STOCK COMPANY WINS APPROVAL

Herman Thomas Plays Heaviest Role of Season in "The Witching Hour."

"You can't shoot—you can't pull the trigger—you can't even hold that gun," said Jack Brookfield and the would-be assassin dropped the pistol. Quiet power and absolute poise at all times marked the work of Herman Thomas who played one of the heaviest roles of the season—that of Jack Brookfield in "The Witching Hour," which was given by the University Players Thursday evening and which may also be seen tonight and Saturday night.

Very charming, as the appealing southern woman, was Genevieve Addleman, her emotional scenes were beautifully restrained. Neil Brown created a very real Judge Prentice that will stick in the minds of his audience. Glen Foe did such steady, consistently good work as the villain that the audience felt impelled to hiss him several times. Friends of Walter Herbert felt pleasure in watching him build up his growing reputation for reliability in any part he is placed. Olive Means and Herbert Yenne won the approbation of the audience and Helen Harrington made a very graceful and pleasing Mrs. Campbell. Carlele Jones made a truly orialistic "drunk" and Messrs. Coombs, Reese, Nell Stone and Peterson created very real people.

Cast in order of their appearance: Jack Brookfield.....Herman Thomas
Tom Denning.....Erwin Clark
Harvey.....C. L. Coombs

PROFESSOR VAUGHN GIVES ILLUSTRATED LECTURE

Professor H. H. Vaughan conducted a strictly modern meeting of a French class Wednesday evening. At his invitation the members of the class and about an equal number of guests assembled in U Hall. Professors Green, Dilworth, Conklin and Reese were among the guests. For an hour they visited the old cathedrals of France, Notre-Dame, La Trinitie, Novens, Rheims, and others, as picture after picture was thrown upon the screen. As he lantern slides were shown, Professor Vaughan read a description of them, which he had written. The pictures were post cards he collected while in Europe. The class was very enthusiastic about the entertainment. Professor Vaughan looks forward to the time when he can have a projector lantern in his own recitation room and conduct frequent classes of this nature.

FORGET ME NOT!

The days of doom and judgment have arrived. The library is crammed with frantic students who beseege the librarians with calls for the one copy of the book which contains all of the neglected assigned readings for the last month. The long despised professor comes into his own and beaming faces and pleasant conversation greet him whenever he meets any member of his classes. The student who has faithfully and unobtrusively listened and taken notes during the entire quarter is in great demand. Those who have calmly passed him up heretofore, dash up behind him and slapping him heartily on the shoulder say, "Hello, there Mr. Blank! Isn't it a lovely day?" and use similar gay babblings as a lead-up to the big thing which usually follows thus: "Do you know I've lost all my notes in History 92 and I'm just sick because I know I'll flunk" and so on. And then dear Mr. Blank obligingly offers him the use of his own work and the conversation is ended.

But next week, Mr. Blank, your popularity will have waned and you will have opportunity to meditate considerably upon the friendships that last only while you are in possession of the coveted class notes or are in demand as a voter at elections.

PROF. CARL BEUTEL GIVES RECITAL AT CONVOCATION

Prof. Carl Beutel, head of the Musical Department of Wesleyan University, gave a very pleasing piano recital at convocation yesterday.

"La Coquette," the fifth number of Prof. Beutel's program is his own composition and was enjoyed mostly for its delicacy and originality of style.

Prof. Beutel presented a very unusual and unique program.

The program:
Nocturne in B major, Chopin.
Mazurka in B minor, Chopin.
Scherzo-Valtz, Moszkowsky.
Tempo Minuetto, Zamella.
La Coquette, Beutel.
Play of the Waters, Ravel.
Closing Scene from Tristan and Isolde, Wagner-Liszt.

ISSUE CALL TO SENIOR ACTORS

Copies of "If I Were King" Ready for Upper-Class Player.

Tryouts for "If I Were King," senior play, will be held Thursday evening, March 25, in the Temple theater under the supervision of Miss Alice Howell, director. People will be selected for each of the thirty parts in the play and all who are interested in the success of the seniors' final offering to the public are urged to plan on trying out for some part.

The copies of the book, "If I Were King" and typewritten cuttings for various characters to use in the tryouts will be placed on the reserve desk in the library Friday afternoon or Saturday morning. These are not of necessity to be followed and other cuttings can be taken from the play at random if the person desires. Short speeches or series of speeches are advised for use Thursday night. Seniors, all seniors are free to try out singly, in couples or groups.

A special effort is being made to interest seniors outside of the dramatic departments of the University, both because it is desired to have the cast fully representative of the class and because it is always true that much unknown talent exists outside of the University players. With the great number of parts there are many opportunities for all who try out.

HAVE NOT SETTLED FOR CORNHUSKER PICTURES

Work is being held up on the 1920 Cornhusker because a number of organizations, individuals, and fraternities have not paid for their space in the annual. All pictures are held at the Student Activities Office, according to the rules of the Student Publication Board, until the money is turned in for the respective organizations. All officers of the organizations listed below should see to it that their money is turned into the Townsend Studio this week, or the management will be forced to leave them out of the Cornhusker.

Delinquent organizations are as follows: Ag Club, Dairy Club, Dramatic Club, Classical Club, Pharmaceutical Club, Pre Medics, Sigma Delta Chi, Silver Serpents, Spanish Club, Theta Sigma Phi, Valkyrie, and Chorus.

The officers of the above named organizations have no doubt let this matter slip their minds, but they should settle these accounts at once.

The March issue of the "Awgwan" is out and ready for distribution to subscribers at Station A. This issue is the "Spring Poets" number and is one of the best numbers this year.

NEW TRACTOR TESTING METHODS GROW POPULAR

Official state testing of tractors at the University of Nebraska is attracting attention in Canada, England and other countries, according to letters coming to the agricultural engineering department. Prof. L. W. Chase has recently received a request for drawings and specifications of testing machinery from F. A. Frey, a Canadian tractor expert. Mr. Frey said he wants the drawings for use in England. A tractor demonstration in England last fall featured American methods of the same order as are now employed by the University of Nebraska in making tests according to the law passed by the last legislature. Mr. Frey complimented the University for the methods it has adopted in the testing work.

DR. D. W. KURTZ TO SPEAK HERE MONDAY

Dr. D. W. Kurtz, President of McPherson College, Kansas, has promised to be at the University Monday to open the "After College—What?" program. He is a man of broad education and was one of the leading speakers at Estes Park Student Conference last summer.

At Estes Park he attracted wide attention because of his ability to analyze and answer perplexities of students trying to relate principles of science to teachings of religion. He has acquired his education through extensive study both in this country and in foreign countries. Mr. D. C. Heffley, the general secretary of the University Y. M. C. A., who has heard him speak, characterizes him as full of fun and humor. He says, "It is worth any student's time to have his keen analysis of problems." Dr. Kurtz and Dr. Gilkey, who will also be here next week, were working in the Universities of Germany at the same time.

HUSKERS START EARLY PRACTICE

Football Squad Will Begin Spring Work-Outs Monday Under New Tutor.

Spring practice will begin Monday on the Husker gridiron. The football squad is anxious to begin getting into form for a stiff schedule this fall. About thirty men will be out for the initial work-outs.

A month's drilling has been slated by Coach Schulte for the football candidates and each afternoon will be given over to an hour or more of stiff work with the pig-skin. Form and accuracy will be developed with care by the instructor.

Coach Schulte is busy with his tracksters and will be unable to care for the grid men, in person, during spring practice, but will leave their preliminary instruction to his assistant, A. A. Sturzenegger, who will tutor the Husker players.

Sturzenegger to Coach

Sturzenegger comes from Michigan where he was aide-de-camp to Fielding H. Yost as instructor of the Michigan team in 1919. Sturzenegger was formerly a Nebraska halfback, playing with the Husker eleven a dozen years ago.

Phil Proctor, formerly of Kearney high school and a halfback on the navy team at Great Lakes, who was a member of the squad under the rule of 'Jumbo' Stiehm, will be back in school next year if his present plans are carried out. Proctor has one year more in which he is eligible to play and it is his intention to return to Nebraska this fall to take his degree.

WILL HOLD UNITED AG MIXER SATURDAY NIGHT

The United Ag Mixer, to be held in the Armory, Saturday, March 20, promises to be a real party. The fun will begin promptly at 8:30 and a large crowd is expected to be present.

The committees in charge have arranged for musical numbers and several stunts will be given. Miss Marjorie Corrington will give a solo dance as one of the features of the program. In the dancing which will follow, a novel idea will be carried out in getting the members acquainted with each other. A card, with the name of each person thereon, will be exchanged with other guests, and in this way formal introductions are eliminated. Scratch program dancing is to be strictly tabooed.

Ralph Theisen's five-piece orchestra will furnish the music. Refreshments will be served. Don't forget the date and come early.
