M STREET PARK OLYMPIC SCENE

The earmarks of the old time class rushes which were the joy and diversion of the freshies and sophs of former years. The plan of the fight is simply to turn the fighters loose in the arena.

The old idea of the impromptu "knock them down, drag them out and throw them in the creek" manner of treatment for the unlucky class, which gives the freshman the advantage because of numbers, has been replaced by the free-for-all pole fight. No pre-Olympic outbursts have been in evidence, either on the campus or elsewhere.

Here is the history of the Olympic hero as written by a campus George Ade of 1911:

"There was once a proud stude who spent his 'iron boys' and 'cart wheels' for Gorgeous Rags and was a Fussie to beat the Band. He would not go in the Olympics because He was a Sophomore. Likewise He fussed a Regular Dame.

"On this same Campus was a Guy who wore a Cap and Corduroy Pants.

Also he smoked a Vile Pipe and was not a Lady Killer. He went in the Fracas because He was a Sophomore. He knew his Beauty could not be damaged.

"The Kandy Kid took the Swell Skirt and stood on the sidelines at the Riot. The Ruff Guy went in and the Beauty cast her Eyes on Him. 'Introduce Me to that Dandy Fellow,' she said, as she slapped him on his wrist watch.

"With Sore Feelings the Swell Dresser led the Guy to Her. The Guy at once became Chesty and made a Hit with the Co-ed and beat the High-fliers time with the Girl.

"Moral—Go into, not to, the Olympics!"
