A SPLENDID RESPONSE

The results of yesterday's referendum are most satisfactory. This vote of more than 1,100 is larger than any other vote ever cast at this university and speaks well for the institution. The interest displayed in the matter means a high grade of citizenship. The results which have been flashed over the country will compare favorably with those of other schools. It has been demonstrated that students and faculty have the nation's welfare at heart and respond royally when called upon. Congratulations, students and faculty, upon your response.

NEBRASKA'S MEMORIAL FOR HER SOLDIER DEAD

In commemoration of the brave men who gave their "last measure of devotion," colleges and universities throughout the country are planning fitting tributes. The University of Nebraska is taking steps to preserve the memory of her soldier dead in a concrete manner. A committee composed of representatives of the faculty and administrative departments of the university is now considering plans in this connection. Data from other schools in regard to their memorials is being collected.

Projects launched by other schools vary from the $1,000,000 loan fund being raised by the University of Texas to be used in assisting returned Texas soldiers to attend the university, to a row of cedar trees each with a slab bearing the name of a hero to be planted on the campus of Montana University. Many colleges are building memorial halls, others are erecting tablets and busts to be placed in prominent buildings. As a rule the memorials are being financed by means of subscriptions from alumni and undergraduates.

For her sons and daughters who made the supreme sacrifice Nebraska would offer grateful and appreciative tribute. Although full power of action and decision rests with the committee in charge, perhaps suggestions from students, alumni and faculty of the university would not be amiss. The erection of a cement grandstand, similar to the one at Chicago University, with dressing rooms and showers beneath, is advanced by one student. Another offers the idea of a memorial building like the Union at Illinois and other schools. Such a building affords a meeting place for students, where they can study, read, talk, or merely while away leisure moments on the campus. Smoking rooms are provided for the men, also barber shops and shoe shining parlors. All meetings of student organizations are held there, as well as meetings of a more public nature. Other suggestions will be welcomed by The Daily Nebraskan, and signed student opinion letters will be published.

GOOD RIDDANCE

The entire nation breathes a sigh of relief when the "Soviet Ark" left America with its cargo of reds. And now the nation is drawing another breath preparatory for another sigh as the next ark leaves.

The undesirable communists, I. W. W.s, anarchists, and bolsheviks are being surely weeded out of the country. Those who escape deportation or other punishment will be left without leaders. And without leaders this class of society counts for nothing. They only followed the lead of the radicals because it was the easiest course for these most shiftless, lazy, worthless individuals to follow. They have no ideas of their own. Their conception of a government turned upside down was given them by the very persons who have been or will be deported.

The trouble the radicals have caused in this country has no doubt been due for the most part to the feeling of unrest that swept the world at the close of the war. All the world knows what the results were when the communists gained the upper hand in Russia. Austria is still in the grip of the red movement.

But with the leaders of the radicals removed and their followers hunting another policy to adhere to, it is not too much to expect the United States to soon regain herself and become the gathering of peaceful inter-dependent groups she was before such things as radicalism and bolshevism were given serious thought. If they have any reason whatsoever left even though it be ever so perverted the former radicals, reds, and I. W. W.s cannot help but understand that their methods will not be tolerated. And to avoid punishment these persons must turn to peaceful pursuits of honest occupations. Work is the real cure for unrest and nervousness, whether it be individual or national.

In a few years the people with the bolshevist ideas of today will be ashamed to admit that they once stood for that standard.—The University Daily Kansan.

PERSONALS

Margaret O'Brien, '23, left yesterday for her home in Omaha, to be gone for the rest of the semester, because of illness.

Mrs. C. F. Jones, who is acting as chaperone at the Delta Zeta house, returned yesterday from DeWitt, where she was called by the death of her sister.

Paul McPherson, of Ord, who has been out of school for some time, will return second semester, when he will continue his work in the pre-med course.

Helen and Margaret Thompson, returned recently from West Point, where they were called by the illness of their nephew.

Mrs. H. P. Larson, of Saint Paul, is a guest this week at the Alpha Xi Delta house.

John H. Judd, who has been a substitute assistant in the general zoology during this semester will act as an assistant in zoology, in the first year pre-med course for the rest of the year.

FACULTY AND ALUMNI NOTES

The faculty Men's Dinner Club will meet Friday, January 16 at the Hotel Grand. Professor Vaughn of the department of Modern Language will give a paper on "The Place of Modern Language" in American Education.

The December number of Science printed an article dealing with State Academies of Science, written by Dr. David D. Whitney of the Zoology department. Dr. Whitney is president of the Nebraska State Academy of Science.

Professor B. C. Bradbury, who took his graduate work at Nebraska, is teaching at Baylor University. He finished here three years ago but did not take his Ph. D. until last June as he had not finished his thesis until last year. Dr. Bradbury is the head of his department.

During Christmas vacation, three Nebraskan alumnae at John Hopkins University, Miss Bessie Noyes, Miss Susie Souther, and Miss Suzanne Parsons, had a dinner together and discussed old times in Nebraska. Miss Noyes has been studying at John Hopkins for the last three years and will receive her Ph. D. in Zoology there this spring. She expects to take up work as a teacher in one of the western coast states. She took her M. A. in Botany at Nebraska about five years ago. Miss Parsons, who took her M. A. and Ph. D. in Zoology here has been a medical student during the past four years. She will go to the Children's Hospital in San Francisco for her internship. She plans to specialize in children's diseases.

Victoria Palm Rooms. Cabaret hours 8 to 12 p. m. Victoria Hotel.

MAID PROPOSED TO MAN MARRIED A MINUTE LATER

"Watch out, fellows"—that is the warning that Frank Ashren, '23, wishes to give to the men of the university. This year is leap year, and Ashren says that he holds the record in milla-minute marriages. At one minute after 12 o'clock New Years Eve Mr. Ash-ton took as his lawfully wedded wife Miss Helen Hoggatt, of Kansas City, Kan., and promised faithfully to love, honor and obey her—principally to obey her. "Watch your step," says Ashren, "these girls don't stand and argue when it comes to leap year marriages. In just one minute you can be informed of the plan and in the next minute she has you."—Daily Kansan.

HALF PRICE

Just because sizes and styles are somewhat broken or individual garments are slightly soiled, hosts of the daintiest apparel imaginable will be snatched up for a mere fraction of its value.

There are Billie Burkes, chemise, and camisoles in Georgette, crepe de chine, wash satins and silks. Flesh, white, maize, and orchid shades predominate.

Many lovely cotton garments are also selling at Half Price.

BUBBLES

The movie haircut, as everyone is doubtless aware, is the permitting of hirsute adornment to accumulate around the ears, and does entirely away with the use of the clippers in removing it. Though comparatively new here, it has been in vogue (or should we say in vanity fair) in the east for some five years, and is just about due in Lincoln, owing to the government ownership of railroads which has delayed transportation to a great extent. We have exclusive interviews with prominent people, which we will submit, and trust that you will give consideration before casting your vote in the coming referendum.

We will now publish the interview with A. Barber, prominent tonsorial artist (Great Britain rights reserved). He says: "I am in favor of it. Formerly it took much time to cut the hair, but now the student gets in the chair, asks for the new haircut, we give him a neckshave, collect fifty cents and send him on his way rejoicing. Though the people in the barbershop from now on will lead the people to think of the shop as a Bolshevik hotbed, still the shortness of time now required to cut the hair, and its consequent increase in our income tax, more than compensates for it."

Mr. Father, proud parent of a college student, is opposed to it. In part, he says, "I am forever opposed to the new haircut. My son, who left home with a number of good habits, returns with a haircut, which he says makes him look like the leading man of Norma Talmage, but to me, he looks like the perfect counterpart of a protegee of Emma Goldman. It keeps me busy explaining to my friends, who inquire as to haircut of my son, that the barber in Lincoln are on a strike, which accounts for the imitation of an Australian bushranger by my heir apparent. My son and his friends at school probably resemble the personnel of the soviet ark which left recently for Russia. Even the barbers are not working there, I have admonished my son that if he wishes to continue his scholastic pursuits, he shall at least attempt to cut his own hair, with whatever implement that will serve the purpose."
