GENERAL WOOD ARRIVES TODAY

Presidential Candidate Has Busy Program Before Him Including Inspection of R. O. T. C.

Major General Leonard E. Wood

Major General Leonard Wood, accompanied by Mrs. Wood and members of the staff, will arrive in Lincoln at ten o'clock this morning to remain until late tonight. A busy day has been outlined for the general. He will be met at the station by Major Morrison and officers of the military department and will be at once escorted to the state farm to inspect the R. O. T. C. companies there. Following the review at the farm General Wood will return to the city to inspect the infantry regiment and the artillery battalion on the campus. The program for the remainder of the day includes a luncheon at the Grand Hotel at noon, an address to the constitutional convention at 2:30 and an address at the annual banquet of the Daughters of the American Revolution at 6:30 at the Lincoln Hotel. Students will be given an opportunity to hear General Wood at the luncheon at noon when he will speak on a non-political subject. Plates for the luncheon will be sixty cents. The general public is invited to meet General and Mrs. Wood following the speech before the constitutional convention at the capitol. A great deal of interest is evident on the campus as well as in the city over the visit to Lincoln of such a prominent presidential possibility as General Wood. Although the general delivered the commencement address of the university last spring, events transpiring since that time have combined to make the present visit more of an occasion than the one of nine months ago. It is only natural that

1920 ANNUAL BEING RAPIDLY ASSEMBLED

Editor Reports Book Farther Advanced than Ever Before at this Time.

The preparation of the Cornhusker is farther advanced than it ever has been before, at this time of year, is the report of Harold Gehb, the editor-in-chief.

Many snapshots have been turned in. They will be classified in departments of student life, fraternities and sororities and military. More snapshots will be accepted for all these departments. Those for the military department may be handed to the military editors. The fraternities and sororities will each have an equal amount of space in that department. The student life section will contain cartoons as well as snapshots. Cartoonists whose abilities were unknown have been discovered for this work.

The organization and junior and senior photographs have been sent to the engraver. Over a hundred more junior and senior pictures will be found in this Cornhusker than in last year's book. The freshman editors are sparing no efforts to make their department a success.

HOLCOMBE DRIVE RETURNS NOT YET OBTAINABLE

The C. Steele Holcombe campaign was extended until Sunday night, February 22, and soon official returns of the results of the drive, will be obtainable. Up until Saturday noon the returns were slightly more than $900.00 and it was at this time that it was decided to give subscribers until Sunday evening to contribute toward the campaign.

FACULTY ROOMS IN TEMPLE NOW READY

Chancellor Avery Announces Completion of Club Quarters for Professors.

Instructors Will be Organized Under Professors Fossler and Conklin.

Chancellor Avery announces that the rooms in the basement of the Temple for the use of the men faculty members and the rooms for the use of the women faculty members are now ready to be occupied. The rooms were designated by the chancellor at the demand of the faculty members who conceived the idea of the advantages of such quarters. Furniture which has been used in other quarters has been placed in the rooms for the men by the university. Furnishings for the women's rooms will be purchased from equipment fund. The maintenance of these quarters and the further development of the furnishing will be met at the faculty's expense. The following is the chancellor's announcement:

"To All Officers of Administration and Instruction:—
"The rooms in the basement of the Temple for the use of the faculty men and those for the use of faculty women are now ready to be occupied. The university has already placed in the rooms for faculty men some furniture previously used in other quarters. A modest sum from back taxes on the building and equipment fund (a fund which cannot be used for salaries) has been assigned for the partial furnishing of the rooms for the women. A nucleus of the fur-

DEBATERS WILL BATTLE SOON

High School Teams Under Prof. M. M. Fogg Are Preparing for Annual Contest.

Prof. M. M. Fogg, president of the Nebraska high school debating league, announces that the debating program has been almost completed. The schools, divided into ten districts, will debate this year on the prohibition of strikes on railroads doing interstate business. The first series of debates will be held about the middle of March. A new feature of the debating league provides for the contests of the different high schools which have won district championships. This is the thirteenth annual series of contests of the Nebraska high school debating league.

Dress Suit Supply Exhausted— Johnny Sounds S. O. S. To Dad

The formal season is on. Yes, the formal season is very much on—in fact the word "formal" is paramount in the minds of the students who are of the opinion that readin' and writin' are not the only branches of amusement offered in the city of Lincoln. And say, some one said the other day that formals were a luxury and that the average university student who catered to such society was a floor flusher. Now that was a bold statement and perhaps after a thorough investigation one might find degree of truth in the assertion. The question whether dress suits and party gowns as worn by university students are a luxury will not be dwelled on in this article because the Daily Nebraskan is not in a position to dictate the laws of society to its readers.

Well, it happens that there is a great scarcity of dress suits and tuxedos in the city. Local merchants state that the supply of evening haberdashery has been wiped out in the last few weeks by the influx of certain university students who have anticipated a bumper "bid" season. The result is, of course, that no more dress suits and tuxedos are available for rental purposes. Dealers claim it is impossible to replace the supply and they are unable to say when the situation will be relieved.

Johnny happened to be invited to a party last week. (Just how he rated the function, he doesn't know.) Like the majority of the social hounds Johnny failed to possess a dress suit in his wardrobe so he skipped his swimming class and embarked on a rental campaign. He marched down the main business artery dreaming of the glorious time he expected to have at the week-end revelry. Wouldn't he tripped down the queens court? Certainly Johnny thought—he would be nobility personified.

The hero met with numerous obstacles in his endeavor to gain his objective. Blank had only three minutes ago sold his last suit to Spivins; the Dash company had a couple to sell and didn't care to rent because they expected to dispose of them on the morrow; the Dot concern never carried evening suits in stock and furthermore Mr. Dot avered he didn't expect to fill his shelves with such superfluous garments. Johnny certainly was receiving the glad hand at these clothing emporiums. Perseverance and determination were the elements that kept him in hot pursuit for hat dress suit and Johnny consoled himself by declaring that he WOULD go to the party.

The last store in town was visited. "How about a dress suit," inquired our social demon. "Think we have your fit," was the clerk's answer. Anticipation was rapidly developing into realization when the clerk brought out the only site Johnny could possibly be able to wear. The suit was tried on—the coat was a trifle long and the sleeves too short. Next came the trousers—impossible. Johnny and his brother could fill them nicely. Five minutes later he left the store empty handed.

Was the lad defeated? Well almost, but no; Johnny had the spark of a big idea. He dashed to the telegraph station and sent the following message:

"Father please send me by next train your dress suit. Lincoln merchants unable to give me satisfaction."

Yes, Johnny attended the formal.

FRESHMAN LAW MEMBERS ELECT MINOR OFFICERS

At a meeting of the freshman law class, held in Law 101, Friday morning at eleven o'clock, the following minor officers were elected to hold office the second semester:

Vice-president ..... Ralph Ford
Secretary ..... Walton Roberts
Treasurer ..... E. Bailey Morcom
Ward Randall was elected president of the class at a meeting some time ago. The second-semester class is almost as large as that of the first term, which was the largest in the history of the school.

FACULTY MEMBERS HOLD MASS MEETING

Professors Discussed Salary Question at Spirited Gathering Saturday.

Chancellor Replies to Resolution Adopted at Recent Meeting of Instructors.

A second mass meeting of the faculty members of the university was held Saturday morning in the auditorium of the Social Science building, with Professor Guernsey Jones in the chair and Professor Laura Pfeiffer acting as secretary.

A request was presented from Chancellor Avery for faculty co-operation in auditing the university accounts for the purpose of determining what funds are available for the increase of salaries. Professor O. R. Martin was named to assist the chancellor in this examination.

The meeting expressed its cordial appreciation of a letter from the chancellor in reply to the resolutions adopted recently presented in behalf of the faculty. The chancellor's letter is as follows:

"The University of Nebraska
Lincoln
Chancellor's Office
Feb. 19, 1920.

"Professor Guernsey Jones,
The University.
"Dear Professor Jones:—
"The report of the informal meeting of the instructional force which you handed me shortly before the meeting of the board was duly presented to the regents for their consideration.
"The report was received by the

ART TALKS BEGIN TODAY

"Canal in Venice" Attracting Much Attention at University Exhibit.

A program which provides for daily gallery talks and lectures by faculty members and artists has been arranged for the week commencing today, February 23, in connection with the Art Exhibit now being held in Art Hall of the University Library Building. The program includes:

Monday, 8 p. m.—Talk by Mrs. Dean R. Leland, a Lincoln artist.

Tuesday, 8 p. m.—Official lecture in room 310, of the American Federation of Art of the History of American Painting. Illustrated by stereoptical slides.

Wednesday, 8 p. m.—Lecture by Prof. W. F. Dann.

Thursday, 8 p. m.—Another lecture by the American Federation of Art. Illustrated.

Friday, 8 p. m.—Reception to the Nebraska Press Association and the university's faculty in the exhibition rooms.

Saturday, 8 p. m.—Lecture by the American Federation of Art. Illustrated.

Many of the paintings shown at the excellent exhibit are the subject of much favorable comment. "Canal in Venice" by Oliver Dennett Grover is one of the most beautiful of the smaller paintings which are being presented, and is attracting much attention. The picture portrays a peaceful water-scene in the streets of the City of Canals, with a floating gondola in the distance. A bridge connecting the streets is exquisitely painted. The picture is noted for its superb shadings and water effects.

HUSKERS WHIP IRISH TWICE

In Two Bloody Battles Schissler's Five Outscrap Catholics from Notre Dame and Emerge Victors.

The Nebraska Cornhuskers continued their winning streak by defeating the Notre Dame basketball five in two hard-fought games on the Armory floor on Friday and Saturday nights. Both games were featured by rough playing on the part of both teams, the Irishmen having the upper hand, however, in this part of the game. The score of the first game was 25-18 and the second 31-15. The Armory was packed to the limit on both occasions and loyal cheering for the Huskers by the spectators was greatly in evidence. John Pickett, substitute forward sent in by Coach Schissler during the last ten minutes of the first game, skillfully eluded the shifty Catholic guards and registered four field goals from difficult angles, thus winning the game for the Cornhuskers.

During the first half of the Friday game the Notre Dame tossers had a slight edge over the Huskers and were leading 9-7 at the end of this period. Only one field goal was registered by the Nebraska team in this half, Austin Smith tossing the ball through the hoop for this counter. Shot after shot was afforded the Huskers but Schissler's men seemed unable to connect with the basket. On the other hand the Irish team was at its best and gained three field goals and three free throws.

As soon as the whistle sounded for the second half, however, the Huskers rallied and from then on had the game well in hand. Baskets by Russell, Patty, and Pickett gave the Nebraska team a substantial lead and during the last few minutes of the game Schissler's men were playing rings around their opponents. Much fouling and rough playing was in evidence and Referee Jones ordered Bekins from the floor, charging him with "poor sportsmanship." Nebraska adherents could not see the justice of this decision but the decree of the official is law. Brandy, star Irish

INTER-GREEKS FIGHT TOWARD CHAMPIONSHIP

Sigma Chi, Bushnell Guild, Sigma Nu and Delta Upsilon Survive First Battles.

Sigma Chi, Bushnell Guild, Sigma Nu, and Delta Upsilon are the survivors of the first four games of the preliminary round of the inter-fraternity basketball tournament, played Saturday on the Armory floor. Alpha Gamma Rho, Kappa Delta Phi, Acacia, and Delta Chi were the losers, respectively. All of the games were close and some interesting play was developed. The game between Bushnell Guild and Kappa Delta Phi ended in a 10 to 10 score and an extra five minutes of play was necessary before the game was won by the B. G. team. The Sigma Chi's had little trouble in winning from Alpha Gamma Rho, the score standing 8-2.

Sigma Nu and Acacia fought nip and tuck through the first half but the Sigma Nu team forged ahead and took the game 17-12. Two field goals and five free throws by Dobish were largely responsible for the victory. Delta Chi was practically snowed under by the Delta Upsilon tossers, winners on the tourney last year. The D. U. team shows championship form again this year. The work of Fitzsimmons and Gardner featured the game, the former accounting for fourteen points. Both Dana and Carson, of the D. U. team were removed from the floor by Referee John Riddell, because of personal fouls.

The remaining three games of the preliminary round will be played today. Pi Kappa Phi will meet Alpha Sigma Phi at five p. m. Delta Tau Delta plays the Farm House team at six p. m. and at seven p. m. Silver Lynx clashes with Pi Phi Chi.
