GET OUT TO THAT DEBATE.

The Husker debating team will meet that of Iowa Friday and Saturday here at Nebraska. Are we going to support their efforts? The material for the question and the personnel of the teams promise a truly worthwhile contest for any one interested in the intellectual sciences. Come out and help develop the more intellectual lines at Nebraska. At times, from all appearances and conversations, this school supports nothing but dances, theaters and athletic events. Surely the students do not wish to have this impression go out over the state, as Nebraska interests. As one student said: "Even the Nebraskan is usually full of social events and University notices." This is the opportunity for something different, the best kind of outside education. Make a special effort to go. One other thing—never in our experience has a Cornhusker yell been given at a debating contest. Let's try that sort of support and enthusiasm for them too.

THE CIGARET ON THE CAMPUS.

It seems fitting at this time to call the attention of some of the students to the technical definition of the Nebraska "campus." In reality, any college building on or about the so-called city campus, whether within or without the gates, is on that campus. In connection with that statement, we wonder if the rules about smoking on the campus have been forgotten. For the most part, the men have been very considerate of that ruling this year but for a few exceptions. We appreciate this spirit but wish to suggest that around the Social Science Building, Teachers' College, Botany Building and the Law College, cigarets have of late become an annoyance. To many girls and some members of the faculty, cigaret smoke is unpleasant, and it would be a fine courtesy to them to refrain from smoking until entirely off the campus boundaries. It is felt that the moral tone of the whole University would improve under these conditions.

PUNCTUALITY AND EXCUSES.

Are University students naturally punctual? This might be questioned when one looks out of the window to watch the many stragglers hurrying to eight o'clocks. It seems the human tendency to procrastinate to some extent although one knows that it is not wise. Men say that "waiting" for girls would almost make a good occupation—at least take most of their time if possible. Yet girls have something on their side also, if they have ever waited for a man to settle a golf score or an interesting argument. In all cases, it is practically a general habit. But—the Imprint thinks that punctuality gets the best results on the long run. We used to say with much faith—"Never make excuses; your friends don't need them and your enemies won't believe you anyway." We have reformed now, however, and agree thoroughly with the last statement of Imprint.

"There is only one fellow who has found the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow.

"There is nothing startling about him, and unless you watch his habits, you may not be able to discern any difference between him and the rest of us.

"There is just one thing about him that stands out above every other trait:

"He is always on time—always in the neighborhood when the good things are passed out. He's punctual.

"Punctuality makes excuses unnecessary."
