. Sorry that we didn't beat them? Yes, but all the more determined to make a wonderful record in the weeks ahead for we know we have a great team with which to meet formidable schedule. We may not always win. But Nebraskans have caught the right vision in taking the attitude of losing occasionally to a good team rather than forever winning from those of no renown.

AN OPPORTUNITY FOR WOMEN

With the fraternity men starting a movement for greater democracy and fellowship among their numbers, why wouldn't it be entirely worth while for fraternity women to establish the same plan of exchanging dinner guests? The advantages and benefits of the movement apply equally well to women as to men and there is just as much opportunity for a great deal of good to be accomplished.

On the whole, there is less formality among university men and they have better chances of meeting each other than have women students. Their activities bring them in closer touch with each other and make it possible for them to cast aside restraint. Women, on the other hand, rarely come to know each other except through formal introduction which makes it all the more desirable that they should have full opportunity for extending their acquaintance.

THINK FOR YOURSELF

A University student should have a mind of his own. His work should always be approached with the spirit of inquiry and the statements of apparently wiser heads than himself should be accepted with a question mark. Only with this attitude of mind will the student emerge after four years of training with a mind that can blaze the way through dark paths without leaning on other minds for support.

Instructors are useful only as they direct the mind in the proper channel and point the way for individual research. They have a capacity for certain facts which they transmit to the student who is willing to grasp them, but these facts are useful only as they are the potential material for the student's further thought. The best student is not the one who thinks his way through these facts to some sort of a logical conclusion. It is worth while to form the habit of thinking for yourself.—The Daily Kansan.

SELFISHNESS

In the present crowded situation that taxes every faculty at the University, one can see many instances of selfishness on the part of students. Too many are bent on gaining their own immediate desires regardless of the effect on their fellow students.

One example of unqualified selfishness took place in the Library last week-end, when two girls appropriated the entire list of books on open reserve in one particular course, depriving all other members of their classes of the privilege of using the books. It would have been impossible for either of them to consume the knowledge contained in the books in two days, yet these two girls were simply actuated by the selfish desire that no one should "put anything over on them."

Ample chances for similar displays of pure meanness of disposition will present themselves daily at any institution where affairs are not conducted solely for individuals but for common benefit, as is the case at universities. Because of the inexcusable thoughtlessness and premeditated selfishness of a few, many are put to serious inconvenience. Before jumping to take advantage of any chance to "put one over," each student should stop to consider if he is encroaching on the rights of others.—Ohio State Lantern.

Society

Saturday, October 18

Fifty couples attended the fall party of Delta Tau Delta at the Lincoln hotel. Dr. and Mrs. E. B. Finney, Dr. and Mrs. D. D. Whitney, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Hall, and Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Waters acted as chaperones. There were a number of out of town guests.

About twenty-five couples were present at the dancing party of the Farm House, which was held at the chapter house. The chaperones were Professor and Mrs. Howard Gramblin.

A WORD FOR THE DEFENSE

The young man crawled into the august presence. "I should like to speak to you on an important matter, sir," he said. "Well, what is it?" growled the father of the girl in no encouraging tone. "I—I want to marry your daughter, sir!" "What?" The old man's face grew purple. "Marry my daughter? I am astonished! What on earth do you mean, sir?" "You—" "Now, now," soothed the youth, seeing defeat looming near and wanting to get some sort of satisfaction out of the interview, "don't talk that way. You are prejudiced against the girl. She's all right, really."—Ed. Bits.

Comfort in Eyeglasses

Nose-guards are made so comfortable now, so perfectly adjustable, that almost any kind of eyeglasses you desire may be worn.

It requires the expert skill of the trained optician to make glasses efficient in vision and comfortable to the wearer.
