SOPHOMORES TAKE HEART AT TRYOUTS

urged to co-operate with the committee in order that these strategic measures might be carried out successfully. The development of a real Olympics spirit was noticed in the congregation of small groups of sophomores in various parts of the chapel discussing new ways to vanquish the freshmen.

The sophomores who watch the tryouts of their classmates last night are making a few predictions about the way things are going to happen next Saturday, and the upper-classmen who viewed the events agree with them that they have a good chance to come out on top at the annual class scrap. Two years ago the sophomores won the Olympics 70 to 25, and a repetition is looked for this year. Some good men were uncovered in several events, and a number of last-minute "dark horses" appeared on the mat.

Several freshmen were present at the meeting, but they soon left at special request. Groups of innocent enough looking upper-classmen also watched the tryouts, but were viewed with an eye of suspicion by a few doubting sophomores.

The sophomores have taken heart again after the preliminaries last night. The sentiment of the class was voiced last night when Chairman Lawlor said: "Things certainly look better than they did this time last night. Although we are greatly outnumbered, the points and contests have been arranged so that this will not give the freshmen an advantage. Every man must be out Saturday morning."

Y. W. C. A. DISCUSSION GROUPS EXPLAINED AT VESPERS THURSDAY

The organization of Y. W. C. A. discussion groups was the theme of Thursday's vespers, when Miss Pauline Groves, general secretary of the city Y. W. C. A., gave a talk introducing the subject. Miss Ada Stidworthy, the leader, explained the purpose and the details of organization and the girls were asked to sign up for the classes. A whistling solo by Miss Florine Reed was appreciated by the audience as an unusual treat.

A large percentage of the girls at vespers enrolled in discussion groups. Others kept the cards for enrollment, promising to sign and hand them in later at the Y. W. C. A. room, where girls are being enrolled all week.

Miss Lenora Miller, of the Bible study department of the Methodist churches of Lincoln, will have charge of the organization. University girls working under her direction will lead the discussion groups.
