THE ENGINEERS.

The Daily Nebraskan is today issued by the Engineering College. We appreciate the interest that various organizations and departments have taken in the students' paper. The different issues put out by new staffs give to the student body a point of view brought down to details. Each department is better able to present the interests in their work than a miscellaneous group of workers who are merely trying to boil down the general school news. We hope that special interest will be felt in this issue and any others that may follow.

A SINGLE TAX FOR ENGINEERS.

The Engineers have recently taken the first step toward actually having a single tax and what a relief it will be when one pays the annual dues of $3.00 and knows that he at least will not be touched at every turn in the registration line for money to finance one or more of the engineering societies or publications.

So far, this is far from being an ideal single tax proposition but one step at a time is all that can be expected of any good movement. It remains yet to make the payment compulsory for every Engineer, increase the dues a slight amount so as to include, with what one now receives, a subscription to "The Daily Nebraskan," and still have enough money to put on a good smoker or two and be able to support any other engineering activity which will be a help to the school, as well as to the students.

At first thought one would say that this would make the fees too high and keep some out of the college. But on comparing what is now received for the $3.00 with that of last year when payments were made to the different societies and publications it is very evident that much more can be done with the one payment. For instance, when the Engineers are in the registration line next year they will be asked to join only the one society, The American Association of Engineers. Upon payment of the annual dues to this association they will become members of the National Association receiving their membership card, the monthly publication (The Professional Engineer), and the Engineers' Directory. They also become members of the Student Chapter made up of the departmental societies and receive the student publication, The Blue Print.

Now if this can be done with only $3.00 collected from 40 per cent of the Engineers, why not make the payment compulsory, increase the dues a reasonable amount so as to include a smoker or two and a subscription to the "Daily Nebraskan"?

SUPPORT FOR SPRING SPORTS.

Whenever an athletic season rolls around it is invariably accompanied by a request for the student body to get out and give its support. But unlike their winter contemporaries, spring sports seem always to labor under the disadvantage of a dearth of support.

Rain, snow, or extreme cold seldom interferes with an en masse turnout at a football game. The importance of an evening engagement has not in the past hampered the attendance at basketball games. When attention is directed to spring sports the situation assumes a new aspect.

Cinder path stars, after a season of tedious preparation, have seldom been able to get more than a handful of people to watch them perform. Baseball, moved for convenience to the lower campus, causes only a slight ripple of excitement. These conditions ought to be reversed.

A baseball game or a track meet is always dependent on good weather. There is never the possibility of interference with a "date" or a chance to suffer the discomforts of bad weather. Not only that, the teams actually need the support.

BAND WILL RENDER CONVOCATION PROGRAM

An excellent musical program has been prepared by the University Band under the direction of Mr. W. T. Quick for the Thursday's convocation. The program will include a well arranged mixture of jazz and classic music which will be well worth while hearing.
