The Theatres

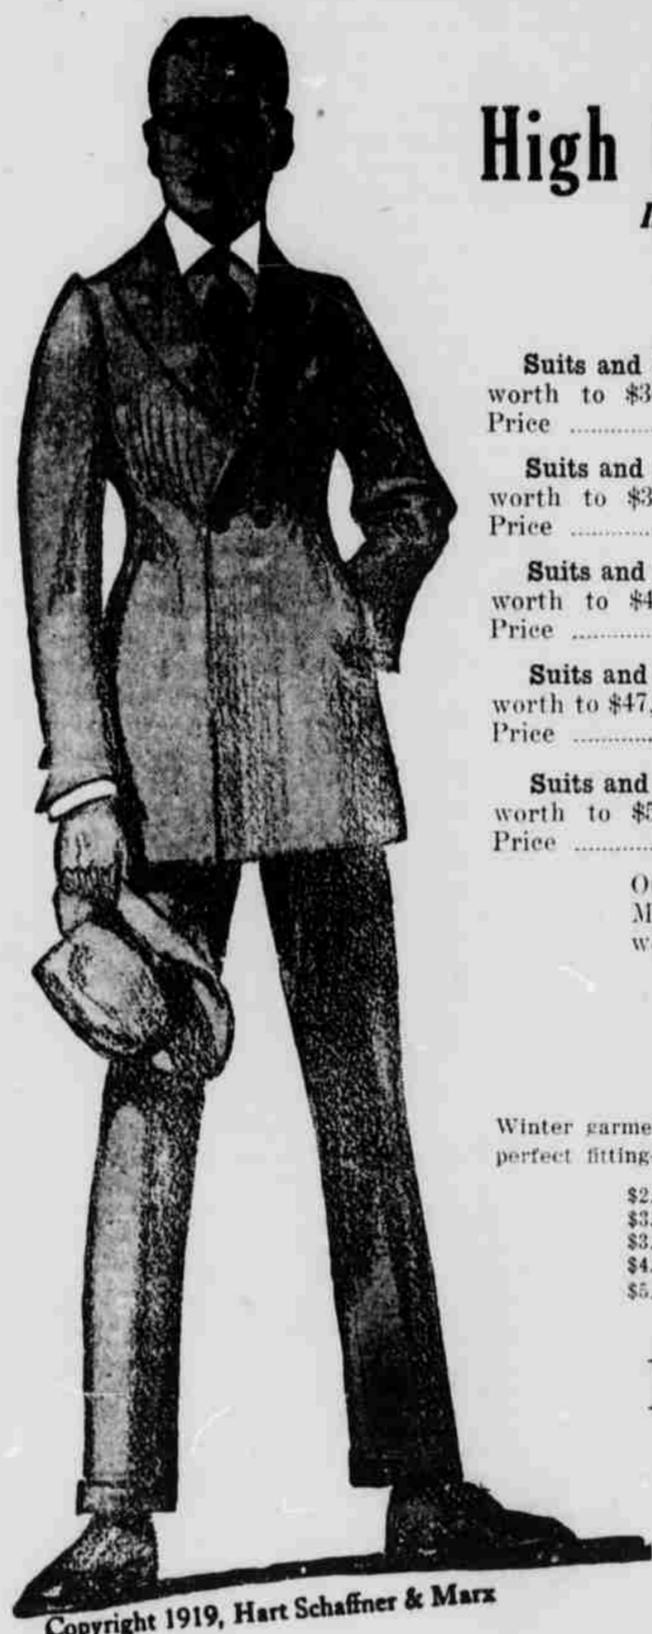

"Scarlet Days," which is being shown at the Lyric the entire week, is one of Griffith's latest and best productions. It tells of the life of the gold diggers in California back in '49. The story deals principally with Don Alvarez, a blue-blooded Spaniard, who has come to California, and poses as a Mexican cattle buyer, but who is in reality a frontier robin hood. It is the handsome, attractive Don Alvarez, who has stolen the heart of little Flameheart, a pretty little Mexican half-breed, and who after stealing it becomes indifferent. Then there is Bagley, who operates the combination hotel, saloon, and gambling house, and who has no respect for any woman. John Randolph is a young Virginian, who has come to the golden state prospecting for gold. Rosy Nell, the belle of the Bagley house, also plays a very important role. Rosy Nell has strayed from the straight and narrow path, but has not gone so far that she has forgotten she has a daughter in one of the most fashionable boarding schools in the east. Nell sends an allowance to her daughter every month, but never tells where she is nor the life she is leading. Lady Fair, as Nell's daughter is called, is driven west after leaving school, by the death of her aunt, the only mother she has ever known. She learns in a letter she found that her mother is in California, and because she can stand the loneliness no longer, she goes to her. Her experience after reaching California are a shock after having lived such a sedate quiet life in her school and with her aunt. Alvarez and John Randolph endeavor to keep from her the knowledge of her mother's life, and succeed for some time, but unlooked for trouble arises, and Lady Fair learns the truth about her mother, just before Nell is killed. The picture is full of picturesque scenes, thrills, and romance.

"The Vengeance of the Durands," is a story of jealousy. Not just jealousy perhaps, but of the trouble and unhappiness that comes to people who are afflicted with the disease. Percy Marmont, and Alice Joyce are seen in the roles of Henri Durand, and his attractive wife, Marion. The Chateau Durand is very popular among the social set of Paris, and the gallant young men pay court to Marion in such a manner as to cause Henri to become insanely jealous. His jealousy is directed more towards Tom Franklin, a young American engineer, whom Marion knew as a boy, more than towards any of the others. Marion is finally driven to desperation and kills herself. Henri blames Franklin for it, and is determined that he shall be revenged. Beatrice, his young daughter, grows to womanhood, and it is then that Franklin returns from his exploration trip through the jungles. Henri encourages Beatrice to fall in love with Franklin, and become engaged to him, and then to flirt with other men. Franklin is an American and not a Frenchman, however, and he copes with the situation in American style.

Every one has read Arthur H. Blow's novel, "By Right of Conquest," but never before have they seen it screened. The picture is called "The Isle of Conquest," and is starring Norma Talmage. In the same company with Norma is her little sister Natalie, who is seen in the role of Janie, Ethel's sister. Ethel is forced to marry a man she despises because her mother maneuvers it very cleverly, and plays on Ethel's sympathy, telling her that it would be selfish for her not to marry such a wealthy man, and deprive herself of the things that they should have. After she marries to please her family, she falls in love with another man, as is so often the case. She hated her husband, and loved a man that she had no right to even think about. There have been other women in the same place, but very few women have done what Ethel did. It is a thrilling picture, and one that makes you wonder whether wealth is worth the price you pay for it sometimes, or not.

LARGE CROWDS FOR ORGANIZED AGRICULTURE
The meetings of Organized Agriculture, or the annual meetings of the various organizations of farmers and breeders, which will be held in Lincoln January 19 to 24, are expected to draw the largest crowds in the history of better agriculture. About twenty organizations have programs scheduled. The annual poultry, corn, dairy and florist shows will be held at the time. All farmers and stock raisers, whether members of an association or not, have been invited to attend the meetings. Many speakers of state and national note are on the programs, and many questions of vital interest to farmers and stock raisers will be discussed. Programs and further information may be obtained from Secretary C. W. Pugsley, 1400 P street, Lincoln.

Organized Agriculture
Organized Agricultural meetings will be held this year from January 19 to 24 inclusive. A splendid program has been arranged and some very noted speakers are to be present.

Farmers' Income Tax
Prof. H. C. Filley went to Omaha to confer with the income tax collector in regard to farmers taking inventory to figure their income taxes. Don't you wish you were a lucky farmer?

Carnegie Not Alone
There are still a few people in the world who can see around a penny. They even forget to worship the almighty dollar as their one and only God. Carnegie was not the only man with an unselfish nature. For there is one such man in the state of Nebraska. His name is C. A. Newberry of Box Butte county. He is sending, at his own expense, and with no obligations whatever on their part, five boys to the state university short course. What bothers him is to know how to select the boys.

Farmers' Fair
Are you interested in University activities? If so, help boost the Farmers' Fair. It is to be put on by the students of the Agricultural College next spring. Nebraska staged one of these fairs several years ago. But due to the recent war nothing has been done for the last two or three years in regard to having another. Missouri had one of these fairs last year which was a big success. Election of officers for the fair this year is to be held next Thursday night at 7:30 social science 107. Many good men are out for the position and the competition is strong. The support of every member of Ag club is needed in order that the best men may be selected for the right position. The regular elections of Ag Club will be held the same night and at the same place.

The great need for expert tractor operators and truck drivers and the fabulous wages commanded, is causing a large number of men to take advantage of the splendid course of instruction in these lines, which is being offered by the agriculture engineering college at the State Farm. Members may enroll any Monday. About 100 men were enrolled last Monday. The course lasts for about four weeks.

Dean Burnett, Prof. Gramlich and M. B. Posson went to Cambridge, Neb. to attend the great Mousel Brothers Hereford Cattle Sale held January 6 and 7.

TROPHIES FOR CORN SHOW

Several hundred dollars and two trophies will be distributed to winners at the annual corn show of the Nebraska Corn Improvement Association to be held here during the week of January 15. The state will be divided into two sections with four classes in each. In addition there will be a statewide section of five classes and a small grain section of four classes. Two trophies, one of them valued at $250, will be awarded one for the best ten ears and one for the best ear. The show will be held at the university farm the week of January 19. R. Hogue of Crete, Will Lonegran of Florence and Charles Grau of Bennington compose the committee having charge of the show. E. P. Brown of Davey is president and W. W. Burr of Lincoln secretary of the Nebraska Corn Improvers' Association. The association will hold its annual meeting in the plant industry building, university farm, January 20 and 21.
