VOCATIONAL LEADERS TO GRANT INTERVIEWS

Noted Visitors on Campus this Week Will Have Personal Talks With Students.

One of the features of "After College—What?" Week receiving most emphasis is the opportunity for students to have personal interviews with the men and women who will be here to help students select their vocations.

The time scheduled for interviews begins at nine o'clock this morning. The committee in charge urges students desiring interviews to have them as early in the week as possible to avoid a rush toward the end of the week, as only a limited number of interviews are available. Times for interviews must be scheduled beforehand with the secretary of the person to be interviewed, with Mr. Heffley at the Y. M. C. A. office or with Miss McKinnon at Woman's Hall. The secretary for Dr. Kurtz is Charles Spacht; for Dr. Gilkey, Oscar Hansen; for Miss Corbett, Hattie Harperley; for Miss Bennett, Tracie Jack.

Mr. Heffley recommends Dr. Kurtz as especially qualified to help students who are having difficulty in finding the relationship between science and religion. Vocations are Dr. Gilkey's specialty. He will be in Lincoln less than twenty-four hours, but an effort will be made to utilize all his time. Dr. Culler, Miss Corbett and Miss Bennett will arrive later in the week.

According to tradition, students will be given the whole day as a holiday. The usual festivities of ancient custom will feature the out-door entertainment, and committees from the various classes are busily at work on plans for the biggest Ivy Day in the history of the University of Nebraska.

MEDICS' 'PULSE' WILL BEAT AGAIN

Nebraska Doctors to Re-Issue College Organ After War Had Suspended Publication.

The official publication of the "Pre-Medics" which is known as "The Pulse," will be re-issued, according to announcements made by the editorial staff of the paper, and by Herman S. Delano, news editor. The paper was suspended during the war. The University medical faculty sponsor its publication.

Last fall some of the "Medics" and the faculty began to nourish back to life the apparently lifeless paper. Finally their patience and diligence was rewarded, and the "Pulse" began to beat once more.

The following staff has been elected for the paper:

Editor—George Haslund
Managing Editor—Emil C. Peterson
Associate Editor—Terry Rivet
News Editor—Herman S. Delano
Business Manager—Cullen Root
A.A.S.L. Business Manager—Maud Miller
Circulation Manager—Geo. H. Burnett
Cartoonists—Harley Anderson
Melvin Newquist

The paper's aim is to bring the students and faculty closer together. It will reach out to the alumni, and to the entire medical field, and it will keep its subscribers posted as to affairs at Nebraska's Medical School.

Faculty members have been asked to contribute to the columns of "The Pulse" with special articles and interviews. Besides these features, the publication will be replete with special articles by medical leaders, human interest stories, local news items, and jokes that will make the "Pulse" smile.

The "Medics" at Omaha have their own staff and they will contribute half the material. The circulation will begin with 500 subscriptions and will cover several states. The first issue of the Pulse will be out on April 1.

Major Parker was stationed at the University of California at Berkeley from January 1 to April 1, 1918. He then was transferred to Leland Stanford where he has been for two years, and where he has had marked success with the Stanford R. O. T. C.

He left California March 20 for Salt Lake, and hopes to make his permanent home in that city. He describes it as "one of the most beautiful places in the Rocky Mountains."

HUSKER COACHES ARE RE-ELECTED

Schulte and Schissler to Return in 1921 With Salary Increases.

PROSPECTS LOOK BRIGHT

The two men who have tutored Cornhusker teams in inter-collegiate athletics for the past school year have been retained for the coming year, according to an announcement made Friday by the administrative department of the University.

Henry F. Schulte and Paul J. Schissler have been re-elected. The head football and track coach, and the head basketball and baseball tutor, have been told that Nebraska needs them again in 1921, and needs them badly. The salary of Coach Schulte, formerly $3,500 was increased to $3,600, while Coach Schissler's stipend of $2,000 was jumped to $2,500.

Fred J. Luehring, Princeton University man, will come to the University next fall as director of athletics and physical education. With Schulte and Schissler as his aides, Husker followers are looking forward to a successful year in Nebraska athletics.

Schulte came to the University last September, taking immediate charge of the football squad as head coach. Discouraging results marked the first of the gridiron season, but the Huskers fully redeemed themselves and rounded out the campaign with victories over Missouri, Kansas, and Syracuse, after staging a spectacular rally.

Coach Schissler's basketball squad, known to some as the "ponies" when only the small men play, wound up a brilliant season with 22 victories out of 24 games played. The Schissler team outscored its opponents by a margin of more than two to one, and earned a rating as one of the most formidable basket aggregations in America. Athletic circles at the University hail the retention of Schulte and Schissler as a good omen for the success of Cornhusker sports during the coming school year.
