VACATION.

Vacation time has again appeared upon the horizon, and is inviting us to cast needless cares to the breezes while we hark back to Home, Mother and "Dad," for a brief day or two. What a relief and a treat it will be to enjoy home-cooking once more after the disheartening round of boarding house food, and how blissfully will we appreciate the privilege to lie a-bed without the ghost of eight o'clocks disturbing our slumbers! If we have been faithful to our duties during the past eight weeks we may well say to ourselves that we are deserving of a respite from the daily grind.

But two months of school work will remain on our return, and each of these weeks will be filled with school functions of one kind or another. Especially will the time of the Seniors be filled, for along their final lap the way will be replete with good things. There will be color week, Senior picnic, Ivy Day, and Commencement, and besides these festivities there will be a host of other jollities, including the pan-hellenic dance, sneak day, etc. What student is there who is not looking forward to these days with joyful anticipation? Such events as we have described are those which occur only in the life of the college man or woman. They are peculiar to University life and will be some of the fondest remembrances of our college years. With these things in mind let us thoroughly enjoy our week at home and be ready to return with renewed life and enthusiasm.

BASEBALL.

The grand old game of baseball has again entered Nebraska's sporting realm after an absence of a number of years. University students are gratified to learn of this fact because they have been anxiously waiting to see the return of the national pastime. In the days gone by the University produced a number of championship teams and the athletic department deserves the credit of sending a few of its star diamond artists to the big leagues. The University of Nebraska will continue to produce the same caliber teams as she has in the past. Coach Schissler has wealth of promising material to select a blue-ribbon nine and he is confident that the Scarlet and Cream will play a conspicuous part in the diamond world this year.

University students must back the team to the limit. A ticket campaign will probably be launched in a short time for the purpose of selling a sufficient number of pasteboards to warrant the purchase of suits, baseball equipment, and to give guarantee to the invading teams. The games will be played at the M street park this season. The distance should not discourage students in attending each game. When the blast announcing the initial game is sounded, every loyal fan will swarm the stands to witness Nebraska defeat her first rival. Let's go.

NOT AN "EXPERT MILL."

A man who has passed through a University can always be discerned, a prominent journalist recently stated, not, as is often thought the case, by some quip or peculiarity, but because he is always possessed of "a certain degree of philosophy and philosophical method."

There is about the University man, the journalist maintains, that power of discernment that ordinary people do not have. There is in the University bred man a peculiarly developed ability to discriminate, to perceive and rule out irrelevancies, to recognize that which is essential and that which is extrinsic.

This is not saying that a college education is the trade-mark of a highly discriminating, carefully balanced mind, but that there is generally with the man that has been through college that power for careful, accurate, and broad thinking.

Certainly, he did not share the view that many utilitarians are wont to nourish, that the University is but a mill for grinding out experts, be they engineers or philologists. According to him it is necessary for the educated mind to have a touch of philosophy. His plea is for an education that is sufficiently broad to permit discernment.

One way to attain this breadth is through intelligent reading and discussion. For a law student to shut himself in his room and cram law continually, is not apt to develop the best lawyer. He must learn to look at things in a broad light, to weigh them. Only when the student disallows himself to be inculcated with the fallacious idea that University is an "expert mill" and that he must not turn his head right nor left for fear of having his attention diverted, will he realize the journalistic idea of an ideal University education.—Daily Cardinal.

We're ready with everything you'll need, from cool underwear to cool suits—a great array of "spring fever" preventatives.

Sample Suit Sale

CONTINUES

IT IS SURPRISING!

He was looking at our spring suits and coats. "Say," he remarked, "do you know all this talk about high prices had me scared stiff? Thought I'd have to mortgage myself or go to the South Sea Islands this year. Didn't suppose there were any such clothes as these for 35.00 anywhere."

We'll admit that he had a right to be surprised. We're featuring these 35.00 suits as our LEADERS. That's why there's such unusual value in them. Is 35.00 about YOUR price?

Right now we're sharing our good fortune with you, saving you $10 to $15 on an Easter Suit and O'coat.

$ 35

OTHER SUITS AND COATS $45, $50, $55 and $60.

To Top Off and Kick Off right on Easter morn—Knox Hats and Nettleton's shoes.
