Miss Corbett has a personality that has met enthusiasm from the girls who have heard her speak. At Vespers she spoke of the urgent needs of the present time. From her own experience she told of girls who are interested in the vital social, political and economic problems and their work, and contrasted them with other girls who are spending all their time trying to find entertainment for themselves. In the evening she gave concrete information and statistics about the need for women of almost all vocations in foreign fields. Miss Corbett will leave Lincoln Thursday.

Dr. Kurtz, in his address Tuesday evening on "The Creation of Democracy," declared that democracy can not be inherited, but must be created anew in each generation.

SENIOR PLAY SET FOR IVY DAY EVE

Try-outs for the twenty-nine characters in the play will be held tonight in the Temple Building, Room 101. Registration for these should be made Thursday afternoon at the main desk in the Temple so that each applicant will have a certain time for his or her try-out and there will be the fewest possible delays. Try-outs may be single, double or in groups. There are parts for twenty men and nine girls besides a large number for crowds and soldiers.

Costumes for the cast will be ordered as soon as measurements can be taken for those successful in the parts. Understudies for the principal characters will be chosen to make certain of no delays at the final production because of sickness or accident. It is possible the play may be staged a second time during commencement week in the open air theatre that is planned at the Farm Campus. Rehearsals will begin immediately after spring vacation and all characters will be expected to know their lines by that time.

Gamma Epsilon in 1917, the organization at Nebraska was known as the Pick and Hammer Club, a representative body of the geological students. It was in existence for several years before its admittance to the fraternity. At this time it had nineteen active student members and two faculty members, Dr. E. H. Barbour and Prof. E. F. Schramm, both of the Geological Department.

The present membership is eighty-four, of which twenty-six are active members. Qualifications for membership are based upon scholarship in geology, mining, metallurgy and allied subjects.

Regular meetings of the Delta Chapter are held in the Museum the first and third Thursdays of each month. Programs are given from time to time, which are of general interest and open to University students, who are invited to attend.
